AGREE TO ADMIT THE SUPPRESSED SEDITION REPORT

BUT CALLS THE LAW FAULTY

POLICE HAVE 15 WITNESSES

Head of Friends of Irish Freedom Tells Governor Swann Is Playing Politics.

The suppressed presentment of the Grand Jury, which has been considering soap-box sedition, of which Alexander Konta is the foreman, will be handed to the court today. The decision to allow the Grand Jury to bring it in was reached yesterday by both Judge McIntyre of General Sessions and District Attorney Swann. In objecting to its publication Mr. Swann charged that there were parts of it which, if made public, would be the same as "bullets in the backs of our men at the front." In consenting to the Grand Jury making its presentment Mr. Swann explained his new stand. He said that newspaper publicity and the insistence of the Grand Jury already had the effect of making known the "infirmities of the law"—its weakness in dealing with cases where disorderly conduct was charged against those who had made alleged seditious speeches from street corners.

The Gand Jury asked Mr. Swann if he would object to the presentment being made and Mr. Swann said he would not if the Judge was willing. Later Judge McIntyre asked him the same question and he gave the same reply. Later the District Attorney spoke on the "infirmities of the law." He was still of the opinion, he said, that it was most unwise to bring the matter up at this time. The truth about the affair was, he said, that the Court of Appeals had decided that the Grand Jury had no authority in matters of disorderly conduct. Such cases were for the Magistrates to deal with. If the Grand Jury did indict for disorderly conduct the indictment would be nil, as he read the law. It was because of this, he said, that he had objected to the presentment and to a discussion of the case just at a time when the less said about it the better.

Wants Swann Investigated.

John D. Moore, National Secretary of the Friends of Irish Freedom, did not wait for the Grand Jury to act. He sent a letter to Governor Whitman requesting that a Special Deputy Attorney General be appointed to investigate the conduct of the District Attorney for "failing to present to the Grand Jury witnesses and evidence concerning alleged seditious speakers."

When the Grand Jury resumed its deliberations in the morning the District Attorney went before them. He had some fifteen witnesses to alleged disorderly conduct in connection with street meetings. In the group waiting to be called were Police Captain Sexton of the East Twenty-second Street station, Captain Bailey of the West Thirtieth Street station and fifteen policemen, witnesses who had been present at the Broadway meetings. Cleveland Moffett was not on hand. He sent word to Mr. Swann that he would be unable to be present yesterday. He will be ready, however, when called. This time the Grand Jury is to be given evidence in specific cases. This will be the answer to the charge than no tangible cases were presented by the District Attorney or the police. Acting Police Commissioner Godley wrote to Mr. Swann that the police had no cases of unlawful assembly or of riot. He said there were four persons awaiting trial for alleged disorderly conduct. These cases are to be submitted to the Grand Jury. They are against Stephen W. Johnson, Shawn Conway, John D. Moore and Margaret T. Curley, all arrested as a result of street meetings.

When Mr. Swann went before the Grand Jury he took with him a copy of a morning paper. In this it was intimated that an Assistant District Attorney had said to a member of the jury that censure of the police was desired. The District Attorney asked the jurors whether any member of his staff had approached them as a body or individually with a request that the police be censured for its part in the seditious troubles. He was told that no such event had occurred.

The Grand Jury, after asking Mr. Swann whether he objected to its handing up a presentment, asked Judge McIntyre whether he would object to such a proceeding.

"I understand you want to submit a document tomorrow," said Judge McIntyre. "What I said the other day followed a decision by Justice Goff, in which he said that the function of the Grand Jury was to return indictments or to dismiss. It is no longer the function of the Grand Jury to make presentments for the reason that such a presentment may attack the character of an individual who is utterly without the opportunity of coming into court and defending himself. When you come into court with your presentment I will read it. If there is in it no attack on any individual I don't understand there will be any objection of what you submit being presented."

Has No Quarrel with Konta.

It was made clear by Mr. Swann that he wanted it understood that he had no quarrel with Foreman Konta. "I have no contention with Mr. Konta, and I

Hindenburg Implores Unity to Save Germany's Future

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 17.—According to the German press, Field Marshal von Hindenburg has telegraphed to Duke Johann Albrecht of Mecklenburg, the President of the new "Patriotic Party," the following message:

"Your appeal to the men of East Prussia has filled me with great joy because it seriously warns us Germans not to forget the war during internal dissensions. Despite the promising military situation, our people's existence and position in the world are still at stake."

The message urges the conclusion of peace between the rival parties in the empire and adds:

BUILDING OF SHIPS TIED UP BY STRIKE

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17.—Twenty-five thousand workmen, most of them skilled mechanics, gathered up their tools and walked out of more than 100 factories, shipyards, and machine shops in the bay region at 9 o'clock this morning. Following the strike in the larger plants, the walkout extended rapidly, and it threatens to involve all establishments employing machinists.

The strike is considered the biggest in the history of the Pacific Coast. Work on more than $150,000,000 in navy and merchant vessel construction came to a standstill in the most important two plants affected, the Union Iron Works and the Moore & Scott Iron Works.

Efforts to break the deadlock between the employers and the men to avert the strike continued to the last. Eleventh-hour proposals by both sides met with refusal. Conference committees representing the Iron Trade Council, the central body of the strikers' union, and the California Metal Trades Association and California Foundrymen's Association, the employers' organization, will continue to meet. This course was decided on in order that every possible development promising a termination of the strike might be acted upon at once.

Capps's Agent Attending.

James L. Ackerson, representing Admiral Capps of the United States Shipping Board, will be in attendance to keep the Government in immediate touch with the situation.

Mayor James Rolph, Jr., was at his office at the City Hall at 8 o'clock this morning. The Mayor declined to state whether he had any plans for dealing with the strike. The Mayor later held several conferences on the iron trades and United Railroads strikes and the disorders occurring today.

The strike spread rapidly to a number of small shops, and threatens to involve every shop where machinists or other striking crafts are employed. Machinists quit work in thirty-one steam laundries, sixty molding shops, twelve boiler factories, and a number of garment and other factories.

At the Union Iron Works alone, with more than $125,000,000 of Government ship construction and contracts pending for a share of the destroyer fleet program amounting to millions more, about 8,500 men quit.

At the Moore & Scott yards in Oakland, with about $25,000,000 in merchant vessel construction for the Government, the number of strikers was about 2,700. At the local plant about 300 walked out.

At the Union Iron Works plant in Oakland 3,500 men walked out contrary to expectations. The 450 machinists employed at the Hall-Scott Motor Company in Berkeley, manufacturing airplane engines for the Government, did not strike, and officers of the company said they anticipated no trouble.

R. S. Moore of the Moore & Scott Iron Works said no attempt would be made to operate, and that he considered the only hope of a settlement rested with the Government. He said:

"The wage increases asked by the men in our plant could not have been granted without consent of the Government. The Government contracts were made on the basis of the prevailing rate of wages, and it was provided that no increase should be granted without the consent of the Government. We have brought the situation directly to the attention of Washington through Captain Pillsbury, local representative of the Shipping Board."

Wage Question Paramount.

Mr. Ackerson declared today that he was unable to forecast any hopeful development. He said:

"It is too late for me to do anything. I am unable to say when or how the Government will attempt to effect a settlement. I do not know whether the Shipping Board officials dealing with the labor troubles in the Northwest will come here.

"It has resolved itself to a question of wages; that is the paramount issue. Certain other conditions pertaining to shop operation could have been adjusted. But the unions made their wage demands which the employers felt they could not meet. I have been dropped into this controversy out of a clear sky, but I shall remain here and do all that I can to effect a settlement."

Rioting continued this afternoon in connection with the street car strike, with crowds of striking ironworkers joining the street car strikers in attacks on cars and car crews.

The disorders became widespread soon after the ironworkers walked out. Within an hour after the walkout five riot calls came from different parts of the city as groups of strikers scattered and made a succession of attacks. Many arrests were made.

No attempt to operate with non-union

WITH THE SUPREME COMMAND OF THE ITALIAN ARMIES, Sept. 16.—In preceding cablegrams I have tried to give a general picture of Italy's effort on the battlefield, the biggest offensive ever begun on enemy soil. I have attempted to show that she is waging a real war—a classical war where she is imposing her own conditions on the Austrians. In the present dispatch I hope to picture the personalities behind all this—big men with big jobs.

Outside of Italy I have discovered an ignorance upon the subject of Italy that seems profound. I have now expounded my belief concerning the Italian front in Austria, not new theories, only the old principle of hammering the enemy at his weakest point.

After many years of unanimous belief in the degeneracy of the French, America discovered France, the real France, that is, brave, steadfast, and strong. The time has now come for America to put away her visions of tenements, railway gangs, and macaroni and discover France's Latin sister, Italy, the capital of which is the Eternal City upon the seven hills beside the Tiber. America, with her freedom from parochial affairs, is in better position to announce such a discovery than any one else. Therefore, let me write briefly of Italy's leaders—her big men with big jobs. You see them all at the Supreme Command of the Italian armies operating in Austria.

King Victor and Cadorna.

First there is King Victor Emmanuel III., who lives in a modest little villa. As King of Italy he is Commander in Chief of the Italian armies, but being a wise King he leaves the actual army command to his military wizard, Cadorna. Even so, he is always at the front. I have it on good authority that he only takes fifteen days' "permission" in a year for a vacation in his capital or elsewhere. Fifteen days is the same annual leave granted to every Italian from officers down to simple soldiers. Their King considers he needs no more than they.

I asked where he went on the front and the answer was: "He goes to the front line trench, and much oftener than his Ministers would like to allow." I asked what his methods toward his army were and got the following reply:

"He is the great fixer of every difficulty that arises with the troops. He is everywhere and seems to know them all. He goes to their mess and he eats of their soup. He keeps tabs on the time it takes for food to reach the men in the advanced positions under fire. He has been under fire a hundred times himself just to find these things out. Then, instead of making a fuss when things are wrong, he goes quietly about here and there asking questions, rearranging and adjusting, until the trouble is all untangled and everybody is as happy and comfortable as it is possible to be when at war."

It struck me in listening to this that to be a successful fixer of difficulties is a sufficient rôle even for a King.

Next comes Cadorna. The Italian Generalissimo is perhaps the least known of all the allied war chiefs, certainly the least photographed and least interviewed, for to date he has never been interviewed at all. General Cadorna is Count Cadorna, and in Italy there have been the Counts of Cadorna for hundreds of years. But in the present case the title Count is completely submerged by that of General, the nation at large considering that to be the far more important of the two.

He is the acknowledged master of the Italian armies and his rule is absolute. True, he has had his critics, but the hardest things any have ever been able to say is that he was too sparing of his men. Cadorna has never bothered about his critics, which is the great secret of his power. His attitude is, "Whenever the country gets tired of me I will quit. I refuse to stay a second longer than I am wanted. But while I am Generalissimo what I say goes." Whenever his critics have become too obstreperous this attitude of mind has been quickly borne to them. Then a panic has become so general that there have been violent urgings for Cadorna to forgive and forget, above all, to keep on the job.

In addition to this Cadorna is a hermit and never sees anybody except his King, his Chief of Staff and a few special officers. The most prominent visitors to the Italian front get a brief glimpse of the Generalissimo with the greatest difficulty. He lives in an old house near the Comando Supremo, where he does all his work. He is a strict Catholic,

Moratorium Will Be Urged to Protect Our Soldiers and Sailors Absent at War

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Legislation to protect the civil and property rights of soldiers and sailors—in effect, a moratorium for the duration of the war in behalf of men who are serving their country in the army and navy—may be placed upon the Administration's program for this session of Congress.

The Soldiers and Sailors' Civil Rights bill, to carry out this purpose, already has been introduced in both houses, having been framed in the office of Judge Alvocate General Crowder. Secretary Baker has under consideration recommendations that the entire weight of Administration influence be brought to bear to obtain early enactment of the measure.

To save soldiers and sailors from all kinds of legal injustices during their absence from home, the measure would enjoin the carrying out of certain civil court actions until after the close of the war and establish as a legal excuse for failure to carry out certain contracts the fact that a man is in the military service.

It is proposed that creditors' suits against officers or men may be held up and judgment by default denied, the framers of the bill recognizing that a man in the army or navy would have no opportunity to make his defense in person or to arrange for its proper hearing through counsel.

If such a judgment rested against a man at the time of his enlistment, the bill would prevent its execution through the sale of his property during his absence. It would set aside the statute of limitations, so that a debt owed to a soldier might not be outlawed in his absence; it would prevent the eviction of his family while he was away if they failed to pay the rent; it would protect his equity in any real estate or other purchase contract in which he might have been engaged at the time he went into the army; it would protect him against the ordinary results of defaulted payments on business mortgages and keep him from being sold out in his absence; it would insure any rights he might have to public lands, although his service at the front had prevented him from completing the legal acquisition of the property.

Another element of protection the bill would accord to the fighting man would be as to his life insurance, which could not lapse through failure to make any payment. His property also would be protected from sale for taxes, and in every other way which the legal experts of the War Department have been able to devise all civil rights and interests of men in the military service would be safeguarded.

RUSSIANS DRIVE GERMANS 7 MILES

ARMY RECOVERING MORALE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The most encouraging feature of the Russian situation as reported in official dispatches to the Russian Embassy, received today, is the news that the military situation has been greatly strengthened by steps taken by General Alexieff, the new Commander in Chief, while efforts are being made to adjust the internal political situation. The political contest has been improved by the proclamation of a republican form of government for Russia, and the temporary creation of a smaller Cabinet of five, headed by Premier Kerensky.

The Russian Embassy has been advised that the military situation is considerably brighter, that the Russian lines were not left open to the enemy during the recent revolt, and that Russian forces in the Riga sector are again moving in the drection of Riga. The Embassy has been informed that in this sector the Russian forces have advanced seven miles on a rather wide front during the last five days, forcing the enemy back, and compelling certain changes in German plans for withdrawing troops from the Russian front for use on other fronts.

The embassy was advised that Russia is now fulfilling a very important part of her task as a member of the Entente alliance, forcing the Germans to concentrate on the eastern front more soldiers than ever before, and that this achievement is favorable to France, England, Belgium, and Italy. General Alexieff has begun to obtain important results in his reorganization of the army.

New Generals have been appointed to the higher commands in the army, this step being necessitated by the lack of confidence on the part of the soldiers in certain old army officers, who were suspected by the line of having been sympathetic toward Korniloff. The soldiers refused to obey the orders of some of the old commanders, and it was believed that new officers could better restore authority and discipline in the ranks.

The embassy is advised that the Korniloff movement appears finally to be "liquidated" without the shedding of blood, and with the Provisional Government seemingly stronger than before. The Government has adopted the attitude of favoring greater discipline in the army, and has established the principle that the democratic Government ought not to be attacked from any quarter.

The embassy had not received confirmation of, and discredited, the report that General Alexieff had committed suicide after an interview with Premier Kerensky.

A General Alexajer Kills Himself.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—A Copenhagen dispatch to the Central News says that, according to the Sydsdensk Dagblad's Petrograd correspondent, General Alexajer committed suicide after an interview with Premier Kerensky.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 17.—General Kaledines has resigned as Hetman of the Don Cossacks.

General Kaledines's arrest has been sought by the Provisional Government because of his adherence to the Korniloff revolt, and instructions to that effect were sent to the Grand Council of the Don Cossacks, sitting at Novo Tcherkask.

GROWING CRITICISM OF LLOYD GEORGE

CHARGED WITH INACTIVITY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—In two such dissimilar organs of opinions as The Westminster Gazette and The Daily Mail, a note of dissatisfaction with the Government is sounded today.

Lord Northcliffe's paper publishes what the writer, Lovat Fraser, who is a regular contributor to the columns of The Daily Mail, calls "a personal view about a matter on which I find it difficult to keep silent any longer."

"It is time," he says, "to point out that the pacifists are stealthily making some amount of headway in this country, and that the Government show no appreciation of the position which is being created. The pacifists' efforts would not matter very much were it not that a combination of factors is giving them an increasing chance of sowing tares. Though the national will to victory remains resolute, it is not just now a burning and intense conviction, but has become a commonplace of everyday life. An unwholesome lassitude seems to prevail, and underneath there smolders vague dissatisfaction of which the Government had better take heed. This dissatisfaction is not, as the pacifists pretend, a longing for peace at any price, but rather a puzzled and anxious feeling about the war.

"The public are a trifle bewildered. I find most people in a questioning mood. They think the war seems to stagnate, and no one will tell them why. They look to the Government for light, and they get no light whatever."

Mr. Fraser wants a new trumpet call—"something which will inspire the nation to work with grim earnestness all through the Winter for the great continuation of the war next year."

After observing that "one of those bad times which Governments, like long-distance athletes, encounter, is developing for the Ministry," The Westminster Gazette says:

"The criticisms now heard may be no more than a reflection of disappointment at the long halt which the war on the western front has experienced; but the Government has to bear the questionings which the situation evokes. Those questionings were heard before they made their appearance in the press, but they are extending to the columns of the newspapers. 'Wanted, a Success,' is the note of one weekly decidedly friendly to Lloyd George. The Morning Post exhibits impatience with the Ministry, but that would not be disturbing. It is different when The Times begins to demand official reports on the operations of the year. These things are significant because the present Ministry started its career with a magnificent press behind it. None of the administrations during the war has been so little subject to annoyance or supported with such fervor.

"'I could get this lot out in a fortnight if I chose,' was the remark of one of those multiple journalists who control many newspapers, but his disposition was not to get them out, but to keep them in. The same spirit has been shown in even more influential quarters. Mr. Lloyd George and his colleagues can have no complaint on the ground that they have not received a fair field. They have, on the contrary, enjoyed a good deal of favor. If a different and querulous spirit begins to be manifested it arises out of the feeling that the Cabinet lacks driving force and concentration upon its task."

Sir Edward Carson, according to an announcement made today, has taken over the general superintendence of propaganda and information on behalf of the War Cabinet, a part of which task had hitherto devolved upon Colonel John Buchan. The latter's qualifications for the post, it is understood, were made known to Mr. Lloyd George by Lord Northcliffe, and it is generally remarked that he has discharged his duties most efficiently, although on one occasion The Times found fault with him. There is no newspaper comment on Sir Edward's new work except in The Westminster Gazette, which publishes a not too kindly paragraph, winding up with the hope that he has no intention of seeking to control opinion at home—"an experiment which would be unfortunate for all concerned."

Parliament will not meet until Oct. 16, and in a month many things may happen to tip the scales on one side or the other of Leo Maxse's prediction in the current number of The National Review that Lloyd George "must go."

Costa Rica, Unearthing Plot, Interns Germans; Break With Berlin Considered Accomplished

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Sept. 17.—Diplomatic relations between Costa Rica and Germany are considered severed as the result of steps taken by the Government today. General Tinoco, the President, discovered that German residents here had joined with some of the followers of former President Gonzales in conspiring against the Government.

Three of the most prominent Germans here—Kumpel, Altschul, and Orlich—have been arrested. All Germans living in Costa Rican ports have been ordered interned. President Tinoco has called Congress in special session and will lay the matter before it.

General Tinoco assumed the Presidency of Costa Rica in January, 1917, when the Gonzalez Government was overthrown. Gonzalez appealed to the United States to intervene, but the American Government took no action. In an election held in April Tinoco was chosen President. The American Government has refused to recognize the Tinoco Government.

MUCH TALK ABOUT BELGIUM

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 17.—Has the German Government revised its policy as regards war aims and peace considerations and reached what may be important decisions? That is the question with which an influential section of the German press has been dealing during the week-end, and a number of papers of varying shades of political opinion answer the question in the affirmative. They say that in the process of drawing up the reply to the Pope's peace proposals a new general basis of policy was reached regarding which both the military and civil powers are in agreement.

It is hinted in some quarters that this may possibly be made evident by the terms of Germany's answer to the Vatican, but that, at any rate, certain statements of considerable import will be made to the Reichstag, which will meet next week.

Germania, the organ of the Centre Party, tutored by Erzberger, referring to the violent Pan-German campaign in the country, says the Pan-German agitators will remain unteachable until the moment comes when the facts begin to speak. The journal adds: "That moment appears to be not very far off."

The National Liberal Boersen Zeitung makes this pointed statement: "It is fairly safe to assume that the Government is not hostile to the Reichstag majority, and that the Government's attitude coincides with that of the authoritative military factors." Such a statement from a journal representing the party which is opposed to the Reichstag majority is significant.

The Liberal Frankfurter Zeitung insists on the correctness of its statement that the Government has either fixed or is immediately about to fix its peace policy. The Pan-Germans, the paper says, know this and they are gathering all their strength, as they believe they can influence the decision by making a great deal of noise, but "those who in recent days have closely studied the press and know how to read between the lines cannot but be convinced that the decisions which are to be awaited in the near future are practically fixed."

The noise of the Pan-Germans, therefore, the Frankfurter Zeitung says, is merely the howling of the defeated, for "they are not only now up against the Reichstag majority but up against the Government as well. The decisions are of tremendous importance. Regarding them, of course, opinions of all sections in the country have been taken, and among them a unanimous view has been arrived at."

Cologne Hears of Belgium Concession.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROTTERDAM, Sept. 17, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—A telegram from Cologne states that today's Cologne Volkszeitung has the following:

"In regard to rumors that the Germna Government has given up the idea of supremacy or any real control over Belgium, we have also received information to this effect. From this it can be established that during the last week a decision in regard to Belgium was taken in a sense friendly to England."

The Pan-German newspapers are in a great rage, real or simulated. The Deutsche Tageszeitung reappeared yesterday, after one day's suspension for an unknown offense. In a leading article Count zu Reventlow says:

"If it is true that the German Government has decided on the renunciation of Belgium, the ruin of the German Empire would be sealed, and the English would be right when they said that the Germans would win battles but England would win the war. In the solution of the Belgian question lies, indeed, the future of the German Empire.

"For the present nothing more certain is known, but it is necessary to draw attention to the fact that the rumors of such a German renunciation have been increasing of late. Such a peace would be a bankrupt peace."

The Hague Has a Different Version.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 17.—It is understood here that Germany has dropped her proposed concession regarding Belgium, amounting to an offer to help restore Belgium economically with money to be paid by Britain as the purchase price of Germany's oversea colonies.

According to the neutral Catholic press, no definite proposals are contained in Germany's reply to the Pope. The original proposals approved by the so-called Parliamentary Commission of Seven seem to have been canceled at the emergency meeting of State Secretaries recently reported.

According to reports received at Amsterdam, Austria originally obtained Germany's approval of certain concessions in the note to the Pope by offering economic concessions to Germany. The strength of this movement was in the Austrian Catholics' desire to assist the Pope's diplomacy, and they worked through the German Catholic Party.

Recently the German Catholics themselves split, the south and west Germans revolting against the leadership of Erzberger, Fehrenbach, and other pronounced supporters of the peace policy. Hence the German Catholics failed to give the Austrian pressure sufficient support, and the annexationists and Pan Germans have managed to secure the canceling of the original form of reply to the Pope.

Germany Invites Boys of 15 to Volunteer for the Army

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 17.—The recent great wastage of men on the various German fronts is officially recognized inadvertently by militatry authorities, who have just issued notices at Munich and Cologne that they will accept in future boy volunteers aged fifteen for the army.

This order accounts for the recent influx into Switzerland of German boys, sent for safety by their parents. German supervision of the Swiss frontier lately has been redoubled, especially facing Basle.

READJUST TAX ON WAR PROFITS

DOUBLE AUTOMOBILE LEVY

Averages Two Per Cent.—Tariff Increase and Tax on Inheritances Stricken Out.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Out of the veil of secrecy which envelops the deliberations of the conferees on the $2,406,670,000 War Revenue bill, it developed today that a tentative agreement had been reached on the most perplexing problem of all—the war profits tax. The conferees, after debating the feature, practically reached a compromise between the schedule of graduated tax as fixed in the Senate bill and the levy as originally framed by the House.

The conferees practically decided to report a profits tax schedule based on the House exemption of 8 per cent. of actual capital invested instead of the raduated exemption of from 6 to 10 per cent. provided in the bill as it passed the Senate. On war profits above this exemption, the conferees favored a graduated tax following the line of those adopted by the Senate, running from 12 to 30 per cent. Final vote on this method of taxation is to be taken in the conference tomorrow.

Double Exemption.

Under the scheme advanced by the House, an exemption is allowed on $5,000 of net income, aside from the 8 per cent. of capital invested. This double exemption has been insisted upon by the House conferees, and it was only after it became evident that the profits tax feature would be held up indefinitely that the Senate conferees came around to the House proposal as a compromise.

The difference in revenue to be derived from the House system of exemption, coupled with the Senate system of graduated tax, is estimated by experts of the Senate Finance Committee to be very slight. The House contemplated a tax of 16 per cent. flat on all profits after the exemption of 8 per cent. The Senate exemptions, running as high as 10 per cent. were held by the House conferees to exclude an appreciable accumulation of profits. By co-ordinating the two methods of tax, it is calculated, the levy will be in the neighborhood of the $1,456,000,000 apportioned in the bill passed by the Senate.

The conferees also agreed, it was said tonight, to a graduated automobile tax averaging 2 per cent., instead of 1 per cent. as passed by the Senate. The yield would be $60,000,000 instead of $40,000,000.

The publishers' tax occupied attention of the conferees this afternoon. The House conferees favored putting a tax of one-fourth of 1 per cent. on publishers' profits, while the Senate conferees insisted on adhering to the action of the Senate in eliminating the entire tax on publishers. The Senate conferees argued that the publishers, being subject to other war taxes, had enough of a burden to carry.

Discuss Second Class Mail Rates.

Some of the discussion centred about the second class mail rates. First Assistant Postmaster General Koons testifying for several hours. The House conferees recognized that adoption of the McKellar amendment, which would establish a first zone of 300 miles at 1 cent a pound, with higher rates beyond, was hopeless, and began casting about for compromise proposals. Efforts to agree upon a plan to distinguish between the rates on reading and advertising matter were in progress tonight at adjournment.

Although more rigid secrecy than ever was imposed on the deliberations, it was reliably stated that the conferees had definitely agreed to eliminate the House provision for a general 10 per cent. tax increase and to strike out the House section estimated to raise $6,000,000 from inheritances.

The prospects tonight, according to members of the conference, were that an agreement on the bill would be reached by Thursday, and that the measure would be reported to the House before the end of the week.

Protest by Publishers.

The American Newspaper Publishers' Association, the membership embracing daily newspapers published in all parts of the country, through its Postal Committee, of which Don C. Seitz is Chairman, has strongly protested against either punitive taxation of the newspaper publishing business or the principle advocated by some of the use of the Postal Service as an instrument of taxation.

The Senate recently rejected all war tax bill amendments designed to accomplish such a purpose, but it is believed by the association that the measure now in conference, may be subject to efforts to reinstate some of the punitive sections that the Senate has discarded. Newspaper publishers are therefore urged by the association to take such steps immediately as may appeal to them to safeguard the principle involved of not having the publishing business singled out as one to be burdened by forms of taxation not levied against any other lines of business.

Newspaper publishers without exception expect to pay full taxes of every kind and are protesting solely against proposals to visit them with a form of taxation not applied to any other business.

ARGENTINA REJECTS GERMAN 'REGRETS' AS INADEQUATE

FORMAL NOTE IS REQUIRED

Berlin Message to Stockholm Also Expresses Sorrow for Envoy's Strong Language.

BRITISH CRITICISE LINDMAN

Astonished at Sweden's Failure to Offer Any Explanation to England.

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 17.—Dr. Luis B Molina, the Argentine Minister at Berlin, today informed the Argentine Foreign Office by cable that the German Government had expressed regrets over the actions of Count von Luxburg, the German Minister to Argentina. Dr. Molina reported that Baron von dem Bussche-Haddenhausen, Under Secretary of the German Foreign Office, had informed him that Germany disapproved absolutely of expressions used by Count von Luxburg in his dispatches.

The Under Secretary, who acted for Dr. von Kühlmann, the German Foreign Secretary, during von Kühlmann's absence in Munich, asked the Argentine Minister to request the Argentine Government to notify Count von Luxburg that the German Government wished him to return immediately to Germany to explain the entire matter personally. Dr. Molina was asked to obtain a safe conduct for Count von Luxburg. Count von Luxburg today announced that he probably would sail on Sept. 28 for Bilbao, Spain, on a Spanish steamer.

Foreign Minister Pueyrredon, after reading Dr. Molina's cablegram, announced that he declined to accept the assurances of Baron von dem Bussche-Haddenhausen as a satisfactory settlement of the Luxburg incident, because it was merely the oral statement of an Under Secretary. The Argentine Foreign Office is awaiting a formal note from the German Government before closing the incident.

The report from Berlin that Dr. Molina had explained to the German Government that the handing of passports by Argentina to Count von Luxburg was a personal matter and did not signify a rupture of relations was classed as of doubtful accuracy by Minister Pueyrredon. It was true that a rupture had not been created by handing Count von Luxburg his passports, the Foreign Minister stated, but Dr. Molina's instructions did not provide for any explanation of the situation to Germany.

The Foreign Minister reiterated that there would be a rupture with Germany if the latter's explanation of the Luxburg incident was not absolutely satisfactory. He requested the Senate to abandon the proposed secret session set for today to consider the matter, as he prefers to make all explanations at a public session later in the week.

Since receiving his passports Count von Luxburg, it is stated, has been circulating the statement that the idea of sinking Argentine ships "without leaving a trace" was suggested to him by the Foreign Minister of Argentina as a means of preventing complications. This statement was characterized by Minister Pueyrredon as the "greatest, most shameful, barefaced lie" in his official experience.

"Regrets" Sent to Sweden Also.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Germany has sent a note to Sweden, according to the correspondent at Stockholm of the Central News Agency, highly regretting the disagreeable issues raised on account of Sweden transmitting telegrams to Germany.

Germany says that she is obliged to the Swedish Government for transmitting the messages, but regrets that her representatives in Argentina should have sent the telegrams in the phraseology they did.

The Nya Dagligt Allenhanda of Stockholm, which printed the announcement that Germany had sent the note to Sweden, says the German Government has instructed all its representatives in foreign countries to refuse to accede to any attempt which may be made to force them to reveal to the Swedish Government the contents of code messages which they may submit to it.

Germany has given no official excuse regarding Count von Luxburg's abuse of Swedish confidence, says the Exchange Telegraph correspondent at Copenhagen. He quotes the Nya Daglig Allenhanda's Berlin correspondent, however, as stating he had learned from the German Foreign Office that all German diplomatic representatives abroad had been informed that the Swedish Government had no knowledge of the contents of the Count's telegrams.

BRITISH CRITICISE SWEDEN.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The Associated Press interview with Admiral Lindman, Swedish Minister of Foreign Affairs, which was published in London today, attracted wide attention in official circles, where astonishment was expressed that the Minister had not yet made any similar expression of regret to the British Government.

"We have been expecting a statement from Admiral Lindman along these lines," said a Foreign Office official, "but we expected that it would come in an official way. An expression of regret along these lines, if made in a formal way, would undoubtedly do much to smooth relations. But thus far

Sweden has not officially expressed any regret or offered any explanation.

"The Foreign Minister's statement to The Associated Press covers the ground quite broadly, and we should be very glad if he sees fit to repeat it in substance in a formal communication to us. Thus, we would be very pleased to learn that Sweden 'deplores most sincerely that a practice which was exercised in absolutely good faith has been gravely abused.' That she 'is determined that the condition which led to this result shall be remedied,' and that she has already given orders 'that this practice shall cease.'

"We hope that The Associated Press interview is the precursor of an official explanation which will form a basis for the removal of any cloud on the relations between Great Britain and Sweden."

In the statement referred to Foreign Minister Lindman admitted that Sweden realized the seriousness of the situation created by the recent exposures at Washington regarding the transmission of German dispatches by the Swedish Legation, and declared that the Swedish Government was minded to do everything possible to settle the problem. He added that the transmission of dispatches on behalf of Germany had been stopped absolutely, that the Government had no knowledge of the nature of the dispatches in question, that strong representations had been made to the German Government on the abuse of the privilege, and that conditions would be remedied.

CONSERVATIVES UNDER FIRE.

Swedish Socialists and Liberals Condemn the Government.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 17.—In a Socialist parade today a banner borne at the head of the parade contained the motto, "Down with Secret Diplomacy." Other banners indicated that the parade might be interpreted as a peace demonstration as well as an election procession.

Hjalmar Branting, the Socialist leader, was the chief speaker at a meeting which was attended by 15,000 Socialists. At the conclusion of the addresses the following resolution was passed:

"Events of the last few days show how the leading circles of Germany ruthlessly have misused the careless confidence of the two Swedish Conservative Governments which directed the policy of Sweden during the war period.

"This meeting, therefore, emphasizes the determination to maintain a correct neutral attitude which is felt by all the Swedish people. We realize with indignation and humiliation that our good name has been jeopardized by the conduct of a few men, who favor such systems and methods."

M. Branting referred in his speech to recent events in Russia and their probable consequences, not only in the Central Powers but also among the western powers. He then attacked the management of Swedish foreign affairs by the Conservative Party, which, as the Luxburg affair showed, was guilty of a policy affecting the country's good name. The party had displayed, he said, an incompetency calling for its removal. Nothing, the Socialist leader continued, could be attained by a change in subordinate officials.

M. Branting criticised the attempts of the Foreign Office to excuse itself in the Luxburg affair by the issuance of diplomatic documents of the weakest character, with which the nation could not be satisfied. He declared that the parallel which the Foreign Minister had attempted to draw between the Luxburg telegram and the communications forwarded in behalf of the American Government was misleading. He also condemned the failure to protest against the abuse of Sweden's good offices and the way in which Sweden had been dragged into the affair.

Officials in the Foreign Office, he asserted, were not in touch with the sentiments of the nation. One could not tell what revelations would come to light, but it was evident that matters could not continue as before and that a thorough change in system was necessary to prevent the recurrence of similar events.

At a great Liberal meeting held here today a resolution proposed by Professor Eden, leader of the Liberal Party in the Second Chamber, was unanimously passed to the effect that the meeting expressed the deepest regret that the Foreign Office was not in a position to deny the assertion that it had forwarded cipher telegrams in ignorance of their contents, which contents, when revealed, awoke the just abhorrence of all Swedes. It was also deplored that such careless acts could happen.

The resolution demanded that the Government immediately undertake all necessary measures to demonstrate to the Swedish people its determination to maintain toward all belligerents absolute neutrality.

The present whereabouts of Folke Cronholm, the former Swedish Chargé d'Affaires at Mexico City, mentioned in the correspondence recently given out in Washington as having been employed by the German Minister to Mexico to convey information to the Berlin Foreign Office, is unknown to the Swedish Foreign Office. He was placed on the unattached list on his recall from Mexico last December and got no other post.

The reasons for the recall are not specified, but the tone of the newspaper statements concerning it intimates that his retirement was not without cause, although the Government, it is stated, has no knowledge of the suggestion that a German decoration should be given him for his services or that this should be conferred secretly.

The Conservative newspapers maintain that the date of the recall and the circumstances of it are sufficient to absolve the present Government from any responsibility for his acts or attitude. The press otherwise devotes little comment to his case.

The chief concern displayed by the Conservative organs is as to the effect of the recent disclosures upon the elections. They attempt for this reason to represent the affair as exaggerated in importance and as a provocative attempt on the part of the Anglo-American press to influence internal affairs in Sweden. They call on the electors to disregard the disclosures and to maintain inner unity against the external pressure and Socialist aspersions.

ITALIANS START A BALKAN DRIVE

Army Moving Eastward Through Albania and Menaces Bulgarian Right Flank.

ALARM MANIFESTED IN SOFIA

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—An official cablegram received here from Rome today indicates that the Italian military forces, while carrying forward their great offensive against the Austrian front west and northwest of Trieste, are about to open an offensive in the Balkans. The dispatch states that the Italian troops in Albania are pushing the enemy back along the Vojusa River in Albania, and that this latter military activity is causing considerable concern to the Bulgarians, who are beginning to make large movements of troops.

According to the dispatch the Austrians are losing heavily in their counterattacks on the Italian front in the vicinity of San Gabriele without being able to wrest from the Italians their newly-won positions. Meanwhile the Italians are making preparations for a continuation of their offensive beyond San Gabriele. The text of the cablegram follows:

"The Austrians are continuing their counterattacks against the Italian positions on the San Gabriele. All these attacks have thus far utterly failed, in spite of the enormous forces the enemy has launched against the Italian defenses. Up to Sept. 17 no fewer than twenty Austrian regiments have attacked the new Italian positions on the mountain with no success.

"The Italians are holding the part of San Gabriele which protects the access to the plain of Gorizia and to the Frigidor Valley. The Italian offensive is not to be considered at all as ended. The counterattacks are costing the Austrians tremendous losses, while Italian preparations are in course for attacking the Austrian positions beyond the San Gabriele.

"While the troops of General Cadorna are fighting victoriously on the Bainsizza Plateau, Italian troops are also operating in the Balkans. The Italians are pushing the enemy back along the Vojusa, and their activities are causing such concern to the enemy command that large movements of troops, and especially of Bulgars, have been observed behind the lines."

500,000 Italians in Albania.

While heretofore Italy's participation in the Balkan adventure has been confined principally to engineering and police work, both in Albania and Epirus, and to a little fighting with the 10,000 men who form part of General Sarrail's force on the Macedonian front, she has for more than a year had an army considerably exceeding half a million men between Aviona, on the coast, and Monastir, in the interior, where it links up with the Serbian-French-British line in Macedonia.

Part of this great army is stationed in Albania, where, on June 3, its commander, General Ferrero, proclaimed the independence of that country under the protection of Italy. The rest is under the command of General Piacentini, one of the ablest of Italy's strategic engineers; but it has been reported in Rome that the actual field operations, when they begin, will be directed by General Ameglio, who distinguished himself in Tripoli.

The Italians arrived in force at Avlona in December, 1915. The conditions of the country prevented them from joining the Franco-British expeditionary force, retreating on Saloniki. Only last Spring did they link up with that force, which by then had expanded its line into Serbian Macedonia and taken Monastir.

Events, principally political, have kept Piacentini's army comparatively inactive for nearly two years. But while it has done little fighting it has performed marvels of engineering work. It has built a broad road 125 miles long from Avlona to Monastir, so that no longer are the reinforcements and supplies for General Sarrail's army obliged to face the submarine dangers of the Mediterranean and the Aegean Seas. They come over land from France, pass through Italy, and reach Avlona across the Strait of Otranto, which is as closely guarded from submarine attack as is the Strait of Dover.

One of the greatest transportation victories of the war was achieved by Italy from Taranto, Brindisi, and Otranto to Avlona in December, 1915, and January, 1916, when she employed 250 steamers in conveying thither 260,000 men and 100 steamers loaded with 800,000 hundredweight of material and disembarked them all at Avlona without the loss of a ship or man.

With the contraction of Sarrail's lines around Saloniki the Avlona army began to build roads and to occupy the towns in southern Albania and in Epirus, and finally established a line of communication with garrison posts across the northern part of old Greece to the Aegean, which sufficiently protected the Saloniki army of the Allies from an attack by Greek loyalists.

At the Paris military council of the Allies, held in the last week in July, a definite plan of operation in the Balkans was decided on. Favored by the adhesion of the Venizelos Government, Italy with the other Allies then withdrew from old Greece and Greek Epirus.

Few Teutons Now on This Front.

The malaria season, which prevents military operations in the lowlands of the Balkans, is now closed. Whether or not Italy is to take the initiative in a Macedonian campaign in an attempt to turn the right flank of the Bulgars in Albania is not known. What is known, however, is that nearly all the German and Austrian troops have little by little been retired from this front—even in the towns of Serbia and Albania the waning authority of Austria is so weak that revolts of civilians have become frequent.

The Vojusa River, along which the Italians have begun operations, rises in the centre of Greek Epirus and flows in a northwesterly direction, crossing and adhering to the Aviona-Monastir Highway and finally enters the Adriatic fifteen miles north of Avlona. This region of Albania is also pierced by another highway—Old Roman Road—which runs from Durazzo, sixty miles north of Aviona, to Monastir, and the western part is in the possession of the Bulgars.

Berat, which the Bulgars also hold, is between the northern and the southern roads to Monastir, about thirty-five miles from each. Berat is reached from the north by one road, from Elbaran, on the Durazzo-Monastir road, and from the south, on Italian side, by two—one from Avlona and one from Tepeleni. Through the triagle thus formed flows the Vojusa.

CADORNA WARNS CIVILIANS.

Says Weakness Behind Lines Will Be Considered Treason.

ROME, Sept. 17.—Evidence of a new attitude of the Ministry toward internal disturbances such as have arisen over the food situation is shown in General Cadorna's message to a political group at Milan, this being the first reference by the General on civil affairs since the war. The message follows:

"Any weakness behind the lines at this moment will be considered treason. We are all armed now with the will to conquer and victory is at hand. All classes and all parties must remember that Italy knows only one way."

Parliament, when it meets in mid-October, according to the Giornale d'Italia, is expected to pass energetic measures to repress international sabotage, an instance of which was the loss of a shipload of wheat off Civita Vecchia due to improper means of unloading.

The Popolo Romano declares that Italy is the last of all the war countries that should be affected by the food shortage, adding: "Although poorer than England and France, and because the protracted war has brought suffering to the people Italy should not let her troubles appear too much on the surface nor attempt political demonstrations or violence."

The principal excuse for the present unrest being the bread shortage, the newspaper says the Government purposes to issue bread cards on Oct. 11, limiting the individual consumption to a half pound daily since the wheat harvest was short 10,000,000 quintals. The recent attacks on the Ministry were based on the Turin incidents, the Government being charged with negligence in not having foreseen the shortage and forced Italian farmers to produce more wheat, but it appears, says the paper, that the shortage was due to the lack of workmen in the field. However, the Socialists and the Austro-German propagandists and peace parties seized on the situation in the hope of causing more disturbances among the civil population.

REPEL AUSTRIAN ATTACKS.

Italians Hold On to New Positions on Bainsizza Plateau.

ROME, Sept. 17.—Austro-Hungarian troops by four successive counterattacks attempted on Saturday night to reconquer the ground they had lost on Friday to the Italians on the Bainsizza Plateau. General Cadorna reports that all the assaults were repulsed. The text of the official statement reads:

In the Trentino, in Giudicaria Valley, enemy parties attempting to approach our advanced posts were dispersed with rifle fire.

In Carnia greater activity of the enemy artillery provoked brisk reaction by our artillery in the Upper But and Fella Valley.

On the Bainsizza Plateau Saturday night the enemy attempted with four successive counterattacks to reoccupy the ground he had lost the day before. He was constantly repulsed by the defenders, who captured 73 prisoners, including two officers.

AIMING TO ASSURE PRO-TEUTON POLAND

STEPS ARE TO BE GRADUAL

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 17, (via London.)—The recent imperial proclamations issued at Berlin and Vienna and the simultaneously published decrees of the German and Austrian Governors of the occupied Polish provinces formerly under Russian domination, establishing a temporary Council of Regency in Poland, are met with reservation by the conservative and Pan German elements. Liberal and democratic circles in Germany seem willing to give the new order of things a chance.

Count Adam Ronikier, one of the foremost Polish leaders, who frequently took part in the conferences with the Berlin authorities that preceded the new proclamations, says:

"An important turning point in Polish history has been reached. The transition of the Governmental power into Polish hands will impress the Polish people with the honesty of the Central Powers in their determination to make a sincere ally of our nation. This seems to be the only possible basis for a durable agreement, and the near future will prove that a grant of the largest possible measure of political freedom is bound to remove all unpleasant friction in Polish relations in the Central Powers.

"He who has observed the various moods in Poland since her occupation will be assured that no unbridgable chasms and no deep-rooted prejudices divide the Polish Nation from the Central Powers, but merely passing frictions connected with the war and the provisional administration have caused the unpleasantness.

"The new formation of a national administration will prove that Poland has an abundance of those forces necessary to build up a national structure, and, true to tradition, the newly obtained liberty will be used only to secure for all citizens, without discrimination in race or faith, satisfactory political conditions. The chaos existing in the social and political life of Poland will cease as soon as the period of reconstruction and positive works begins. Despite contrary efforts, all classes cherish one common wish—to live in well-ordered circumstances and under self-rule.

"Academic controversies will be silenced now because all attention will be given to the reconstruction of our own national institutions. For this purpose the Poles must abandon the sphere of political theory and enter a life of activity on a realistic basis.

"Only those Polish politicians will be successful who clearly conceive that Polish interests are in accordance with those of the Central Powers. They know already that Poland belongs to the west, and can go hand in hand with the west. All that they lacked until now was evidence to convince the whole nation of the good intentions of the Central Powers.

"The Jewish question in Poland is rapidly approaching a happy solution, thanks to the attitude of the State Council, in conjunction with influential groups and parties, which have decided that equal rights should be granted to all. This also applies to other races with whom the Poles will have to live and collaborate. Free Poland will deny to no people or race the right to decide its own destiny."

One of the principal candidates for the State Council of three is Archbishop Kokoffski of Warsaw, who, if he should be finally selected, would probably preside over that body. Other candidates mentioned are the present head of the Warsaw Municipal Government, Prince Lubomirski; Count Ostroffski, and Vice Marshal Pomorski.

It is uncertain as yet who will be the future Polish Prime Minister, but the former Austro-Hungarian Ambassador at Washington, Count Tarnowski, is no longer considered a candidate for the position.

BELGIAN WINS FIGHT AT FOUR-MILE HEIGHT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—A brilliant fight won by a Belgian aviator at an elevation of four miles, from which he brought down his German opponent within the Belgian lines, is described in a statement issued tonight by the Belgian Legation based on official information.

The victorious aviator was Adjutant Maurice Medaetz. The name of his German adversary is not disclosed. Medeatz was at an elevation of approximately 20,000 feet, over Dixmude, when he attacked the German plane with his machine gun and fatally wounded the German aviator.

The exploit is described in the statement given out by the Belgian Legation as follows:

"The Belgian aviator, Adjutant Maurice Medaetz, won a brilliant victory in the air on Sept. 11 and brought down within the Belgian lines one of the largest and newest German airplanes. About midday Medaetz made an ascension, in a Nieuport airplane, to nearly 10,000 feet over the region of Dixmude. Seeing no enemy, he continued his search and climbed to about 15,000 feet, when his attention was attracted by shrapnel bursting some 5,000 feet above him.

"He mounted quickly to where the shells were bursting, and suddenly perceived a large German airplane trying to escape from the fire of the Belgian anti-aircraft guns. Arriving over Oostkerke, the Belgian aviator succeeded in dominating his adversary, who declined combat and fled toward the German lines, closely pursued by the Belgian, as far as the neighborhood of Zarren.

"Finding that the German either would not fight or was endeavoring to lead him into a trap, the Belgian decided to try a ruse. Making a half turn, Medaetz started slowly toward the Belgian trenches, keeping at an altitude of 20,000 feet. To his great joy he saw the German turn and follow him.

"Keeping above his adversary, Medaetz continued to watch him until they were over Dixmude, then, turning quickly, the Belgian aviator attacked the German plane and opened fire with his machine gun. He could see that the German observer, severely wounded, had sunk in his seat, the upper part of his body hanging over the fuselage, and that the German machine was evidently out of control.

"The Belgian Nieuport was approaching the enemy at such a rate of speed that Medaetz had only time to fire a few shots point blank and to make a perilous loop to avoid a fatal collision before the German airplane, riddled by bullets, crashed down within the Belgian lines. The enemy pilot and observer were mangled.

"The German airplane was found to be an enormous Rumpler of the latest model, No. 2,603, put into service at Johannisthal Aug. 9, 1917, propelled by a 260 horse power Mercedes motor and armed with two machine guns."

RAID BY BRITISH SEAPLANES.

German Destroyer Hit and Trawler Sunk Off Belgian Coast.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—British naval seaplanes on Saturday dropped bombs on German destroyers and trawlers along the Belgian coast between Ostend and Blankenberghe, near Zeebrugge, hitting one destroyer and sinking at least one trawler. An official statement issued by the Admiralty today says:

"Naval aircraft made a bombing raid Saturday on enemy shipping between Blankenberghe and Ostend. Bombs were dropped on destroyers and trawlers, or drifters. One large destroyer was hit amidships and one, probably two, of a group of four trawlers was sunk.

"In the evening, during a late patrol, one of our seaplanes was attacked by two seaplanes, which were engaged by our escorting airplanes, and one was shot down in flames, the other being chased toward some enemy destroyers.

"About 10 A. M. yesterday our patrol engaged a formation of enemy aircraft, destroying one, and probably two."

GERMANY RESUMES PRESSURE ON HOLLAND

Proposes Higher Price for Coal Than British Supply Would Cost.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 17.—The Volk is informed by the German Legation in Holland that Germany is ready to continue the export of coal to Holland if the Dutch nation grants credit to stabilize the value of the mark, or will pay such a high price that the payment will insure the stability of the mark. The paper points out that England's offer of coal does not force Holland to pay more than the price in England.

The Dutch-German coal trade has been the subject of considerable discussion recently. Germany has not been shipping the usual quantities of the fuel, it is reported, in the hope of forcing Holland, on the eve of Winter, to comply with her wishes

VANADIS'S SURVIVORS HERE.

Describe Sinking of C. K. G. Billings's Former Yacht by Explosions.

Details of the sinking of the Vanadis through an explosion of its oil tank five days ago 160 miles east of Cape Breton were brought here yesterday by the survivors of the crew sent out by the Russian Government, purchaser of the vessel, to take her to Archangel. The Vanadis before the war was C. K. G. Billings's steam yacht.

According to a naval Lieutenant in charge of the party, the crew numbered sixty-four, and all had returned except a fireman, who was left in the hospital at Halifax suffering from oil burns.

The Lieutenant said that the explosion occurred just before midnight and the blazing oil spread so rapidly that the crew had barely time to get away from the yacht in lifeboats. The watch on deck saw a sheet of flame shoot up from the hold directly after the explosion and thought at first that a torpedo had struck the vessel. This idea was quickly dispelled when all the oil tanks exploded rapidly, followed by sheets of flame. The fireman who was caught below by the blazing oil was rescued by two shipmates and carried to a lifeboat.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The office of the American Consular Agency at Dunkirk, France, was destroyed by a German bomb on Sept. 7. The State Department was so informed in an official cablegram today, which said that the archives of the agency were saved and the Consular Agent was not injured. He is Benjamin Morel, a French citizen, a ship broker.

SOCIALIST HOPE IN RUSSIA.

Stockholm Committee Warns Against Obstructing New Regime.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 17.—The Organizing Committee of the Stockholm Socialist Conference asserts in a report that Stockholm was closely connected with the revolution in Russia and expresses the hope that Russian comrades will close their ranks and depend upon Russian democracy to solve the present crisis there.

"Working classes in all countries," the report adds, "hail with enthusiasm the Russian Emperor's fall and condemn the counter-revolutionary efforts."

The committee expresses the hope that German and Austrian Socialists will protest energetically against projects and tactics tending to weaken the Russian revolution and to make Germany an accomplice of the counter-revolution.

Holding that present circumstances prevent the giving of a definite reply regarding the date of the proposed Stockholm conference, the committee resolved to continue its activities, to publish a collection of documents from adherents, and also to issue a general report. It also decided to send, if the organizations concerned were willing, delegates to the new Inter-Allied Conference.

The committee asserted that the Stockholm conference must inaugurate a new era in the struggle of the proletariat against imperialism by the re-establishment of an internationale capable of common action, and concluded:

"The working class desires this war to be the last, to democratize the nations, to prevent new conflicts, and, above all, to create, by guarantees of right and arbitration, a pacific, disarmed world on land and sea and a Europe of democracy and true liberty. The conference is now delayed, but for every organized proletariat the watchword still is, 'To Stockholm!'"

RUSSIANS HERE SEE HOPE IN REPUBLIC

Believe Kerensky's Action Will Enable Him to Consolidate Conflicting Elements.

Russians in New York who endeavor to keep in close touch with the situation in Petrograd regard Kerensky's declaration of a republic as a definite step toward the consolidation of many of the conflicting elements that have threatened to rend Russia asunder with their dissensions and clamors. It was confidently believed yesterday that Kerensky, instead of waiting for the General Assembly to formulate a plan of permanent government, was compelled to anticipate the will of the people and declare a republic at once in order to quell the growing fear that a counter-revolution would bring the exponents of monarchy and reactionism into power.

The public had become panicky, it was said, with the outbreaks of the Bolsheviki on July 17 and 18, when the extremists in a series of street demonstrations threatened to overturn the Provisional Government and create a situation that would force Russia into a separate peace with Germany. The crisis, however, was reached with the revolt of General Kornilloff, which the Kerensky government itself had denounced as an attempt upon the part of the reactionary powers to rob the people of the fruits of the revolution. Even though the republic was achieved by a mere stroke of the pen, it is accepted by Russian opinion here not as a mere ephemeral and paper transaction, but a reality, created and backed by the demands of the majority of the Russian classes.

"Kerensky in declaring Russia to be a republic," said Sigmund Sionim, editor of the Russian-American Journal of Commerce, "expressed explicitly the will of the great majority of the people that Russia is to be a republic and nothing else. Kerensky and, for that matter, his associates in the Cabinet are revolutionists of too thorough a type to dare make such a declaration without being absolutely sure that in doing so they are fulfilling the ardent desires of all the elements that are best in Russia.

"Now that the question of the kind of government which Russia is to have is settled, other political questions that have stirred up trouble and dissensions will lose their acuteness for the time being, and will be retired to the background of the public mind until the war is over. Of course, it does not mean that from now on the Kerensky government will have easy sailing, but it gives the people sufficient assurance that they need no longer fear such occurrences as the outbreak of the Bolsheviks on July 17 and 18 and the revolt of Korniloff."

It was the opinion of Mr. Sionim and also of A. J. Sack, head of the Russian Bureau of Information, that when the General Assembly convened in November or December the delegates would make the republic a federation of sovereign States similar in many ways to that of the United States. Poland possibly might become independent from Russia, but the Ukraine and Finland would remain in the federation.

The republic will have a difficult time, however, in standing on its legs," said Mr. Sionim, "unless the United States comes to its support at once. The key to the Russian situation is right here in this country. The uppermost danger which now threatens Russia is hunger. The armies will pull together, and so will the people, but they cannot do so unless they have enough to eat. And they will not have enough to eat unless the transportation facilities are improved, whereby the food supplies can be moved from the centres of production to the centres of consumption. With the approach of Winter the question of food and other material supplies looms larger than ever. Since the Government in Washington has recognized this fact through its several commissions in Russia, no doubt no effort will be spared to ameliorate want and hardships in this direction.

Mr. Sack in analyzing the situation said:

"The great amount of work involved in creating the machinery of a General Assembly that would be thoroughly representative of the Russian people makes it a matter of at least four or five months before such an assembly could be held. This being the case, Kerensky undoubtedly found himself unable to dispel the fear of a counter-revolution without giving the people some kind of immediate assurance. He is now freer and stronger to act than ever, and the people, with their minds finally set at rest with reference to the question of a republic, will certainly realize now that they have something worth fighting for and something that they cannot keep unless they bend all their efforts to the task of crushing the German menace."

DENIES KERENSKY WEDDING.

Russian Dancer in London Laughs at Report.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, Sept. 18.—Lydia Kyasht, a Russian dancer, who recently returned to London from a visit to Russia, scouts the report that Kerensky has married Mlle. Timme.

She told a Daily Express reporter that she saw both Timme's husband and Kerensky's wife in Russia five weeks ago, and laughingly asked:

"Do you tell me they are both divorced?"

LEADERS OF ITALY WHO DIRECT ARMY

like the French General, Castelnau, and has a private mass every morning of his life. Before passing from Cadorna to a type of his Generals it might be well to call attention to the fact that he is the only chief commander of any army except the American who has kept his job since the day his country entered the conflict. Judging by his latest success, if nothing else, it is not hard to understand that every Italian regards Cadorna as the Napoleon of the war.

General Cappello.

His General of whom I speak—one of many that I met—is Cappello, commanding the Second Army, who has direct charge of the operations on the Bainsizza Plateau and before Monte San Gabriele. I had dinner with him one night at his headquarters. He made an appointment by telephone for 7:30, and exactly at that hour my auto and his own drew up at the front door from opposite directions. He is a large, brusque man, and I had learned before my arrival that, as he spoke little English, he would not experiment with that language and only had time for correspondents who could converse in his own tongue or in French. He shook hands in abrupt fashion, said that he would eat in five minutes, and turned on his heel toward the washroom, where he and four officers, comprising his entire staff, solemnly took turns cleaning and drying their hands.

Cappello talked freely during the dinner and apparently there was no subject concerning the present offensives or entire war on which he had any secrets. The fact that I was accredited to the Italian front was sufficient for me to have his confidence, and he told me dozens of things I have been permitted to use in the dispatches of this series. So there is no need to quote him now and I give further brief consideration only to the dinner.

That dinner was the only occasion I have ever experienced in the entire war when at a General's mess we have dined with exactly the same simplicity as if we had been in a trench. And somehow it struck me as very proper and very fine. The General commanding the crack shock army of the Italian forces had no time for a "menu," not even for cigarettes and liqueurs. When the meal was finished, he bade me a simple good night and then said something to an officer in Italian that I did not understand. This officer followed me out. As I was leaving he said: "The General just told me that you have a standing invitation to lunch or dine at his mess whenever you happen to be passing this way."

An Air Raid Alarm.

I will tell just one incident of one more Italian who is helping to bring about a military victory that would end the war. It is not much of a story, but it illustrates the "no frills and all business" of the Italian war methods, as well as showing how the real Italian leaders keep themselves concentrated right up at the front. One night where the Commando Supremo is located there was an alarm of an air raid. The raid did not materialize, but alarms are frequent when the moon is at the full, and the orders are that the population shall immediately congregate on the lowest floor of buildings, no matter at what hour of the night. I was asleep in a hotel room, but no matter, I was routed out and ordered below. I went down.

It was a strange, disheveled crowd of guests assembled in the hotel kitchen, that room being chosen as the safest place. Sirens were blowing and signal guns making a terrific din. Several persons in our number were plainly nervous. There were several actresses of the theatre of the army, who were to give a performance for the soldiers the following day, and who were in varied stages of dishabile and panic. A brigade General in full uniform was solemnly going about reassuring them. There were several half-dressed officers, and a few civilians and hotel employes.

On a stone bench in the centre of the kitchen was a little, rather weazened, old man, quite dressed, except that he had omitted to put on his collar. He wore a white starched bosom shirt with a prominent old collar button. He was calm and was engaged in the occupation of chewing a toothpick. On one side of him sat a chambermaid and on the other side the proprietor of the hotel. That little weazened old man was Boselli, the Premier of Italy. Somehow the entire scene, with him in the middle, struck me as democracy in its finest flower.

ITALIANS WILL FLY FOUR WAR MACHINES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Plans have been virtually perfected for the flights which members of the Italian aviation mission will make from Newport News, Va., to Washington and New York in demonstration of the airplanes brought to this country.

The flights will start from Langley Field, near Newport News. It is planned to fly with four of the Italian machines this week to Washington and return to Langley Field, while next week the same four machines are to fly to New York. The Italian pilots visited Washington today to select a landing site, and will go to New York to select a landing site there.

The airplanes will represent four different types, the Caproni, the Sia, or Fiat, the Pomilio, and the Macchi. The pilots will be Lieutenants Resnati, Baldioli, Ballerini, and Adamoli. The Caproni is 450 horse power, like the other three planes a biplane, and is equipped with three engines. The plan is for it to make the flight to Washington with ten passengers. The other machines will carry one passenger each, except the Macchi, which will carry only the pilot. The Caproni is a bombarding plane, and the Macchi a fighting machine; the other machines are used in reconnoissance work.

There are nine Italian fighting aircraft at Langley Field. One is a huge Caproni triplane waiting for the hangar to be completed before it is assembled. This machine will carry three tons, accommodating easily twenty-five passengers. It has 700 horse-power, and travels ninety miles an hour, this type being used chiefly for bombardment.

By the end of September another shipment of Italian airplanes will have arrived at Langley Field, among them being a Pomilio of 290 horse-power, with a capacity of 157 miles an hour, capable of ascending 10,000 feet in six minutes.

LENS GERMANS DYING IN HIDING PLACES

SMOTHERED BY GAS CLOUDS

Canadians Pour It Into City Till the Members of the Garrison Risk Death in the Open.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 17.—The Germans still hold Lens, but yesterday I saw more closely than I had before how abominable is their position there and how dreadful must be the fate of the men garrisoned in its cellars. Lens is no longer a city: it is a ruin, surrounded with ruins stretching for several miles each side of it, where there were separate little cities self-contained, with their own power stations and pithends, high slag-heaps, and long rows of miners' houses, shops, schools, and gardens.

The Canadian and English troops during the five months of fighting have captured all the outer belt of these mining cities, and their artillery and the enemy's has left nothing of all the neat little houses and mine buildings but a wild orgy of ruin through which I walked yesterday on my way to Hill 70, which the Canadians took by a great assault a few weeks ago.

Lens itself is now no better than its outer suburbs. It is a town of battered houses without roofs and with broken walls leaning against rubbish heaps of brickwork and timber. The enemy sent out a wireless message that the English gunners were destroying French property by bombarding the city, and then made a deep belt of destruction by blowing up long blocks of streets.

After that the British guns completed the ruin, for there was a German garrison in every house, and in this kind of warfare there must be no tenderness of sentiment about bricks and mortar if the enemy is between the walls. So now in Lens the only cover for the Germans and their only chance of safety is below the ground in tunnels and cellars.

Lens Tunnels Are Death Traps.

These are reinforced by concrete and were built by the forced labor of civilians two years and more ago, when the city was menaced by a French attack. Into these tunnels the German garrisons of Lens make their way by night, and in them they live and die.

Many die in them, it is certain, for a tunnel is no more than a death trap when it is blocked at the entrance by the fall of houses or when it collapses by the bombardment of heavy shells, which pierce deep and explode with fearful effect. That has happened, as we know, in many parts of the German line, and recently on the French front whole companies of German soldiers were buried alive in deep caves. It is happening in Lens now, if the same effect be produced by the same power of artillery.

But death comes to the German soldiers there in another way, without any noise and quite invisible and very horrible in its quietude. Many times lately the Canadians have filled the city of Lens with gas that kills and soaks down heavily into the dugouts and tunnels and stifles the men in their sleep, before they have time to stretch out their hands for gas masks, or makes them die with their masks on if they fumble a second too long. The enemy, who was first to use poison gas, should wish to God he had never betrayed his soul by such a thing, for it has come back upon him as a frightful retribution, and in Lens, in those deep, dark cellars below the ruins the German soldiers must live in terror and be afraid to sleep. Yesterday, when I went to that neighborhood I saw four German soldiers who had come out into the open, preferring to risk death there rather than stay in their dungeon. They appeared for a minute around the corner of some brick stacks in Cité St. Auguste.

I was watching the German lines there and staring at the ruined houses, slag-heaps, and broken water towers of Harnes and Annay, and the outer fields of the mining city. The church towers in both those villages still stand, though a little damaged, and some of the red roofs are still intact. The German lines were away beyond the strip of No Man's Land, and here not a soul was to be seen—no trace of life in all this land of death—until suddenly I saw those four figures come stealthily up behind the brickstacks. They stood up quite straight and looked toward the British ground, and then after a second crouched low, so that only their heads showed above a little dip in the ground. A few minutes later I saw two more Germans. They ran at a jog trot along a hedge outside Cité St. Auguste and made a bolt through a gap. It was strange to see them, as if they were visitors from another planet, for in this district of Lens no man shows his body above ground unless he is careless of quick death, and one may stare for days at empty houses and broken mine shafts and great black slag-heaps without seeing any living thing.

Not a Soul Left in Artois Town Systematically Shelled by Germans.

BY PHILIP GIBBS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Sept. 15, (Delayed).—The harvests of France and Flanders have been gathered in, and already the plow, driven by men too old to fight, or by boys too small and young, or by peasant women whose men are somewhere near St. Quentin or Verdun, is turning up the stubble in the fields and making a brown landscape where three weeks ago it was all gold and bronze. The trees are turning brown also, deepening to a reddish tint in all the woods between Boulogne and the battlefields, where there are only dead trees. Round about Peperinghe the trailing hops have been pulled down from the poles already stripped in places by last month's gale, and the sticks are all bare.

In the wind there is a smell of moisture and mist and the first faint sniff of rotting leaves. It is the Autumn touch—the Autumn touch of a war in which some of us have seen four harvests gathered into French barns and four Winters come. It makes one feel a bit sad, that thought. It puts the Autumn touch for a second or two into the souls of men coming back from leave, as I came back with some of them two days ago.

It is a queer thing to walk through a big town out of which all life has gone, and queer to me especially in Armentières, because I knew it not long ago when there were many women and girls about the streets, and when one could take one's choice of tea shops, though only 1,800 yards away from the German line, and get excellent little dinners in more than one restaurant. Now, in the town of tears to any people who once lived there, the tea shops have been smashed to bits and the women and girls are gone, unless their bodies lie in the cellars beneath the ruins. The agony of Armentières began at the end of June, when the enemy first began to bombard it with systematic violence, and, though there is no life left in it, the broken houses are still battered by more shells when the enemy's gunners have nothing else to do.

Armentieres Systematically Destroyed.

When I walked through its streets yesterday I saw a witness of the horror that had passed. The German bombardment began quite suddenly one night, and old women and girls and children were in their beds. They rushed down into the cellars, not for the first time, because in nearly three years of war stray shells had often come into the town, but never like this. These were not random shells, scattered here and there. They came with steady and frightful violence into every part of the town, sweeping down street after street, blowing houses to dust, knocking fronts off shops, playing fantastic, horrible tricks of choosing and leaving, as shell fire does in any town of this size. There were gas shells among the high explosives, and their poison filtered down into the cellars. Fire broke out in one of the squares beyond the old Church of St. Vaast, and the houses were gutted by flames.

The fires were out when I walked there yesterday, and the Church of St. Vaast was surrounded by its own ruins—great blocks of masonry hurled from its dome and buttresses amid a mass of broken glass. Inside there is tragic ruin, and rows of cane chairs lie in wild chaos among broken pillars and piled stones. The pipes of the great organ have been flung out of their framework, but, curiously, the side altars with figures of apostles and saints and the central figure of the Sacred Heart have hardly been touched and stand unscathed amid this great destruction. Armentières is the scene of a tragedy to its civilian population which makes one's heart ache with new revolt against this monstrous cruelty of war upon the innocent and helpless.

It is easy to see what happened during those days and nights of terror some weeks ago. I looked into the blown-out fronts of little shops and houses and saw how everything had been abandoned in that rush of women and children to the cellars. In spite of the wreckage of the upper stories and of the walls about them, some of the rooms were intact. Here were the remains of an estaminet with its cash box on the bar counter, and games such as soldiers love—dominoes and cards and quoits and bagatelle—set out as though for an evening entertainment. Here was a chemist's shop with many bottles unbroken on the shelves, though most of the house was blown across the street. I looked through a hole in the wall of the drawing room with its piano standing amid a litter of broken furniture, as though some madman had wreaked his fury on sofa and chairs.

Risked Lives to Save Women.

But it was in the cellars that the pitiful drama had been played—in those cellars down which I peered, wondering whether any poor bodies lay there still. Shells had pierced down to some of the women hiding in them; poison gas came to choke some of them. Rescue parties of the Royal Army Medical Corps went into Armentières to get the poor creatures away, and risked their lives scores of times on each journey they made. It is an amazing thing that, even then, in spite of their terror and agony and wounds, many old women could hardly be made to leave the town, and clung desperately to their homes, though these had fallen down on top of them.

Outside of Armentières yesterday I met one of the R. A. M. C. lads who helped in this rescue work. He had received the Military Medal for it, and he told me of his trouble with two old women when things were at the worst. Neither had a rag of clothing on except the blankets he had wrapped around them as they lay on the stretchers; but when his attention wandered from them, owing to the shells which burst close to the ambulance, one of these old dames scrambled up and ran off down the street. He went after her and on his return found that the other had given him the slip.

Yesterday, apart from the popping of the anti-aircraft guns and the drone of the British airplanes, it was all quiet in Armentières, and I walked through the silent streets over broken bricks and glass, and was startled by the utter death of the town. For this quietude and ruin of a town that one has seen full of life gives one a sinister sensation, and one is frightened by one's loneliness.

DRILL FOR CLEMENCEAU.

American Infantrymen in Mimic Combat in Ex-Premier's Honor.

AMERICAN TRAINING CAMP IN FRANCE, Sept. 16, (Delayed.)—American infantrymen of the expeditionary army held their first field day today since their landing in France, with Georges Clemenceau, former French Premier, as the guest of honor. A battalion of an infantry regiment gave demonstrations of machine gun, rifle, and bayonet assaults, concluding with a typical American athletic program, including 100-yard dashes, tugs of war, and boxing bouts.

The entire battalion that participated in the program had luncheon in the open air. M. Clemenceau being the guest of General Sibert and the French military officers messing with the American Brigadier Generals. In an address to the American officers M. Clemenceau said:

"I feel highly honored at the privilege of addressing you. I know America well, having lived in your country, which I have always admired, and I am deeply impressed at the presence of an American army on French soil in defense of liberty, right, and civilization against barbarians. My mind compares this event to the Pilgrim Fathers, who landed on Plymouth Rock seeking liberty and finding it. Now their children's children are returning to fight for the liberty of France and the world."

Later M. Clemenceau addressed the entire battalion, saying:

"You men have come to France with distinguished natives. You came, not because you were compelled to come, but because you wished to come. Your country always possessed love and friendship for France. Now you are at home here, and every French house is open to you. You are not like the people of other nations, because your motives are devoid of personal interest and because you are filled with ideals. You have heard of the hardships before you, but the record of your countrymen proves that you will acquit yourselves nobly, earning the gratitude of France and the world."

BRITISH KILL MANY GERMANS IN RAIDS

FRENCH BOMB STUTTGART

Colmar and Bases Near Metz Among Points Attacked by Raiding Air Squadrons.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Troops of English and Scottish regiments made successful raids last night on the German trenches in the Arras and Somme regions of the battlefront in France. Many Germans were killed in their dugouts, and prisoners were taken.

British artillery was active today in the Ypres sector. A German attempt to raid British trenches near Lombaertzyde was beaten back.

Airplanes on both sides were busy. The British dropped 143 bombs on a German airdrome and billets, and 50 German air bombs fell within the British lines. Six German airplanes were destroyed, and eight British machines are missing.

The text of the afternoon statement follows:

In the course of the night successful raids were carried out by English and Scottish regiments against the German positions southeast of Gavrelle, east of Epehy, and in the neighborhood of the Arras-Douai Railway. Several prisoners were taken and two machine guns were captured.

Many of the enemy were killed in their dugouts. Dumps and trench mortar emplacements were destroyed with explosives.

Artillery and Aircraft Active.

The official report issued tonight says:

This morning the enemy attempted to raid our trenches south of Lombaertzyde under a covering bombardment. The hostile party was received with a heavy fire by our troops and repulsed with loss before reaching our trenches.

Our artillery was active during the day in the Ypres sector. The enemy's artillery activity was somewhat less marked except in the area south of Lens and in the neighborhood of Nieuport.

From Sunday the visibility has improved, and a good deal of successful artillery work and photography has been accomplished. During the fine intervals the enemy aircraft were active again, being greatly favored by a strong west wind. In the course of the morning hostile machines dropped fifty bombs behind our lines. Very little damage was done.

Our airplanes dropped 143 bombs on a German airdrome and hostile billets and fired many thousands of rounds from their machine guns at various targets on the ground. In particular, a body of 2,000 German infantry was engaged with machine gun fire from a height of 100 feet and scattered.

Six German airplanes were brought down in combat and four others were driven down out of control. In addition, one hostile machine was brought down in our lines by anti-aircraft gun-fire. Eight of our airplanes are missing.

French Aviators Work Wide Havoc.

PARIS, Sept. 17.—French aviators have been particularly active in the last two days, having dropped 33,000 rounds of projectiles on enemy establishments scattered over a wide area, including barracks and factories at Stuttgart, an aviation camp at Colmar, Alsace, and military bases south of Metz. In aerial fighting the French yesterday brought down six German machines and forced six more to descend.

Tonight's official report says:

On the right bank of the Meuse both artilleries were quite active, particularly in the region north of Hill 344 and the Cauriéres Wood. We repulsed an enemy surprise attack in the sector of the Rhone-Rhine Canal.

Yesterday four German airplanes and one Drachen were brought down by our pilots. A sixth enemy machine was brought down by the fire of our special guns. Finally, six other German machines were badly damaged in engagements with our aviators and fell inside their own lines.

Our bombing airplanes were particularly active in the day of Sept. 16 and the night of Sept. 16-17. Numerous raids were carried out by our machines, which dropped 15,000 kilos (33,000 pounds) of projectiles on enemy establishments, including barracks and factories at Stuttgart, an aviation camp at Colmar, depots at Lens and Ehlen, military establishments south of Metz, the railway station at Thionville, factories at Ueckingen, (?) and the Saarburg station.

The text of the afternoon statement follows:

The night was marked by quite violent artillery actions, notably in the region of Froidmont Farm, to the west of Craonne, and in the sector of Massiges.

After a violent bombardment, the Germans delivered an attack upon our positions in the Forest of Apremont. Some detachments of the enemy which succeeded in gaining a foothold in our advanced trench elements were ejected after spirited fighting. Our line was fully re-established.

In the Vosges a surprise attack of the enemy upon our posts at Violu was checked by our fire.

The text of the Belgian report follows:

In the last forty-eight hours our artillery has shelled the enemy defensive organizations near Woumen, as well as his cantonments at Praet, Bosch, Keverm, Beerst, Eessen, Roggeveld, and Searrem. The enemy artillery reacted only feebly. Numerous bombs have been dropped on our cantonments. Our aviators were active on Sept. 16.

Berlin Reports Drumfire in Flanders.

BERLIN, Sept. 17, (via London, British Admiralty Per Wireless Press.)—Drumfire of the most violent intensity was in progress yesterday in some sectors of the Flanders front, says today's Army Headquarters statement, but the British made no attack. The statement reads:

Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht—Good visibility favored the development of lively artillery activity. In Flanders the artillery duel on the coast and in some sectors between Houthoist Wood and the Lys increased several times to the most violent drumfire. British infantry attacks did not materialize, as there were only local engagements between the lines, as the result of which prisoners fell into our hands.

Northeast of Arras strong British reconnoitring detachments pressed forward and at some points even reached our lines, whence they were driven back by our rapid counterthrusts.

Near St. Quentin also the enemy prepared by bursts of fire for attacks by his reconnoitring parties, which were everywhere repulsed.

Front of the German Crown Prince—Along the Aisne, notably northeast of Soissons, and also in the Champagne and before Verdun, the fighting activity of our own and the enemy's artillery increased many times to great intensity. The French lost prisoners in several reconnoitring engagements.

Two airplanes were shot down by one of our pursuing echelons from enemy aerial squadrons which bombarded Colmar twice yesterday. In addition to these the enemy lost sixteen airplanes.

The supplementary official statement issued by the German War Office tonight reads:

In Flanders on Monday there was stronger firing activity.

CONSTANT ATTRITION PROCESS

British Exact Toll in Daily Bombardments and Air Raids.

By The Associated Press.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, Sept. 17.—There must always be periods of comparative quiet when big spectacular offensives are lacking on the great fighting fronts. The recent days have constituted one of these periods along the British lines in the western theatre, and to the outside world, reading the Commander in Chief's laconic "There is nothing of importance to report," or a brief account of seemingly inconsequential raids, it may appear that hostilities virtually have ceased.

But this conclusion is far from correct, for the grim business of war continues perpetually. Hourly the big British guns hurl their thousands of tons of metal, carrying death and destruction into the German defenses day and night great squadrons of aviators guide their machines over the German lines and dump their cargoes of high explosives on important positions, and continually small bodies of British infantry are reaching out into the German trenches and snatching back prisoners after playing havoc with bombs among the dugouts and mortar emplacements.

Of course there is retaliation by the enemy, but the advantage rests with the Allies in this constant hammering process. It is the steady dropping of water which is wearing away the stone.

The terrible toll of men being exacted from the enemy ranks by the artillery and the continual drainage of their war supplies by the destruction caused by shells and bombs are having their effect. The German wall of defense is still strong, but it is weaker than it was, and sooner or later must crumble if the allied methods of wearing down are continued. It needs no military expert to figure this out. Every Tommy along the line is aware of it.

Persons far removed from the war zone, perhaps, do not consider military operations from an abstract point of view often enough. That is, they conceive progress only when some city has fallen or an advance has been made over a great stretch of territory and thousands of prisoners have been taken. Certainly these big operations appeal to the imagination, but, in viewing them, one should not overlook the inestimable value of the grinding, killing process which never ceases.

This process has been continued by the British steadily since the recent big offensive. The artillery has kept up an almost unceasing thunder along the whole front, and air raids and thrusts by the infantry have been working great destruction in the enemy territory.

Last night's infantry raids are examples of the work being done, much of which is never published to the outside world. English and Scottish regiments about midnight conducted three successful raids. East of Gavrelle, (northeast of Arras,) several prisoners were taken, and a large number of the enemy were killed; five big dugouts were bombed to pieces, and two saps were destroyed. A similar success was achieved south of Arras, several dugouts being demolished and a number of trench mortar emplacements wrecked, besides other damage done.

PUT OFF PACIFIST CASES.

Mrs. Hale and A. E. Whitehouse Will Be Arraigned Today.

HARTFORD, Sept. 17.—The cases of Mrs. Annie Riley Hale of New York and Alfred E. Whitehead of this city, arrested yesterday at a meeting of the Hartford branch of the People's Council of America for Democracy and Peace, which was stopped by the police after Mrs. Hale had spoken in criticism of the President and condemnation of war, were postponed in the police court today until tomorrow. The defendants are held under $500 bonds each on a charge of breach of the peace.

The postponement was on motion of the acting prosecuting attorney, Alexander W. Credon. Professor Henry W. L. Dana of Columbia University, who was to have spoken at the meeting yesterday, was among the number who greeted Mrs. Hale when she came from the Court House today.

DEPUTY IS QUIZZED IN FRENCH SCANDAL

HINTS AT FEE FOR "ADVICE"

"Suspicious Individual" Was in Conference with Him, Official Statement Says.

PARIS, Sept. 17.—An official statement issued tonight from the Chamber of Deputies regarding the affair of M. Turmel, a member of the Chamber, in whose locker were found twenty-five Swiss 1,000-frank bank bills, says:

"M. Deschanel [President of the Chamber], questioned regarding the sum of money found in the locker room of the Chamber, replied that on July 10 he was informed by one of the quaestors that an employe had found the day before in the part of the locker room assigned to Deputy Turmel an open envelope containing 25,000 francs in Swiss bank bills. Soon afterward another quaestor informed M. Deschanel that a suspicious individual came occasionally to the Chamber and conferred with Deputy Turmel in the lobby.

"The quaestor asked that the Minister of the Interior be informed. The individual was watched and the inquiry continued.

"During the Parliamentary recess Deputy Turmel had left Paris on July 7 and had not returned when he was summoned by the officials of the Chamber. Under the circumstances it was decided to continue the inquiry."

Another communication given out at the office of the President of the Chamber reads:

"Deputy Turmel was asked to call at the office of the President of the Chamber this morning. In the presence of the Quaestors he was pressed lengthily and closely to make known the origin of the sum found in the locker room as well as the names of the firms which paid it. He refused, and recorded his refusal in writing.

"He then retired, but a quarter of an hour later came back and solicited another audience, in the course of which he wrote the following letter to the President and the Quaestors of the Chamber:

"'Payment was made by the Swiss Federal Bank and the object of the payment was advice given with a view of assuring the benefit of fiscal and similar rights in France.'

The Government has decided to make no reply to the interpellation of Deputy Turmel unless in the meantime he shall have explained the source of the money. The Deputy gave notice that he would ask the Government to explain the refusal of the French authorities at the frontier to allow him to cross into Switzerland the day before yesterday for the ostensible purpose of collecting evidence to clear up the case.

The Minister of Justice has ordered a judicial inquiry into the facts developed in the Turmel affair. M. Gilbert, an examining Magistrate, has been charged with an inquiry into contracts made in 1916-17 by a business house in a neutral country covering several thousand head of beef cattle, which, it is supposed, were destined for Germany.

Deputy Turmel, it was announced this evening, will not attend tomorrow's session of the Chamber.

STATE SHUTS SALOONS NEAR MUNITION PLANTS

Thirty-five in South Brooklyn Could Not Get Their Licenses Renewed by Commissioner.

State Commissioner of Excise Sisson having refused to renew the licenses of thirty-five saloons and one liquor and grocery store in South Brooklyn, Deputy Commissioner Harry Ralston yesterday closed each of the places. They were all within the territory between Fifty-second and Sixty-second streets, and from New York Bay to Third Avenue. Henry J. Docher, who kept the combination liquor and grocery store at 5,401 Third Avenue, applied to County Judge Roy for a writ of certiorari reviewing the decision of the State Excise Commissioner. This will be a test case, and, it is understood, is brought by the Long Island Family Liquor Dealers' Association.

The places closed by the Commissioner are said to be those ordered closed under the Newton law and reopened in August when Judge Cropsey declared that law unconstitutional. The Newton law was passed as a war measure, making it possible to close liquor selling places near camps, barracks, munition plants, and shipyards. The places closed yesterday were near the E. W. Bliss works and the plant of the Morse Dry Dock in South Brooklyn.

Federal Agents Make Arrests After Hearing Anti-War Speeches.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—John Unger, a contractor, of Waukegan, Ill., and six others were taken before the Federal Bureau of Investigation today, having been arrested after attending a meeting of Industrial Workers of the World at Waukegan last night.

The Federal agents, who were notified that an anti-war meeting was to be held, were on hand to listen to the utterances. At the close of the meeting seven persons were taken into custody.

MRS. KING'S WILL IS UNDER SCRUTINY

MRS. MELVIN BENEFICIARY

Would Mean Millions for Her If Second King Will Held—Means Employe Questioned.

Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling began an investigation yesterday afternoon to test the genuineness of a will of Mrs. Maude A. King, who was killed under mysterious circumstances at Concord, N. C., on Aug. 28. A photographic copy of the will was received from the Chicago authorities.

Several other wills are known to have been executed by Mrs. King. The one of which a copy was received was dated Nov. 9, 1915, and was made in this city. A study of this will is being made because among the papers found in the apartment of Gaston B. Means at 1,155 Park Avenue were sheets of paper engraved with the name of Gaston B. Means, on which the signature of the dead woman had been practiced.

The will witnessed to this will were Henry Dietsch and his daughter, Marie T. Dietsch, both of whom have been in the employ of Gaston B. Means for more than two years. Marie T. Dietsch is now Mrs. Afton Means, having married a brother of Gaston.

This will gives to the sister, Mrs. Mary C. Melvin, the residue of the estate and makes her the sole executrix. Gaston Means recently refused to place securities belonging to Mrs. King's estate, which he said he had in his possession, in the hands of a public trustee, on the ground that he could have them cared for by Mrs. Melvin, who has been staying at the Means residence in Oyster Bay.

Mrs. Melvin is the only living person whose name is signed to the alleged second will of James C. King, which has been pronounced a forgery. Her interest in the will of Mrs. King would give her the bulk of the King estate, worth $6,000,000 or $7,000,000, provided the second King will should be held valid. Mr. Dooling is trying to have Mrs. Melvin come to this city.

After providing small sums for various persons, the will of Mrs. King reads:

Fourth—I give and bequeath unto my beloved sister, Mary C. Melvin, all of the rest and residue of my personal property, both real, personal, and mixed, to be her absolute property.

Fifth—I hereby name Mary C. Melvin to be sole executrix of this my will and testament."

Questions Dietsch Seven Hours.

Henry T. Dietsch, one of the witnesses to this will and business manager for Gaston B. Means, was questioned for seven hours by Mr. Dooling particularly regarding his knowledge of the plan which Means had committed to writing of keeping Mrs. Anna C. Robinson, mother of Mrs. King, and friends of Mrs. King in the dark as to the whereabouts of Mrs. King during a week or more preceding her sudden death. One of the instructions Dietsch received was to take charge of all mail received for Mrs. King, Mrs. Robinson, or Mrs. Melvin and to forward it only to Means, who advised Dietsch by letter that he did not want Mrs. Robinson and others whom he described as "enemies" to know the whereabouts of Mrs. King.

After his examination of Dietsch Mr. Dooling said: "We have made very satisfactory progress. Mr. Dietsch is telling me a great deal. He may become an important witness for the State."

Mr. Dooling said that bank accounts had been discovered showing that Mrs. Julie Means, wife of Gaston B. Means, had had large sums in several New York banks in 1916, but that her funds on deposit had been exhausted. The largest check drawn by her, he said, was for $6,000 in favor of her husband. Her bank accounts and papers were turned over to an expert accountant, who is studying the financial transactions of Gaston B. Means. While the checks and accounts which have been found showed that Means paid $19,000 to furnish his flat in 1915, and since then used hundreds of thousands in speculations, Mr. Dooling said he had evidence that Means in 1914 had been earning $25 a week and had obtained no financial assistance from his wife when he married her.

Mr. Dooling said that documentary evidence alleged by the Chicago authorities to prove that a trust fund of $100,000 established by Mrs. King in favor of her mother, Mrs. Robinson, had been dissolved by an instrument to which the name of Mrs. Robinson had been forged. Mr. Dooling said a witness to this instrument who had admitted that Mrs. Robinson had not signed it in the presence of the witness, had agreed to make a statement to him today.

A telegram made public by Mr. Dooling was one sent from Asheville, N. C., on Sept. 7 to Jacob Newman, a Chicago lawyer, and signed with the name of Mrs. Mary C. Melvin. It was as follows:

Please send at once for newspaper reporters of Chicago papers and deny at once for me an insinuation that they have published that my sister, Mrs. King, lost her life in any way except by accident, regardless of Chicago Coroner's report. It is impossible for him to say her death was not an accident, without knowing all the facts and especially the short length of the pistol, which was three or four inches long; and also explain to them how important she was as a witness in the pending litigation. MARY C. MELVIN.

Further evidence was found of the pro-German activities of Gaston B. Means during the period when he was employed by Count Karl Boy-Ed, the then German naval attaché. One large bundle of papers in his possession contained elaborate reports on the capacity and ownership of thirty-eight munition plants.

"Republicans and Progressives."

One paper found in his possession, headed "Republicans and Progressives," contained the following names: Dan R. Hanna of Ohio, Senator Gronna of North Dakota, Senator Works of California, ex-Senator Bourne of Oregon, Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire, Senator Weeks of Massachusetts, ex-Senator Burton of Ohio, Representative Madden of Illinois, Representative Moore of Pennsylvania, Representative Fairchild of New York and Senator Poindexter of Washington. To this was added the following:

"Representative Madden of Illinois is the most important man to make connections with and see.

"The association of organization to see would be the Republican Publicity Association, with permanent headquarters located in Washington, D. C."

MEANS WON'T GIVE UP MRS. KING'S PAPERS

Judge Reserves Action—Receiver for Papers Appointed on Mrs. Robinson's Motion.

HICKORY, N. C., Sept. 17.—Superior Judge Cline today announced that Gaston B. Means had agreed to submit to State Solicitor Hayden Clement certain papers, letters, bank books and accounts of Mrs. Maude A. King, but that he had refused to deliver the documents to the custody of the State, as ordered last Friday by Judge Cline. No action by the court on the refusal will be taken, Judge Cline said, until the solicitor has had an opportunity to determine whether the papers had any bearing on the mysterious death of the Chicago widow.

Announcement also was made officially today that District Attorney Swann of New York had been asked to deliver to Solicitor Clement for use at the Coroner's inquest next Monday the original alleged second will of the late James C. King.

M'INTYRE TO ADMIT SUPPRESSED REPORT

never have had," said the District Attorney very emphatically. "There has been a complete understanding between the District Attorney's office and the Grand Jury. The only discussion there had been between myself and Mr. Konta was what was made in the newspapers. The only difference between myself and Mr. Konta was as to the law of procedure. If the Grand Jury wants to submit a presentment it may do so. I repeat my opinion that it was unwise to do so at this time—to show the infirmity of the law. I have witnesses ready and specific cases to present to the Grand Jury if they want them. The police have no cases of unlawful assembly or of riot. They have four cases of disorderly conduct and we are ready to present."

"What do you mean when you speak of the infirmity of the law?" Mr. Swann was asked.

"I mean," he replied, "that the Court of Appeals has held that disorderly conduct tending to a breach of the peace is not a crime and is to be dealt with by the Magistrates. It means, 205 New York, 490, the People ex rel Burke against Fox, Warden of the Workhouse, that the Court of Appeals has said that disorderly conduct is no case for the Grand Jury. Mere spoken words without action is no crime. That is what I meant when I said that parts of the presentment were bullets in the back of our men at the front. This is my reason and I give it."

"Do you mean that if the Grand Jury did indict in these four cases the indictment would not hold?" he was asked.

"If they indict for disorderly conduct the indictment will not hold under the Court of Appeals decision. And that's what I told them. The trouble is some enthusiastic persons want men sent to State prison right off. It can't be done."

It would have been better, Mr. Swann thinks, if the cases had been taken before Magistrates and the offenders sentenced to the workhouse. To advise any one to disregard the draft was, in his opinion, a matter for the Federal Government.

The police stand ready to assist the District Attorney or the Grand Jury in any way possible, Acting Commissioner Godley said. He said the department had under consideration at this time no cases of riot or of unlawful assembly. He said the police had preferred the four cases of disorderly conduct for the Grand Jury. In answer to the charge that has been implied ever since the soap box cases came up for consideration by the Grand Jury that the police have done little to suppress seditious meetings Commissioner Godley gave out a summary of police activities. It showed that the police have made 31 arrests, exclusive of four cases ready for presentation to the Grand Jury. Eleven prisoners had been discharged on arraignment and eight fined from $5 to $25. In one case no decision had been reached and in another the prisoner was held for the Federal authorities. Six offenders were sent to the Workhouse for terms of from twenty days to six months. In other cases sentence was suspended.

Says Politics Directs Swann.

In his letter to the Governor asking the investigation of the District Attorney President Moore of the Friends of Irish Freedom charges that Mr. Swann is governed by politics and that his course is not directed by public duty. This is Mr. Moore's telegram to the Governor:

Sept. 17, 1917.

Hon. Charles S. Whitman, Governor,
The Executive Chamber,
Albany, N. Y.

I ask you to designate a Special Deputy Attorney General to investigate the conduct of District Attorney Swann in connection with the so-called soap-box controversy. By failing to present to the Grand Jury witnesses and evidence concerning alleged seditious speakers, District Attorney Swann is endeavoring to prevent the carrying out of the instructions given to the Grand Jury by Judge McIntyre in these separate charges. Mr. Swann's conduct has led not only to a public controversy between the Grand Jury and himself, but to the definite charge by Foreman Konta that Mr. Swann is governed in his course of action by politics and not by public duty. I believe you will find this charge to be true. These cases, of which my own is one, involve the fundamental American right of free speech. This right should be determined judicially and without regard to its effect on the political fortunes of Mr. Swann or any other candidate in the coming election. JOHN D. MOORE,
26 Cortlandt Street, New York.

In his letter to the foreman and members of the regular and additional Grand Juries Mr. Moore takes a fling at the District Attorney for having, as he expressed it, called into question the loyalty of Foreman Konta. He says in part:

"I ask you to call the following witnesses, none of whom is affiliated with us in any way, these members of the "Vigilantes," organized by the American Defense Society, 303 Fifth Avenue, New York: Cleveland Moffett, 153 East Fifty-sixth Street; Theodor Megaarden, 44 Cedar Street; Henry T. Price, Price Trade Publishing Company, 122 East Twenty-fifth Street; Henry C. Quinby, 165 Broadway; Thomas D. McCarthy, United States Marshal; the reporters of the New York daily newspapers, Deputy Commissioner Godley, Alexander M. White of Police Headquarters, New York; Police Inspectors Boland and Cray, Police Captain Bailey, the police Lieutenants, Sergeants, patrolmen, and the large number of members of the Police Department in plain clothes who attended our meetings.

Magistrates' Authority Limited.

Chief Magistrate William McAdoo made a statement regarding the jurisdiction of City Magistrates in the prosecution of so-called soap-box orators. He said, however, that the statement was an expression of his personal opinion and not binding upon any Magistrate. He agreed that the Magistrates had no authority under the Federal statutes where the offense charged was treason or sedition.

"There is no section of the code in this State which gives the Magistrate summary jurisdiction to try and dispose of a case arising under the circumstances attendant on these meetings," he continued. "There are certain sections where, if the police furnish the proper evidence, he can hold the defendant for examination if he so desires, or commit him for trial in other courts. The Magistrate, therefore, in all of these cases where he assumes full jurisdiction has to depend upon Sections 1,458 and 1,459 of the Consolidation act governing disorderly conduct.

Footprints of War

A soldier of France walked into this store, carrying a pair of Abercrombie & Fitch high hunting boots.

They were one of a hundred pairs sent by a French woman in this country to officers and soldiers of the French Army.

He had worn them in the trenches for a year—in mud and slush, rain and snow.

"And never once," he said, "have I had wet feet!"

One man in Greece sent for one hundred pairs of the same hunting boots—for officers in the Greek Army.

The further we get into this war the more will Abercrombie & Fitch equipment prove that the tests and experiences of sportsmen are of great value to soldiers.

Napoleon said, "The worth of an army is in its feet." A. & F. footgear for officers, soldiers, sportsmen, explorers, engineers and forest rangers is designed to give maximum foot efficiency.

HUGHES BOARD SEEKS TO AMEND DRAFT LAW

Would Prevent All Sons of a Single Family Being Called to Arms.

TO MEMORIALIZE CONGRESS

Ex-Judge Cullen Presents Case in Point—First Conscientious Objector Exempted.

The District Exemption Board for New York City, of which Charles E. Hughes is the Chairman, voted yesterday afternoon to memorialize the authorities in Washington to pass a law or make some kind of regulation which will prevent all the sons of one family from being drafted into the military service. Under the law as it now stands, all the sons in one family, no matter how many of them there may be, if called for examination and are passed, have to be accepted for service unless it can be shown that one or more of them are the sole support of a parent or other near relative. The motion to memorialize the Government was made by ex-Attorney General George W. Wickersham, following a discussion of the appeal of Thomas W. Farrell of 18 West Eighty-sixth Street, who was examined and certified for service by Board 129.

Mr. Farrell, the appeal papers showed, is one of four brothers, two of whom are already in the army, and the third of whom, who is the youngest, volunteered, but was rejected for physical reasons. It was shown that Mr. Farrell's father died a few months ago, leaving an estate valued at about $1,000,000, and that the appellant had been looking after the property for his mother and the other heirs.

Ex-Chief Judge Edgar M. Cullen presented the case to the board, and in doing so pointed out that the appeal could not be granted for the reason that Mrs. Farrell was not dependent upon her son.

"It is my opinion," said ex-Judge Cullen, "that some provision should be made by which this son could remain at home, in view of the fact that two of his three brothers are already in the army. This is only one of many such cases coming before the board where hardship is entailed because no provision has been made to protect a family in such cases.

"Here we have two brothers who have volunteered and gone forward to fight for their country. If the fatalities are as great in our army as they have been in the case of European armies, which God grant they may not be, this family will be called upon to make too great a sacrifice. The country has no right to make such a call upon any one family. There ought to be some rule by which a son could be left at home when two others have gone to the front. There may come a time when we shall need to take all—which God forbid—but until that time comes there ought to be some protection for families situated as is this one."

Motion Unanimously Carried.

Chairman Hughes announced that he had been in conference with representatives of the Adjutant General in regard to such cases as that of Mr. Farrell, but that they had been unable to find any provision in the law by which one son could be exempted where other sons are taken. It was then that Mr. Wickersham moved that the case be referred back to the committee, of which ex-Judge Cullen is chairman, and that the committee be instructed to formulate a recommendation to the President, or to Congress, with a view to remedying such cases. The motion was carried without a dissenting vote.

The District Board granted its first exemption in which the claimant gave conscientious objection to war as his ground for discharge from service. The case was that of Le Roy Carnana of Ozone Park, who appealed for exemption on the ground that he is a member of the Plymouth Brethren, an organization opposed to war. Carnana said that while his religious faith forbade him to fight he was willing to aid the country in any other capacity, in the battle zone or at home. It was shown that the Plymouth Brethren are recognized as in the same class as the Quakers both here and in England and the exemption was granted.

Assistant United States District Attorney Edwin M. Stanton, who is one of the Federal officials charged with the enforcement of the Espionage act, was an appellant before the board yesterday. He was discharged from service because of the nature of his services to the Government.

R. C. Mees, passed by Board 154, sought exemption on the ground that he is the office manager of the publicity department of the Liberty Loan Committee. It was decided that this was an occupation not within the provisions of the selective draft law and Mr. Mees will be certified for service in the national army.

Unusual Case Decided.

An unusual case was that of Walter W. Heinrich, 420 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn. Mr. Heinrich was exempted two weeks ago as the sole support of an aged and infirm mother. Since Heinrich made the claim the mother has died, and yesterday he appeared before the board, stated the facts, and asked that his exemption claim be withdrawn and that he be certified for service. This was done.

It became known yesterday that the Provost Marshal General has made a new ruling which will probably add several hundred thousand more men to the list of those who are eligible for service in the national army. This ruling is that men who took out first citizenship papers five or more years ago and who have not taken out second papers are eligible for service and are not to be exempted as aliens.

The board disposed of 3,040 cases in a five-hour session, the largest number yet. Of these, 2,223 were formal appeals by the Provost Marshal General, of which only fifty-three reversed the decision of the local board. There were thirty-five original applications for exemption on industrial grounds, seventeen being granted and eighteen denied. There were 782 appeals from the local boards. Of these in 455 cases the decision of the local was affirmed and in 297 cases reversed.

The selective service men whose numbers come within the next 20 per cent. of the city's quota are straightening up their affairs preparatory to leaving for Camp Upton this week. The first batch will go forward tomorrow when 1,086 men will entrain for camp. Approximately 500 of these will go from the Carlton yard of the Long Island Railroad, Brooklyn. They comprise the men from local boards 23 to 35 inclusive in South and East Brooklyn. Another 500 will go from Long Island City. These will be the men of local boards 89 to 100 inclusive, situated in the lower part of Manhattan, both east and west sides.

On Thursday 1,725 men will go forward from the Carlton yard, from Long Island City and from the Pennsylvania Station, Manhattan. On Friday, 1,612 men will go; on Saturday, 1,682, and on Sunday 1,676, making up the total of 7,761 men who constitute 20 per cent. of the quota.

HEADS PEOPLE'S COUNCIL.

Scott Nearing Will Direct Work from This City.

Scott Nearing, the educator and pacifist, has accepted the Chairmanship of the Executive Committee of the People's Council of America, it was announced yesterday. He will make his headquarters in New York City and devote all of his time to the affairs of the council.

James H. Maurer, President of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, who was Temporary Chairman of the committee, explained last night that the change was forced by the growing activities of the organization. Louis P. Lochner will continue as Executive Secretary. The membership of the committee will be raised to fifteen, eleven of them already having been named. They are Morris Hillquit, Jacob Panken, George Roewer, Joseph Schlossberg, William C. Demfer, Rebecca Shelly, William Short, Mrs. William I. Thomas, the Rev. Dr. Judah L. Magnes, and Messrs. Nearing and Maurer.

"The People's Council movement is now upon a strong, permanent basis," Mr. Maurer said. "We represent some 2,500,000 people and our members are being increased daily."

GUARD WATER PLANT AT SPARTANBURG

600 CAVALRYMEN ARRIVE

Special to The New York Times.

CAMP WADSWORTH, SPARTANBURG, S. C., Sept. 17.—Following the detailing of fifty picked soldiers to ferret out the source of what are regarded as German instigated attempts to block the progress of work at the camp, the City of Spartanburg has posted a strong guard around the municipally owned waterworks which are the camp's sole water supply. The decision to protect the waterworks was made after the City Engineers reported the danger of an attempt to poison the water.

Another reason that prompted the city to safeguard the water supply is that prowlers have been seen near the plant for the last four nights. Inasmuch as the works are located four miles from the camp itself, and in a wild, rocky stretch of country almost impassable afoot, the presence of strangers there at night convinced the city officials that plans were being made to tamper with the filtration system.

"Until we put our guards on duty, it would have been easy for enemy sympathizers to introduce poison into the water and reach every man in the camp," said Chief Engineer Hinchey today. "The chief danger lies in the entrance to the filter. This is apart from the plant, easy to get at, and, as every drop goes through this small opening, bags of poison put in there would circulate thoroughly.

"Then, again, even if this method were not employed, it would have been very simple for a few men to overpower the machinist at the filter and wreck the pumps and motors. This machinery we could not duplicate for weeks, and in the interval the soldiers at the camp woud have to send all the way here and get their water in barrels.

"One thing that made us a bit uneasy is the fact that men have been seen about the plant late at night. Up to now no one ever went near the place, but now it has become the regular thing for strangers to pay us a visit. The night before last one of our employes reported that a man about sixty years old, with closely cropped gray hair and extremely well dressed, had been caught working a pocket flash light through a window of the filter shack. When he was shouted at he dropped the flash and ran off into the woods. Our workman was tied up fixing some machinery and so did not follow him."

Winter clothing was distributed to the men of the Seventh this afternoon and by the end of the week the regiment will be completely equipped for Winter field service. The regiment was ordered out this morning for its first camp drill.

Though the Twelfth did not get into camp until three days after the Seventh, the former organization has made greater strides in getting its site into order. Spurred on by Colonel Reginald L. Foster, the men have dug drainage trenches around every tent and are now at work installing a hot water system for their shower baths. Admittedly, the Twelfth's camp makes a better appearance than any other site in the cantonment.

HEALTH OF NAVY GOOD.

Measles and Mumps the Principal Trouble, Surgeon General Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. — Surgeon General Braisted of the navy today announced that the health of the men in the navy was "very good," and that there was "little serious illness."

"Some cases of measles and mumps continue to be reported from the Atlantic Fleet," says the statement. "Measles is less prevalent than mumps, averaging only ten new cases a week for the whole force afloat.

"Conditions are excellent at all the shore stations except at the naval training station at San Francisco, where there are a number of cases of measles and mumps," it is stated.

CAMP MILLS, HEMPSTEAD, L. I., Sept. 17.—Private George Neff of Company E, 165th Infantry, who was soon to be promoted, committed suicide by shooting himself while drilling men from his company and from other units of the regiment this morning. Captain Alexander Anderson and a Lieutenant of Company A saw Neff step quickly behind the rear line, and were about to rebuke him for getting out of his place when they heard the magazine chamber of his rifle click as he shoved a cartridge into it. Before the officers could interfere Neff placed the muzzle of the gun to his mouth and pulled the trigger. The bullet passed out at the back of his head, tearing away part of the skull. He dropped to the field, and was dead when the officers reached him.

Colonel Charles De L. Hine, commander of the regiment, hearing the discharge of the weapon, suspended the drill. For fourteen years Neff had been an accountant and cashier for Tiffany & Co., at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-sixth Street. He lived, with his wife and two daughters, Adelaide and Marjorie, at 28 St. Nicholas Place, Manhattan. Before he became a resident here he had been a member for some years of the Pennsylvania National Guard.

Neff was 47 years old, but was so determined to go to the war that he gave his age as 40 and said he was not married when he applied for enlistment in the Seventy-first Regiment in June. This deception was known only to himself and the immediate members of his family until yesterday.

Miss Marjorie Neff, at her home last night, said her father did not at first like his transfer to the 165th, but later said he was glad of it, and told his family: "I am now with a real fighting regiment, and we are sure to see active service soon." His training in the Pennsylvania Guard made him a marked man in the company, and he had been chosen for promotion to Corporal in Company E.

On Saturday and Sunday Neff had leave and passed the time at home with his family. When he started back for camp on Sunday evening he complained of feeling ill, and his wife prepared something for him. Neff left no message to any member of his family, and in view of his known desire to go to France with the Forty-second Division, of which the regiment is a part, one daughter said that sudden ill-health or temporary insanity had probably caused his act.

Colonel Hine considered Neff an excellent soldier. Throughout the camp and at drill no loaded weapons are permitted, and it was not known where Neff had obtained a service cartridge. It was thought he had got it while doing guard duty at up-State points with the Seventy-first before the regiment went into camp at Van Cortlandt Park. Major William B. Donovan, First Battalion of the Sixty-ninth, was assigned to make an inquiry as to the possession of ammunition by Neff and the cause of his suicide.

help, even if sufficient men could be obtained, will be made by the employers.

"We will close up tight," said one official of the Union Iron Works.

Comparatively few men not members of the unions involved are deprived of employment as a result of the strike.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 17. — Partial cessation of work in wooden shipyards on the Willamette and Columbia Rivers at Vancouver, Wash.; St. Helens, Ore., and Astoria, Ore., was reported today as a result of the strike of approximately 2,000 union men Saturday for the closed shop.

Two Portland yards reported they were running with full forces, while others were operating some departments with nonunion help. Many plants remained closed. Twenty-five steel workmen employed on vessels for the Government went on strike here today at the Supple-Baltin Shipbuilding Corporation's plant.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 17.—Woodworkers in the steel ship yard of the Seattle Construction and Drydock Company, the largest plant here, resumed work today, the company having given bond to use only lumber manufactured in eight-hour mills. Two other large yards had previously resumed work, using eight-hour lumber.

There was no change today at the wooden ship yards, tied up several days by a sympathetic strike of the woodworkers against ten-hour lumber.

HURLEY TO ACT AS MEDIATOR.

Shipping Board Chairman Arranges to Visit Pacific Coast.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, is arranging his plans so that he may start for the Pacific Coast within a few days to take personal charge, in the name of the Government, of the labor disputes in shipyards in San Francisco, Seattle, Portland, and other centres, unless the situation is cleared up before the end of the week.

Reports today that ironworkers had walked out in San Francisco yards came at a time when Mr. Hurley and other Government officials were attempting to reach an agreement with employers and employes in the industry in Seattle and Portland, hoping to make such an agreement the basis for further negotiations which would avert a serious condition in all Pacific Coast yards. Agents of the Shipping Board were instructed to send complete reports concerning the trouble, and it is believed that these will be in the hands of the Federal authorities here tomorrow.

It is estimated that the total number of men involved in the Pacific Coast strike is approximately 50,000. These strikes, it was admitted today, had tied up temporarily 12 per cent. of the entire shipbuilding program on new construction and commandeered vessels in which the United States Government is interested. Both wooden and steel ships are included in the vessels affected by the Western labor troubles.

Mr. Hurley called this morning on Secretary Wilson of the Department of Labor and conferred with him on the general situation in shipbuilding yards throughout the country. Afterward it was stated that it was believed an agreement would be reached within a reasonably short time which would permit operations again at top speed. The Government is anxious to make this delay as short as possible, and to avert the danger of other trades being affected.

While labor officials here were reticent about discussing the Western situation, it was said that Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, and other prominent leaders were doing everything in their power to keep the situation in hand, and that messages had been sent to the labor leaders on the Pacific Coast to exert every influence to that end, pending an agreement between employers and employes.

PITTSBURGH MILLS STRIKE.

Four Steel Furnaces Doing Government Work Made Idle.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Sept. 17.—Nearly 1,000 workers employed in making steel, a large part of which is said to be going into Government uses, were made idle tonight by the closing of four furnaces of the Eliza plant of the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company. The company stated that it was compelled to close its furnaces because of the failure of 300 furnace men to report for work today.

It is said that 130 men, temporarily laid off a few days ago because further construction work had been abandoned, persuaded their fellow-workers to walk out. No disorders have thus far accompanied the walkout.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES MEET.

Will Become Affiliated with American Federation of Labor.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Delegates from Federal employes' unions throughout the country opened a convention here today to perfect a national organization. They expect to elect officers tomorrow.

President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, with which the national body is to be affiliated, addressed the delegates and offered his personal assistance and that of the federation. Other speakers were Representative Jeannette Rankin, who asked the convention to advocate woman suffrage; James O'Connell, Vice President of the American Federation of Labor; Frank Morrison, and Thomas F. Flaherty, Secretary of the National Federation of Postal Employes.

After the organization is complete, it is understood, a campaign will be started to obtain for the Government employe, among other things, better pay, a scientific reclassification, retirement legislation, and a year-round Saturday half holiday.

RIFLE CONTRACTS AGAIN CRITICISED

Cost-Plus System Raising Pay of Labor Extravagantly, Representative Dallinger Says.

DEFENDED BY FITZGERALD

Criticism Inevitable, He Asserts, but the Work Is Being Done with Integrity and Ability.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Debate on the War Department contract for a million Enfield rifles at a cost-plus-10-per cent. profit basis was revived in the House totday. Mr. Dallinger of Massachusetts declared that under the cost-plus system contractors were hiring labor at unheard-of wages and in that way badly disturbing the labor situation in other factories. He told of a man in his district receiving $60 a week as a laborer and doing nothing but keeping out of the way of Government inspectors, and of a clerk who had obtained work as a carpenter on a Government job and who, although without experience as a carpenter, was getting $7.50 each work day and $15 on Sundays.

Mr. Dallinger criticised the rifle contracts with the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, the Remington Rifle Company, and the Remington Union Metallic Cartridge Company.

"It is not fair to other manufacturers," he said, "to allow Government work to be done on a cost-plus-10-per cent. basis. It upsets the labor market. In Lowell, Mass., I have heard of Government contractors taking men from other factories on account of the extremely high wages they could pay. Other manufacturers resent this."

The Massachusetts member said there were more than three concerns in the United States that could make rifles, and which the Government might utilize.

"Will the gentleman give me the authority for his statement about the laborer getting $60 a week and the clerk who is working as a carpenter?" asked Representative Fitzgerald, Chairman of the Appropriation Committee.

"It was told to me by a friend," Mr. Dallinger replied.

"There are all kinds of criticism," said Mr. Fitzgerald, "and the hardest kind to meet is the anonymous kind."

He explained that, no matter how many plants there might be, the question of tools, jigs, and dies was essential, and there was no spare material of this sort. Continuing, he said:

"We propose to spend $11,000,000,000 this first year, and no set of men could attempt to handle this sum without criticism, some of it justified. But, in a broad way, the work is being carried on with integrity and competently."

The House failed to reach a final vote on the $7,000,000,000 Urgent Deficiency bill, consideration of sections providing additional funds for the War Department consuming practically the entire day. Many amendments increasing the sums proposed in the original bill were aproved. The Secretary of War was authorized to incur obligations aggregating $100,000,000 for ordnance and ordnance supplies in addition to appropriations made or pending, but the proposed $3,000,000 for an ordnance proving ground at Kent Island, Chesapeake Bay, was eliminated from the bill.

FAULTY AMMUNITION TRACED TO FORMULA

Adopted for Primers by War Department Against Opinion of All Outside Experts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Colonel George Montgomery, U. S. A., commandant of the Frankford Arsenal, told the House Investigating Committee today that, although ammunition experts had advised against using a free sulphur formula for the Government's ammunition primer, the opinion of the War Department was set in favor of such a formula.

This statement by the chief official of the arsenal from which defective ammunition was sent to General Pershing was the outstanding feature of a day of many interrogations by the committee into the work at the Frankford Arsenal. It was shown that the opinion of experts outside the Bureau of Ordnance ran contrary to the practice of the bureau regarding primers before the defective ammunition was discovered recently.

Colonel Montgomery himself seemed to show he was not entirely in favor of the Bureau of Ordnance formula. Formulae used in cartridges made by other establishments and private firms contained a different chemical and seemed to be better, Colonel Montgomery indicated, but the War Department's insistence upon its own secret mixture was so great that it seemed foolish to make any attempt at a change. The Frankford Arsenal and the United States Cartridge Company, he said, were the only two plants producing a primer with free sulphur.

"The technical opinion of the world was against us," he added. "All our people believed in it, though."

He said also that an ammunition expert without a peer had convinced him in August, 1916, that the sulphur primer was not up to the mark set by modern ammunition. It was shown by the testimony that when the defects in the primers were found to be general the Bureau of Ordnance arranged for the purchase of 55,000,000 primers of different formula from the Winchester Arms Company, and then adopted the Winchester formula.

Testimony showed that the old free sulphur formula is being used in artillery ammunition with perfect results, because it ignites a quick-burning black powder; whereas in small arms ammunition the bullet is shot from the gun by a slow-burning powder.

A Straightforward Discussion of Men's and Young Men's Fall and Winter Suits
Of All Wool Fabrics

The events of the past six months have brought many changes in the field of men's apparel. Mills and factories—woolens and labor—have been diverted to the outfitting of armies. This has increased the cost of production of civilian clothes and has led to economizing changes in style.

A man has only to read the glaring announcements of clothiers from coast to coast to realize that this condition hits the pocketbook. Still, with our cash buying, cash selling policy, we were able, as usual, to secure and offer to the men of New York

The Most in Clothes Quality At The Lowest Prices

To ignore rising costs would have been folly—it has been impossible to avoid some increase in the selling prices. We are unwilling to sacrifice quality to offer for sale clothing that will not give satisfactory wear, but our prices for smartly tailored, serviceable clothing are still, quality for quality, "Lowest-in-the-City."

We want you to see the new belted coats with peaked lapels and slant cut pockets, the tight fitting English sack coats with soft roll lapels, the double breasted models and the more conservative clothes.

We want you to examine the unfinished worsteds, cheviots, tweeds, homespuns and serges—to examine the handiwork of the tailors who put them together. We want you to compare them with fabrics and tailoring in clothes elsewhere about town—for we know that here only will you find of good quality and of smart lines—no matter what price limit you place upon your clothes allowance. If you have never learned what cash buying and cash selling can do—this fall and present conditions offer you an excellent opportunity to do so profitably.

MARSHALL DEMANDS LARGER PATRIOTISM

Vice President Says the War Will Bring Allegiance to the Principles of Democracy.

URGES SUPPORT OF WILSON

Tells Scottish Rite Masons That World Cannot Be Made Safe for Platform of the I. W. W.

Thomas Riley Marshall, Vice President of the United States, speaking last night at the golden jubilee meeting of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry at the Waldorf, asserted that the United States was not fighting to make the world safe for a democracy in which the principles like those held by the I. W. W. might have an unchecked rein; and, appealing for unity of thought with respect to the prosecution of the war by this Government, asked: "Is it not possible to have until the conclusion of this war all hands in America lifted up to the God of our fathers, and all voices proclaiming: 'Woodrow Wilson, America, democracy for me'?"

"Within my knowledge," he added, "learned and patriotic Senators have debated whether it was American, or Irish, or German citizens who won for us our freedom in the Revolution. I do not care to engage in hair-splitting, although there seems to be much discussion as to whether this war was being waged to make the world safe for democracy or to make democracy safe for the world. Of course, it was meant by the President, when he spoke of making the world safe for democracy, of making it safe for real democracy. We know that liberty is not license, or democracy demagogy.

"We all know that the world cannot be made safe for murder or arson and pillage and anarchy and everything for which the syndicalists and the I. W. W.'s stand. When rulers and people are willing to do as they would be done by, when they are willing to meet upon this level and act upon the plumb, and when Governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed, then there will be a large assurance of permanent peace. These are days when he who is uncertain as to whether what he is about to say will help or harm his country's cause had better remain silent.

"To accomplish the result for which America is fighting," Mr. Marshall added, "it is necessary to appeal to the conscience. Free thought must never be hampered, but because a man thinks a thing to be true and has a right to utter his belief under a democracy, he is not justified, in God, in Brotherhood, and in the Republic, in voicing his sentiments under all circumstances. There are many of us who should accept St. Paul's advice to the Corinthians: 'All things are lawful unto me, but all things are not expedient.'

"Conscription as a principle may be a subject of debate, but not now. This democracy has adopted it for the purposes of this war, and discussion of it ought to be held in abeyance. If there be any who think it is not justified, let them not be of aid and comfort to the enemy by voicing their views. If laws are silent in the midst of arms, let all discussion as to the rightfulness or wrongfulness of the war and as to the methods by which it is being prosecuted cease, unless by discussion the cause of the Republic and human liberty can be advanced.

"Whatever the original causes of this war and whatever the motives of its earlier prosecution may have been, they have now resolved themselves into a conflict between two great systems of government—autocracy and democracy. What, therefore, is the lesson of the hour to a body of men whose obligation is to the flag of their country? That lesson is that this war shall furnish a new definition of patriotism. The word shall no longer mean the land of a man's birth or the land of his adoption, the language he speaks, or the place where he loves to reside. It will demand of every one who owes allegiance to any Prince or potentate or authocratic power on earth that he renounce that allegiance and renounce also every purely selfish aim and pursuit; that he subordinate the material interests of this Government to its ideals, that he take an oath of allegiance to an invisible Government which believes, which teaches, which holds that all men are born free and equal; that the Governments derive their powers from the consent of the governed, and that none is fit to rule save of the free and untrammeled consent of the majority of those over whom he rules; that wealth is good, honor better, and, above all, democracy is best.

"I do not want entangling alliances with European nations. It is not necessary to have them. When we sit at the council table of the world, I trust we may do so as the representative of a newer and better isolation—an isolation of the spirit—free to say to the Germanic peoples, 'Have what government you please, but let us know that it is yours,' free to say to the oldest of constitutional Governments, the British Empire, 'We have made this fight with you as our ally in the cause of democracy, but we are not willing to change our system. The Windsor tie is not harmonized with the cut of our democracy.'

"This seems to me but to express lamely the views of the President of the United States. If this were a Democratic war I should keep silent. If it were a Republican war I should probably say unjustifiable things. It is neither. It is an American war. For only a coward, a poltroon, a trickster, or political charlatan seeking personal advantage would have dared to evade it. Forgetting blood and business, there are now, as always, just two grades of citizens in the Republic—the man who asks, himself, 'What can I do for my country?' and the man who asks 'What can I do for my country?' and the man who asks, 'What can my country do for me?' Democracy, Republicanism, and Socialism, in their partisan sense, are just now in abeyance. The chosen representatives of the American people, regardless of their partisan view on internal matters, have taken their oath of loyalty and devotion to the President of the United States. Is it not possible to have until the conclusion of this war all hands in America lifted to the God of our Fathers—and all voices proclaiming 'Woodrow Wilson, America, Democracy, for me.'"

Sessions of the Scottish Rite convention will commence today at 10 o'clock this forenoon at Masonic Temple, Sixth Avenue and Twenty-third Street. This evening the Supreme Council will confer the thirty-third degree on ninety candidates selected from fifteen States and elected in Pittsburgh last year.

PROPOSE CONGRESS VISIT TO WAR FRONT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—A proposal to send a Congressional delegation to visit the battlefields of Europe is being discussed in definite form by members of the two Houses.

As a division of views on the subject has developed, a joint meeting of the Foreign Affairs Committees of the Senate and House will be held Friday morning to discuss the projected visit. There are two invitations before Congress. One is a general invitation to the entire Congress to visit the British Parliament and the British battle front; the other an invitation from the French Chamber of Deputies to send twenty-five members of Congress to the French battle lines and the French Chamber.

Representative Norton of North Dakota has introduced a resolution to send a committee of fifty, divided equally between the two Houses, and proposes to appropriate $50,000 for the expenses.

Unless Congress adjourns within a month it is unlikely that any formal action will be taken to send a representation abroad, as it is considered there would not be time for a thorough view of the situation.

Speaker Clark will not be a member of the party unless an act of Congress forces him to take the trip. He made this clear today, saying that if there should be any adjournment of Congress he preferred to put in his time visiting his son, Bennett Clark, a Lieutenant Colonel in a Missouri National Guard regiment, now taking a course of study at Fort Sill, Okla.

WHEN you see a Liberty car on the streets of New York, remember that it is probably owned by someone who never before has been satisfied with a car of moderate size or moderate price.

The Liberty sold itself to me after sixteen years of selling one of the most expensive cars made. It is now giving satisfaction to hundreds of my clients who used to think that satisfaction cost at least $5,000.

The Liberty marks a new era in automobile building. The more you know about cars, the more you will realize what the Liberty means.

If you are sure no moderate sized car can satisfy you, come in and see the Liberty today.

Verified Quality

Constant chemical analysis and physical test safeguard every ounce of material that goes into Pierce-Arrow trucks. Skilled workmanship is verified by careful inspection at each step in construction.

Every Pierce-Arrow truck that leaves the factory is a faithful execution of a design intrinsically sound. That is why Pierce-Arrow trucks in all parts of the country and every line of industry are reducing truck transportation to a science of mathematical accuracy.

Pierce-Arrow
Motor Trucks

for example: After exhaustive test and experiment, The New York Telephone Company adopted Pierce-Arrow 5-ton trucks as standard equipment for heavy construction work. In co-operation with the Telephone Company's experts, special power-driven winch equipment was developed for these trucks and proved admirably suited for its purpose. The Telephone Company now operates thirty-five Pierce-Arrow trucks.

Such great commercial successes are built upon sound economics like those effected by Pierce-Arrow trucks. A smaller business should not deny itself the advantages on which big business thrives.

GEORGE ARLISS IN 'HAMILTON'

A Distinguished Character Study in an Effective if Slender Play.

CAST MAINLY STATESMEN

Jefferson, Monroe, Talleyrand, and Other Great Ones Creditably Portrayed.

HAMILTON, a drama in four acts, by Mary Hamlin and George Arliss. At the Knickerbocker Theatre.

Thomas Jefferson.....Carl Anthony
James Monroe.....Hardee Kirkland
William B. Giles.....John D. Ravold
General Philip Schuyler...George Woodward
Count Talleyrand.....Guy Favieres
James Reynolds.....Pell Trenton
Zekiel.....James O. Barrow
Chief Justice John Jay.....Wilson Day
Robert Morris.....Martin Green
Colonel Lear.....Harry Maitland
Citizen.....C. M. van Cleef
Betsy Hamilton.....Mrs. Arliss
Angelica Church.....Marion Barney
Mrs. Reynolds.....Jeanne Eagels
Melissa.....Katharine Hayden
Mrs. Zachery Whalen.....Gillian Scaife

George Arliss added Alexander Hamilton to his gallery of historical portraits and, aided by a craftsmanly and dignified if rather slender play, created an impression really memorable

It is, of course, with Hamilton's personality that the play is mainly concerned. Mr. Arliss has caught with rich sympathy and portrayed with unerring distinction the erect and almost regal carriage of Washington's "Little Lion," the preternatural clarity and decision of his mind; his quiet humor and subtle wit, which are so simple and implicit that they are void alike of gayety and of jocularity, but penetrate like a two-edged sword; his frugal living and his passionate devotion to the prosperity of his country; his fine aroma of the gentleman, which never forsook him, and finally the martyrdom, or seeming martyrdom, of all he held most dear in the cause of the integrity of his life work and the stability of the nation. It is a less showy character than Disraeli, but it is a far finer, nobler and truer.

The tact of the playwrights is shown in altogether ignoring the fatal duel with Aaron Burr, which was a grotesquely tragic accident, unrelated to the soul of the man or to his meaning in history. It is shown even more signally in choosing the notorious affair with Mrs. Reynolds as the pivot of the story. In itself this was as grotesque, being quite uncharacteristic of the real man. But the touch of human frailty in a character otherwise almost godlike affords an admirable source of theatric interest; and, by coupling it in the same human plexus with one of his greatest triumphs as a statesman, Mrs. Hamlin and Mr. Arliss have produced a maximum effect of historic character in dramatic action.

Mrs. Reynolds, be it remembered, was the adventuress with whom Hamilton had an affair, and who sold the evidence of his marital infidelity to the notorious Giles, surly bulldog in the guerilla warfare which Jefferson and Monroe were waging against him. Coming at the time of one of Hamilton's most important Treasury bills, the evidence was used in the hope of intimidating him—of blackmailing him into the withdrawal of his bill. In an effective, if familiar, dramatic manner, Hamilton is forced to choose between the happiness of the wife whom he really loves and the honor of his country. The choice he made is known to history, and last night it rendered humanly appealing a figure which has hitherto seemed impossible on the stage.

The dramatic craftsmanship, though of no high order, was sound; and, though the general purity of the hero's life and the extenuations of his one notorious slip, were insisted on in a manner more acceptable to Mrs. Grundy than to the subtler student of character, the general effect was far truer and sounder than is the custom with these historical stage pieces. The play is likely to prove as popular as it is historically inspiring.

To the cast fell the perilous necessity of impersonating figures of no less grandeur than Talleyrand, Jefferson, Monroe, Schuyler and Jay. It is high praise to say that the actors acquitted themselves without discredit. Nowhere was there a suggestion of historic waxworks. The Jefferson of Carl Anthony and the Talleyrand of Guy Favieres were almost adequate.

As the fair but light and frail Mrs. Reynolds, Jeanne Eagles had by far the best opportunity for fresh characterization, and she availed herself of it with great charm and a very considerable subtlety and humor.

'THE SCRAP OF PAPER' IS FAIRLY DIVERTING

"The Scrap of Paper" is the title of a sometimes entertaining but never very hardy melodrama which had its first performance at the Criterion last night, with the debonair Robert Hilliard as its star. The dramatist is the prolific Owen Davis, who built the play from a story of the same name by Arthur Somers Roche—a rather typical Saturday Evening Post story, which has become even more typical in the course of its transmission to the stage.

In the case of a play which is so frankly of the stage, it is perhaps unreasonable to call attention to its theatricalness, and yet the chief trouble with "The Scrap of Paper" is that it is so far remote from anything resembling reality. Even as melodramatic farce it is unconvincing. Its crises are met with a calmness which reminds one that the playwright is always waiting just around the corner to extradite his characters, and there never is the feeling that any one will get into real trouble as a result of the proceedings.

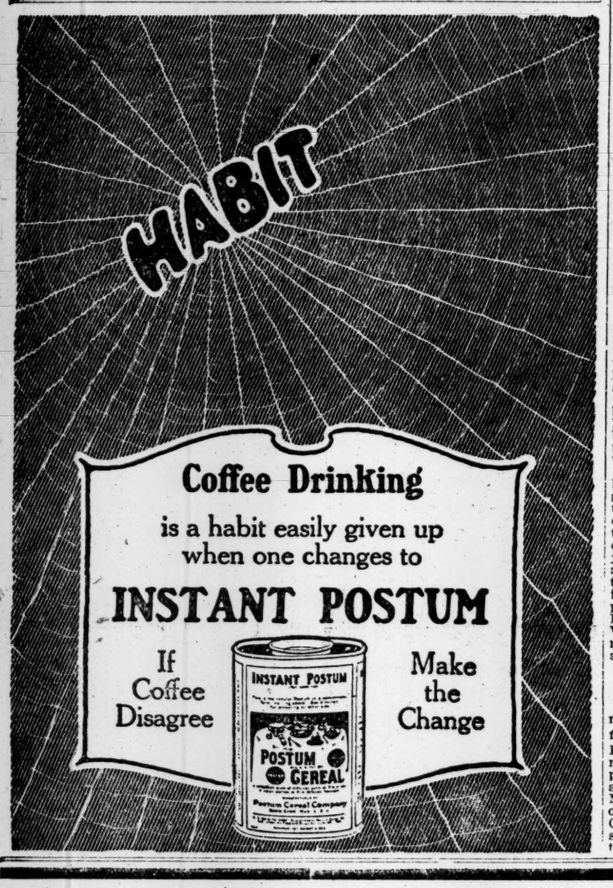
Figured purely as stage entertainment, however, "The Scrap of Paper" may hope to win for itself no inconsiderable portion of success. Its chances for favor, strangely enough, rest not with the star, who waited all evening for an opportunity and received it only at the final curtain, but with Edward Ellis, who, in the role of a high-class crook, won the first honors of the evening rather handily. Mr. Hilliard rose to his final moment neatly, and must receive additional credit for his good sportsmanship in appearing in a play in which his own role was so completely overshadowed.

Devotees of The Post probably will recall that the scrap of paper in question is a document which commits three powerful men to an attempt to corner the resources of the country. The precise nature of this coup is dealt with rather vaguely, and this vagueness is in a measure responsible for the unconvincing quality of the complications. Questions of finance and monopoly drop from view after the opening scene, and the body of the play is concerned with the attempt of the triumvirate to recover the valuable paper, which a chance breeze has carried out of the window. Now and then the chase threatens to become exciting, but it never is of a nature to quicken the pulse or to make the onlooker catch his breath.

Mr. Hilliard's rôle is that of the leader of the malefactors, a rather ungracious one up to the final few minutes of the play. He plays it, of course, capably. But it was Mr. Ellis, crook though he was, that the audience welcomed to its heart. To him fall a majority of the pert speeches of the play, and he delivered them with all the unction which stood him in such good stead in "Wallingford." Carroll McComas played the heroine sweetly and Dudley Hawley was a manly hero, but Russ Whytal was miscast as one of the magnates, and failed completely to convey any suggestion of power.

Joan Sawyer Again at the Palace.

The new program at the Palace is made up almost entirely of established favorites. Joan Sawyer and George Harcourt are back with a variety of new and old ballroom dances, and the program also includes such standbys as Lucille Cavanagh, Bernard Granville, Montgomery and Perry and the trio of Dooleys. The films showing the German retreat at Arras are also to be seen, and are being exhibited as well in the other Keith houses.



Coal

FEW coal dealers throughout the country have had at any time this year a sufficient supply of coal on hand to fill their customers' bins.

Every absolute need for coal must be supplied. Nearly as many tons of coal must be delivered this year to the consumer as in former years, but necessarily must now be delivered to the individual coal bin more frequently and rapidly than ever before.

Coal must be constantly and equitably distributed as fast as it is being consumed. It is too late in the season for a railroad carload of coal to be apportioned to any one consumer—it must be divided and delivered to many. Coal dealers and consumers must co-operate in making and accepting deliveries of coal more frequently and in smaller quantities.

Our two-ton power dump coal motor truck will solve the coal-distributing problem this fall and winter more efficiently and effectively than any other distribution device that we know of.

Herbert Brenon's The Fall of the Romanoffs

Wilhelm, the Unbelievable, Emperor of Germany.

Two arch-conspirators scheming to bring about a separate peace which would have placed Russia under German domination, and the destruction of the whole colossal plot: This is the theme undertaken by Herbert Brenon in this great Motion Picture Vision of Contemporary History.

"Believing in his art and himself, Mr. Brenon chose the gilt-edged frame of the Ritz as a setting for his latest contribution to the screen. He invited his fellow producers and their friends to pass judgment on what he had done, and with no exception worthy of note every motion picture man of prominence in New York accepted. The premiere of 'The Fall of the Romanoffs' assumed an importance comparable to those of 'Cabiria,' 'The Birth of a Nation,' and 'Intolerance,' and rightly so. The picture is history as fresh as the headlines of a five-star extra."—Lynde Denig in The Dramatic Mirror.

NEW YORK, TUESDAY, SEPT. 18, 1917.

WHEN SPRING COMES.

There remain, at the most, six weeks of fighting weather. Fighting will still go on for a while after that, but nothing of importance can be undertaken. The story of the campaign of 1917 is nearly told. It has not been one of the great years of the war; it was to have been, but the collapse of Russia upset the plans of the Allies, and Germany was at the end of hers. We are speaking, of course, of the military history; great events have happened in 1917, but their effect on the battle front is for the future rather than the present. The Russian revolution prevented the delivery of the great blow from all sides against Germany and her allies, but prevented it only for 1917. The entrance of America was the great event, but its effect on the military situation will not be felt until 1918.

After the military hibernation, the great battle which was to have been fought in 1917, the battle between the Teutonic Powers and all the Allies, will begin in the Spring. Nothing can prevent it except the success of that movement to which Germany's endeavors are now all directed, the attempt to seduce or bribe a German peace, and we can safely dismiss that from consideration. If no great change takes place on the Austrian or the Russian front, we shall then see the United States on the battle line in sufficient force to take an active part, and with barely touched reserves of strength behind her. England is amply equipped with both men and supplies, and far from the end of her resources; and we know now that the submarine campaign has failed to "bring her to her knees." France is at the maximum of her strength; she is well supplied for 1918, though she has reached the end of her drawing power. We shall see, in the Spring of 1918, these three allies delivering their blow on the western front at Germany, whose resources are diminishing, whose man power has reached its maximum, and whose growing lack of the necessary material for war is established by many indications.

We shall certainly see Italy in a dominating position in her war against Austria. How much General CADORNA can achieve before Winter no one can predict, but if Winter came tomorrow he would still have Austria on the hip. She is much more shaken than Germany, her needs are greater, and he is not only on her soil but pushing his way across it. Italy's allies will be guilty of an inconceivable mistake if they fail to aid her with whatever she requires in the way of munitions and supplies.

Russia is the uncertain quantity, but even if she does not regain her equilibrium she can aid her allies by keeping German armies busy. This she will continue to do, whatever happens, for not even in the improbable event of a Bolsheviki triumph could she safely leave the eastern front unguarded. She could not, because the patriotic party would not assent to the betrayal of Russia, even if an unpatriotic party, momentarily in power, should undertake to negotiate a separate peace. Much more probable than any such outcome are the gradual resumption of discipline in the army and the gradual spread of enlightenment in the nation, until Russia shall be able to play more than a passive part in the military operations. But even if she is still restricted to a passive part, that part has been highly useful to her allies this year and would be next year.

HUNGARIAN 'DEMOCRATIC LINES.'

Dr. ALEXANDER WEKERLE, the Hungarian Premier, has the same warm heart for reform and democracy that made the subject peoples happy in his previous Premiership. He tells the Hungarian Chamber, says a Budapest dispatch, that he "advocates the same principles regarding the suffrage as did his immediate predecessor." His immediate predecessor was Count MAURICE ESTERHAZY, the young Oxford Magyar of the Magyars, who succeeded the "reactionary" Count TISZA. The genuine milk of democratization and franchise reform which Dr. WEKERLE borrows from his immediate predecessor is this:

> I desire to work on democratic lines; but naturally democracy in Hungary can be only a Magyar democracy.

So Count ESTERHAZY on taking office. Reform the franchise as much as you please, so long as the Magyar minority continues to rule Hungary. A military "decision" is the only honest and effective reformer of the Hungarian franchise. Not WEKERLE, the stop-gap Premier, nor his successor, whoever he may be, but General CADORNA will bring democracy to Hungary and to Austria.

PARTY AND CITY.

A letter signed by the five Republican County Chairmen and such variously distinguished Republicans as ELIHU ROOT, former Attorney General WICKERSHAM, CHARLES E. HUGHES, Governor WHITMAN, and Senator CALDER, was sent yesterday to the enrolled Republicans of Greater New York, urging them to vote for the Fusion ticket in tomorrow's primaries. Either Mayor MITCHEL and his associates on that ticket or Tammany will run the city and the Board of Estimate for four years. Four years more of good government or four years of misgovernment. "Republicans can serve their party and the city in no more effective way than by giving at the primaries as large a vote as possible for MITCHEL and his associates, be they Republican, Democratic, or independent. A large vote at the primaries will start the campaign right." That is sound party strategy and sound civic patriotism.

The enrolled Republicans will also receive copies of Mr. HUGHES's admirable letter, previously published, which puts in fourteen words the Fusion case:

> Under Mayor MITCHEL we have had the best administration the city has ever known.

"The entire strength of the Republican Party," Mr. HUGHES writes, "should be cast in favor of Fusion and of the Fusion ticket." It is good policy for the Republican Party to identify itself with good city government. The Democrats are finding out that it is good policy for the Democratic Party, injured in the rest of the State and in the nation by the methods and the reputation of Tammany bosses, who have now caused disgust and desertions in the bosom of the Wigwam.

THE DUTY OF LABOR'S LEADERS.

Some 25,000 iron workers engaged upon emergency war work struck yesterday in over 100 plants in several cities upon the Pacific Coast. The question at issue is not fully stated in dispatches from San Francisco declaring that the demand was for 50 per cent. increase in pay and that the counterproposal was for arbitration. In San Francisco alone work is stopped upon $150,000,000 of Government shipbuilding contracts, and there are side complications in other trades. In Seattle, also, there is a demand for 33 per cent. increase of wages by the builders of wooden ships for the Government, with a demand that the employers shall cease using lumber produced elsewhere, under conditions of employment unsatisfactory to the unions. That is to say, the Seattle strike is a sympathetic strike in support of a boycott. The production of war airplanes is also interrupted by the lumber workers' strike.

These are only the incidents of a day. It would be easy to fill columns with similar incidents in many trades during the war period. They afford a painful contrast with the patriotic professions of labor leaders, and are in flat breach of their formal contract that there should be no factious strikes during the war. For example, many high officials of the Federation of Labor agreed with the Navy Department and the Emergency Fleet Corporation upon a method of adjustment when there was danger of interruption of relations with labor in Government employ. Nothing is heard of resort to the process thus provided, nor will it be a satisfaction of the agreement if it is resorted to after the strike. The time for amicable arrangements is before hostilities, not after. Workers should know that when they resort to a strike they ought to abide by the result of the strike.

It is too early yet to extend condemnation of the strikers to their leaders and to their unions. It does not appear that the strikes now pending have been approved by the national labor authorities, and there have been cases in which they have repudiated what has been done locally. It would seem that they must do so now, if they wish to be considered as keeping the faith which they have pledged. There has been candid and cordial approval of Mr. GOMPERS's putting patriotism of country above patriotism of class. The fact that he did so shows that he did what he could to sustain himself in credit both as a citizen and a labor leader. The American Alliance for Labor and Democracy at Minneapolis rivaled even Mr. GOMPERS in pledges of "the moral and material power of the working class" in support of the country in its crisis.

It does not follow that strikes are wrong because they would add hundreds of millions to Government expenses. That is no reason for withholding a just wage. Labor is scarce and is entitled to a scarcity wage. Nobody wants to saddle the cost of winning the war upon labor. Others should feel the pinch first. But there are demands of labor which should be repressed at all times, and particularly in times like these. No man is entitled at any time to demand that other men shall not work because he is dissatisfied with the wages which other men need and will take. No combination of men is justified in creating scarcity of labor by any methods beyond withholding the labor of the combination. There is no ground for sympathy for those who are improving their conditions of life by preventing others from enjoying like advantages. A strike is not wrong because it is a strike, the result of a combination of wage earners. A strike must be judged on its merits, and the merits are not always those which are avowed. At the week-end the typographical union ordered printers to cease even voting upon sharing in the sympathetic strike at Springfield, Ill. Mr. GOMPERS has disavowed more than one strike. If he wishes the country to regard him as a safe leader, it is now his duty either to justify or to disavow these strikes. If the leaders cannot control their followers, the country is put to a choice between reliance upon union or nonunion labor in the work of saving democracy. It is unionism which is in danger, not the country. Nonunion labor outnumbers union labor ten to one. It would be better to rely upon both than upon either. But there must be no dallying with acts supported by arguments like those of foreign proletarians upon pretense of benevolence or uplift. The United States has no use for a Bolsheviki party. The Government's difficulty is not the opportunity for the establishment of the unlawful activities of unionism or for the unfair betterment of conditions of organized labor at the expense of nonunionists and taxpayers alike.

WAR AND ANTI-WAR SUFFRAGISTS

The suffrage street meetings were begun last night. Women's part in the war, their great and various service to the Government, will be dwelt upon by the speakers. That service and that part, nobly proportionate to women's patriotism and capacity for sacrifice, are to be urged as reason for giving them the ballot. Since, however, the work of women for the United States is shared by the multitude of women who are opposed to woman suffrage, the ballot would be a punishment to them instead of a "reward," if the privilege of voting is a gift or premium.

Meanwhile, there is an active variety of suffragists that does not regard war or peace from a patriotic or American point of view. The Socialist suffragists, women and men, are getting ready to disseminate "literature." They, too, are to hold daily meetings. They belong to a party dedicated to pacifism, to a German peace, a party of extreme opposition to the war, which it has officially declared unjustifiable, "even on the plea that it is a war in defense of American rights or American 'honor.'" The German submarine policy was not an interference with American rights, the so-called American Socialists say, but only interference with the opportunity of "certain groups of capitalists to coin money out of the blood and suffering of our fellow-men."

"We brand the declaration of war by our Government," the platform adopted by the Socialists at St. Louis last April says, "as a crime against the people of the United States and against the nations of the world." There never was a more unjustifiable war, according to the majority Socialists. They have pledged themselves to continuous, active, and public opposition to the war through demonstrations, mass petitions, and all other means within their power. They pledged themselves to labor for the repeal of all conscription laws. The Socialist Party, according to the pamphlet "The Socialist Party Platform," published at the national headquarters in Chicago, "urges upon the workers in the mines and forests, on the railways and ships, in factories and fields, the use of their economic and industrial power by refusing to mine the coal, to transport soldiers, to furnish food or other supplies for military purposes."

It is to aid this precious program that the Socialists want woman suffrage. These allies may be as troublesome as the picketers to the discreeter suffragists who have given up other war work for the greater war work of persuading a stolid public to vote for the suffrage amendment.

AN EXAMPLE.

At last one of the idle neutral ships which are not permitted to carry American products to their countries in Europe has lifted anchor and gone to work. The Carisholm came here from Sweden for a load of wheat and fodder. Realizing that she cannot have these, her owners have taken on a cargo of coal for Chile, and from that country she will bring back nitrate, which is needed for our farms.

Here is an example that should be followed by the Norwegian ships at Philadelphia and Baltimore, and the scores of Dutch vessels on which grain is rotting at New York. Why do they wait? If they do not voluntarily unload and go into service, our Government will find work for them and require them to do it.

THAT LAKE OF POTASH.

At the annual meeting of the American Chemical Society, on the 11th, Dr. NICHOLS of the National Research Council said that "the greatest known deposit of potash in the world, estimated to be worth more than one billion dollars, is awaiting development." Immediate utilization of this potash, he added, depended upon our Congress. The deposit of which he spoke is in Searles Lake, California, whose waters, it is estimated by the Geological Survey and the Bureau of Mines, hold in solution 20,000,000 tons of this mineral. Before the war our supplies of potash came from Germany. Imports were 520,000 tons in 1913, but only 10,000 last year, and the old price has been multiplied by ten. We are producing small quantities from feldspar, alunite, cement waste, and seaweed, but very much more is needed.

Development of the lake deposits depends upon Congress, because the lake and surrounding land were withdrawn some time ago by the Government from the operation of mining and land settlement laws. A bill to permit and promote utilization of this potash was passed in the Senate on Aug. 10. It provides for leases, if satisfactory terms concerning rentals and royalties can be made. The potash should be taken out by private companies or the Government. Two companies have accessible reduction plants which could begin the work at once, but it would be necessary for the Government to expend $1,000,000 in preparation. We suggest that the American Chemical Society by resolution ask Congress to take final action upon the bill without delay. It has the support of the Council of National Defense. In committee hearings and the Senate debate reference was made to the remark of Dr. WILHELM OSTWALD, German Privy Councilor, that "America went into the war like a man with a rope around his neck, a rope which is in enemy hands," because Germany, having "a world monopoly of potash, can dictate which of the nations shall have plenty of food and which shall starve." Even if we can get no potash fertilizers for the farms, we shall not starve, but in Searles Lake there is an ample supply for many years to come.

GERMANY'S REGRETS AND EXPLANATIONS.

Germany officially regrets the "phraseology" of the dispatch of her diplomat advising that submarines should sink neutral ships without leaving a living witness. Unofficially, German newspapers explain that the meaning was that witnesses of such piratical practices should not be turned adrift, but should be taken aboard submarines in order to prevent their testifying if rescued. It would have been better for Germany if she had been silent, officially and unofficially, rather than that such regrets and explanations should be offered to an insulted and surfeited world.

As regards the official regret, it is sufficient to remark that there is not the least repudiation of either the agent or the policy which he advised. In other words, both, having been challenged, are approved. Thereby Germany condemns itself. Regarding the unofficial explanation, it is sufficient to remark that it comes as a tardy afterthought, and, as it happens, on the same day that the sworn testimony is published of a survivor of the Belgian Prince. He survived as by a miracle, by the mere chance that his raincoat concealed his life preserver when the life preservers were taken away from his companions. They were lined up on the deck of the submarine, which then submerged, and it was thought that no trace was left.

It might be possible to doubt the testimony of the survivor if the case stood alone. Nobody would credit an affidavit that a British or American or French warship committed such an atrocious act, so incredible on the part of a God-fearing nation and sailors worthy of it. But German sailors are different. They are capable of accepting and executing orders to sink Lusitanias. It is now necessary to believe that they are capable of slaying witnesses of their murders. Germany regrets only the "phraseology" of a diplomat capable of advising that it should be done. Out of their own mouths, by their own acts, Germany and Germans condemn themselves together.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Not Fighting, But Are In the Army.

There are no "battalions of death" in the British Army—as yet; possibly there will be, later—but already a "Woman's Army Auxiliary Corps," the members of which are regularly enlisted for a year, or longer if the war lasts longer, is serving under the British flag in France, and the Government has seen fit to make public many details of what these women soldiers are doing and how they are doing it.

Their work is all behind the lines, though in not a few instances it is not so far behind as to be free from danger. In every instance the women fill places formerly occupied by men, and as a result, presumably, of experience, though assumption may have had a little to do with it, where three men were formerly employed four women are supplied. The women have proved themselves so efficient as regimental cooks that they claim that this ratio in justice should be reversed, as regards that position, even if it did make their tasks a little harder.

Discipline as applied in this corps is of true military severity, but punishments, as might be expected, are rare, it having been found necessary, so far, to send home for misconduct only three women, and their offenses are described as "not serious."

Most difficult to get in adequate numbers, it seems, are workers of the charwoman class, to do scrubbing and washing up. The reason given for this scarcity is the somewhat curious one that the women who do such work are usually old, with many domestic ties, and are therefore unable to go away from home.

The management of the corps is wholly in feminine hands. The pay, while it would not be regarded in peace times as very attractive, is well up to the common army standards. It runs from £500 per year, with quarters, for Mrs. CHALMERS-WATSON, who is Chief Controller, down to £175 a year to a "unit administrator" in charge of more than 300 girls. Of the non-commissioned officers and the rank and file, the forewoman telegrapher gets 50 shillings a week, a qualified forewoman motor-driver mechanic 40 shillings, and a shorthand typist 39 shillings 6 pence.

Expensive Advice to Economize.

Only a few days ago the head of the Fuel Commission, Dr. GARFIELD, presented excellent reasons why everybody, out of consideration for shortage of labor and difficulties of transportation, should be economical in the use of coal, even to the extent of keeping house temperatures this Winter at a point so low as to be, in most American opinions, decidedly uncomfortable. The advice was good, and patriotic Americans were prepared to heed it. Their zeal, however, will be a little weakened when they read that Mr. HOOVER, the Food Administrator, in order to promote the kind of saving in which he is particularly interested, has arranged for the brilliant electric lighting of great outdoor signs bearing exhortations to eliminate waste in kitchen and dining room.

That is good advice, too, and many are following it, from necessity as well as from patriotism. But most of us know that electrical illumination means coal burned—a lot of it when the illumination is brilliant—and in not a few minds doubts are arising as to whether food-saving can be sufficiently promoted by this sort of advertising to pay for the fuel it will divert from other uses. That in many or several instances the electric light companies have offered or promised to supply current for these signs free of charge is creditable to them, of course, as showing their desire to contribute to a public cause, but that fact has nothing to do with the question whether or not it is judicious, at this time, to burn coal for an end certainly attainable in other ways.

The episode is not very important in itself, perhaps, the electricity thus to be employed being only a minute fraction of the total amount produced, but what is true of these few signs is also true of an enormous quantity of other outside advertising of the same kind. Much of this, if not all of it, might cease for the period of coal scarcity with no very appreciable loss to any community and with a saving of fuel in the aggregate large enough measurably to mitigate war hardships and losses.

The electric signs do make our streets more cheerful at night, indeed, and that is something, but they are ugly things by day, ruinous to such pretensions to municipal architecture as are made in our business streets, and it is at least possible that they offend as many people as they please.

Speech Is Never Unrestricted.

Everybody directly and officially concerned with the stopping of seditious talk by street orators seemingly admits that an end should be put to this form of oratory, but out of the confused and confusing interchange of statement and contention on the subject common folk can gather little more than that there is no present prospect of jail for any of the orators. Whether the fault lies with the law or with this, that, or the other group of the law's executors is a question of some interest, of course, but it is not receiving anything like as much of public attention as is the question why a task which in any civilized community should not be a very difficult one is tossed about from one seat of authority to another and is performed in none of them.

At the foundation of all these hesitations, apparently, is a general reluctance to encounter the sort of criticism, later condensing into the antagonism of this or that "vote" which is sure to follow any action open to denunciation as interference with "freedom of speech." That is a cry dangerous, indeed, to anybody against whom it can be raised, and yet freedom of speech always has been, and always will be, strictly limited in every country, and not less, though differently, in countries without an Emperor or Czar to impose silence in accordance with his own tastes or interests.

Many people are under the amusingly incorrect impression that "our fathers" came here to establish free speech. The Quakers whom they whipped at cartails could have told another story, and, as a matter of fact, often did. So could the Tories. The only man who can say exactly what he pleases and all of it is the solitary inhabitant of a desert island. After Friday came, Robinson Crusoe had to be at least a little careful of what he said, or there would have been war at once. Here and now the restrictions on free speech are, and must be, much more numerous, and yet, from much of the current eloquence, one might imagine that the suppression of treason was a dreadful infringement of our constitutional liberties.

Americans Enlisted as Canadians.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With reference to the number of Americans in the Canadian army:

From the casualty list I was led to suspect that their number was greater than indicated by the official report, so I gave particular attention to two little camps for convalescent soldiers in the place where I was living the last Summer. I found that about 10 per cent. in one camp and about 12 in the other had come from the United States, and that, one or two excepted, all had given themselves out to be Canadians when enlisting to escape complications. This percentage possibly was unusual, so to check it I obtained quietly the judgment of the men themselves on the subject. One of the most intelligent of them, and they were unusually alert-minded, put their number at 50,000, the other estimated less, down to 35,000. Furthermore, I took the opinions of other British-born soldiers, which I found to be in substantial agreement, they assuring me, moreover, that many Americans were in every Canadian regiment. Therefore, it is beyond doubt that the number of Americans in the Canadian army is far greater than the official list would show; that the exact figure cannot be ascertained. My research would seem to point to 85,000 as a reasonably conservative estimate, with 50,000 as a maximum.

MASTERY OF THE AIR.

Statistics to Show That Germans Have Still the Best of It.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Our pleased complacency over the reported inferiority in the air of the German airmen receives a rude jolt when the official reports of the combatants are studied. Aware of the natural human desire to boast of successes and minimize losses whether in human military affairs or human social affairs, and admitting the improbability of arriving at exact figures in computing true scores from the reports submitted to the world by the war censors, one can still fairly well estimate the comparative standing of the rival air forces from the admissions made by the respective sides in regard to enemy claims.

In the following computation I have taken the figures of German scores from French and English technical magazines. The fact that they are not denied or ridiculed by the unfriendly publications permits one to assume they are correct.

Germany's "star" airman is Baron von Richthofen, who has the world's record of sixty-one enemy aircraft shot down to date. On Aug. 18 last, Chasing Squadron No. 11, of which Captain von Richthofen is commanding officer, had brought down two hundred airplanes of the Allies, one hundred and twenty-one of which were bagged in German lines; a large number of these were repaired and put into the German air service.

This squadron score was totaled during the seven months' existence of von Richthofen's flying circus. No squadron of the Allies even approximates this total in twice that length of operations.

It is worthy of note that our enemy's air strategy, which is contemptuously referred to by our press correspondents as cowardly, permits the Germans to capture our pilots and our one hundred and twenty-one airplanes, when they wait for our air forces to fight over German lines instead of seeking combat over our own.

The Tägliche Rundschau of July 26 last claims Germany has brought down since the beginning of the war two thousand two hundred and ninety-eight Allies' airplanes in her lines, one hundred and eighty-six captive balloons back of the trenches, and three airships, presumably over the English fleet. This statement was subsequently quoted in French publications and was not attacked.

Fifteen leading Aces of the German fighting squadrons have totaled up to Aug. 21 last four hundred and forty-eight enemy aircraft brought down—an average of thirty each. The fifteen best scores of the Allies' airmen, including French, British, Italian, and American fighters, totals two hundred and eighty-eight. Our average is then but two-thirds that of our opponents.

Again an evidence of the German superiority in the air is disclosed. For, of the fifteen Aces of the German squadrons, but four have been killed, one retired for wounds and none captured. Their tactics of accepting combat only when in superior numbers and formation then permits their expert fighters to live and fight longer for their country; for, of the fifteen leaders among our air forces, five were killed, three captured and three were retired from service.

It is safe to say that in the matter of quality of airplane and engine construction our painstaking enemy has led the world since the beginning of the war. This is equally true in the matters of airplane performances, gun mounting, and aerial tactics. The present type of German Albatross fighting machine is the deadliest airplane in the air. Her bomb-carrying Gotha machine which raided London on July 7 last in a squadron of over twenty is the greatest defensive air-fighter the world has ever seen.

Are we to permit ourselves fatuously to believe we have an easy task ahead? Should we not rather err on the safe side, and, studying the methods whereby Germany has achieved her logical superiority, strive to surpass her in every detail of value?

Idle Dutch Ships.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It was a great pleasure to see your editorial Saturday advocating the commandeering of the grain ships for neutral ports now lying idle in our harbors. Every day for the last two months, on my way to and from business, I have seen these ships anchored in the Hudson, their time wasted, their cargoes spoiling, while ships and grain are the great need of the world. And I have wondered, as thousands of others must have wondered, why the owners should prefer to let their property stand idle and deteriorate rather than unload it or divert it to another destination. They are intelligent business men; they must know that there is little chance that they will be allowed to proceed to their present destination. Whose interest can they be serving in refusing to alter it? Certainly not their own. They are simply destroying their own property to no purpose. Nor can one see how it can be to the interest of the Dutch Government or people to require or permit such waste. Better by far to dispose of the cargoes and charter the ships to the Allies on profitable terms. There is only one party to whose interest it is that the ships should be idle, their cargoes destroyed rather than help the transportation and supplies of the Allies, and that is Germany. These owners and consignors are obviously playing the German game. They know perfectly well what they are doing. That they should deliberately prefer this course is the strongest argument I have yet seen for the belief that Germany has in fact been receiving large supplies of food directly or indirectly from this country through neutral traffic. Figures of imports may mean much or little, they may be explained away, and when presented by interested parties various suspicions may attach to their apparent significance. But merchants do not destroy their own property without an adequate reason, and there is only one reason that appears adequate for the procedure of these grain ships. Every day that they lie idle adds to the evidence that justified the President's embargo, and to the argument for further procedure along the lines suggested in your editorial.

SENTA'S SONG.

I hear the mirth of them that reap
And build the pale green stacks,
I hear the song of them that spin
And wind the silvern flax,
But long it is that I must wait
Though harvest dusk falls soon,
To hear the great sea tell of thee
Beneath a sickle moon.

No ring or chain has plighted us,
No jewel red as wine.
It is the deep sea's fateful gem
That links thy love and mine—
A jewel brighter than the gold
That decks the Love-bird's plume,
And darker than the purple cup
That is the Nightshade's bloom.

The sea that lured thee long ago
Far down the royal wind,
The sea whose spell would break thine heart
In pride of youth that sinned.
The sea that parts us by the span
No ships can sail beyond,
Whose doom has wrought thy need of me—
It is our dear love's bond!

ISHII PREDICTS CLOSER TIES.

Commissioner Asserts Pacific Ocean Is Growing More Narrow.

NEWPORT, Sept. 17.—Full confidence that the good understanding between America and Japan would increase to the end of all time was expressed today by Viscount Ishii, head of the Japanese Mission, in his only public utterance during the two days' visit of the party to this city. Speaking at a public reception in the Casino, the Viscount said:

"Newport is storied in the mind of every school child in Japan as the resting place of Commodore Matthew Perry. Not so long ago but that living men well remember and tell it to their grandchildren, Japan lived in isolation, well contented. One day there came a knocking at our door and, looking forth, we saw strange sights indeed. Fantastic folk in awesome ships with gruesome guns held out the hand of friendship, and thus came America and Commodore Perry to our shores.

"These sixty years just passed must constitute one full chapter in the history of Japan. During all that time the Pacific Ocean, so illimitable then to us, has been growing more narrow daily. The East and the West, which stood aloof without a thing in common except their common humanity, have by that wonderful thread been drawn closer and even closer together until today we stand shoulder to shoulder as friends and allies defying the power of evil to destroy that splendid heritage which we are agreed to share as common heirs.

"I am convinced that with the turning of the page and the opening of this new chapter of international history, and so through the end of all time and all chapters, our good understanding will increase. The road between our homes will become more and more the beaten track of neighbors.

"I am more than ever convinced that we have done with the difficult pages over which we have labored in the night of doubt, and that in the full light of honest purpose, with the eyes of faith and trust, we shall both as nations free, strong, and independent, make more frequent pilgrimages to the shrine we love—you to Tokio, where we hope to bid you welcome soon, and we to Newport, whose beauty and wealth of hospitality exceed the most vivid picturings of our imagination."

Tonight the members of the mission were entertained at dinner by Governor Beeckman. They leave for Boston tomorrow.

SUFFRAGISTS SEEK FUNDS.

State Treasurer Announces Plans for "Sacrifice Week."

Mrs. Ogden Mills Reid, Treasurer of the New York State Woman Suffrage Party, announced yesterday plans for the suffrage sacrifice week in New York City, Sept. 24-30, the purpose of which is to finance the suffrage campaign here until election day, Nov. 6.

"Because of their war service to the State and nation, the one million enrolled women of the Suffrage Party now find themselves with an empty treasury," Mrs. Reid said. "That is the reason for our suffrage sacrifice week.

"War came just as we were about to open our Statewide campaign, and the first thing done by the State Suffrage Party was to offer our entire organization to the Governor for whatever service he might see fit in our war against Germany. Since then the women of our party have carried on many big undertakings for the Government.

"Nassau and Westchester County suffragists had entire charge of the census taking in their counties. In New York City over 11,000 women worked in 400 registration bureaus. In every county the suffragists helped in the census work. In Warren County alone thirty-five Red Cross chapters were organized by the Suffrage Party. Many county suffrage teams raised money for the Red Cross fund. Suffrage speakers sold $4,000,000 worth of Liberty bonds. In many rural counties the suffragists organized canning clubs and sent speakers on canning and food conservation throughout the State. The Suffrage Party is now canvassing the women of the State with the Hoover food conservation pledges. The New York City Woman Suffrage Party has given $22,000 for Y. M. C. A. units, one at Plattsburg, the other at Camp Upton, L. I.

"Naturally, as a consequence of this war work we are as a party without funds for the few suffrage activities which may be carried on between now and Nov. 6 in connection with our war work, which, of course, will continue as usual. All those who are willing to volunteer for service throughout sacrifice week are requested to send their names and addresses to suffrage headquarters, 303 Fifth Avenue."

Charles McLean, General Field Agent of the Men's National Anti-Suffrage Association, returning from Maine, where he had charge of the campaign against votes for women conducted by his organization, predicted yesterday that New York also would vote against suffrage in the coming election.

"Suffrage never has been victorious in a general election," he said. "It has scored most of its victories in Legislatures by persistently nagging and harassing legislators. But when the people generally have a chance to vote, suffrage always is defeated."

OPEN BROAD ST. HOSPITAL.

Institution Established to Meet the Needs of Wall Street Section.

The Broad Street Hospital at South and Broad Streets was opened yesterday for the reception of patients. The event was unmarked by ceremonies of any character, the formal dedication being scheduled for a date to be selected later in the month. The hospital building is seven stories high and as equipped represents an outlay of $270,000. Of this amount $200,000 was contributed by James Barber, the balance being given by firms and individuals.

The hospital was established to meet the needs of about 20,000 residents of the south end of the city, extending from the East to the North Rivers and as far north as Canal Street. Although no fixed area has been defined by the management, two motor ambulances of the latest type and a thoroughly equipped dispensary were also placed at the disposal of the public with the opening of the hospital proper.

Dr. A. J. B. Savage is Superintendent and with him are associated thirty-three physicians who will devote much of their time to the institution. Four internes and a corps of trained nurses complete the medical staff. The building contains three large wards in addition to a receiving and emergency ward, and two open solariums have been fitted up on the roof. There are two operating rooms on the top floor, each fully equipped, and each floor has its own special diet kitchen, pathological laboratories and sterilizing apparatus. There are in all ten private rooms with bathrooms attached, and there is a separate movable bath tub on each floor.

The call signalling system is the only one in operation in the hospitals of New York. The signal button at the bedside of each patient flashes the number of the bed and likewise the number of the nurse on duty simultaneously in the offices of the Superintendent and Assistant Superintendent, the diet kitchen and on that particular floor, the nurses' workroom, and over the desk in the ward. These numbers remain visible until the nurse releases them by pressing another signal. In this manner it will be possible to ascertain how much time elapses between the call of the patient and the arrival of the nurse at the bedside.

Private rooms in the hospital have been endowed by Hallgarten & Co., bankers, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, J. J. Carty, New York Telephone Company, Chandler & Floyd, iron manufacturers; James Brown, banker, and Walter Scott.

NAVY LEAGUE WOMEN REJECT RED CROSS

Comforts Committee Decides to Continue Independent Work for Sailors.

DANIELS DECLINES PROFFER

Organization Must Work as Auxiliary in Aiding Sailors, Secretary of the Navy Says.

The Comforts Committee of the Navy League of the United States, with its branches in all parts of the country and a membership of more than 400,000 women, has decided to continue its work as at present organized and will not be absorbed by the American Red Cross. This announcement was made in New York yesterday in the name of the National Comforts Committee, of which Mrs. George Dewey is the honorary Chairman and Mrs. James Carroll Frazer active Chairman.

"We have no fight with the American Red Cross," said Mrs. Frazer, "but we think that, since we already have an efficient organization for carrying on this work, we are in a better position to do it than is the Red Cross, which has not yet perfected its organization along these lines."

The Comforts Committee, it was stated, within the last few days offered to dissociate itself from the Navy League and become an independent organization, and submitted a proposal with this end in view to Secretary Daniels. He rejected the proposal and suggested that the women of the Comforts Committee, acting, not as members of the Navy League but as individuals, co-operate with a naval Red Cross auxiliary, now being organized, with Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia as its head.

The National Comforts Committee disclaims any intention on the part of the committee, or its members in various parts of the country, to enter into a controversy with Secretary Daniels, and state that they stand ready to work in harmony with the Navy Department, and, if necessary, to entirely dissociate themselves from the Navy League, with which organization the Secretary is at odds, and from the members of which he has withdrawn many privileges. The women claim that they had nothing whatever to do with the publication of the "Mare Island explosion story" which is the basis of the controversy between the Secretary and the Navy League.

Plea of the Comforts Committee.

The Comforts Committee gave to THE TIMES yesterday copies of the correspondence which passed between Secretary Daniels and the officials of the Comforts Committee. These letters, it was stated, present to the public for the first time the "Comforts Committee's side" in the present controversy.

The first of these letters, written to the Secretary by Mrs. John C. O'Laughlin, Secretary of the Comforts Committee, under date of Sept. 5, reads:

> The Comforts Committee of the Navy League of the United States, which has served as the medium through which over 200,000 garments have been supplied to the personnel of the navy, is extremely anxious to avoid any misinterpretation of your attitude with reference to the patriotic work in which it is engaged.
> Because of the controversy in which you are engaged with the Navy League of the United States you stated that no further garments would be received for navy use from the Comforts Committee of the Navy League of the United States.
> You rejected a proposal that the Comforts Committee dissociate itself from the Navy League of the United States, and act as an independent receiving and advisory committee, such committee to receive the work of patriotic women and turn it in to the navy.
> It follows that it is your view that the Comforts Committee of the Navy League of the United States, with its organization of 700 units, distributed throughout the United States, disband and cease work.
> You suggested that in the future only through the Red Cross would you be willing to permit the acceptance of sweaters and other garments by the navy, though you added that this would not bar the acceptance of garments from church and other charitable and patriotic societies, save the Comforts Committee of the Navy League of the United States.
> The Comforts Committee of the Navy League of the United States is earnest in the purpose to leave no stone unturned to continue its efforts to aid in alleviating the discomforts and hardships of the men who are so gallantly striving in defense of our common country. It asks you, therefore, to state to it, and through it to the 300,000 women associated with it in its activities, whether the attitude above set forth is that which you have finally determined to adopt.

Gives Authority to Red Cross.

Secretary Daniels replied, under date of Sept. 11, the day following his announcement that he requested Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the War Council of the Red Cross, to organize a Red Cross Naval Auxiliary "to take over entirely the direction of this laudable work of sending tokens of good-will from willing workers to the men of the navy." The letter quotes the correspondence between Mr. Daniels and Mr. Davison with reference to the organization of the Red Cross Naval Auxiliary as follows:

> In the carrying out of this beneficent work through the only organization that has received official recognition in the country, a committee of the Naval Auxiliary of the Red Cross will be named, of which Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia has accepted the Chairmanship. The other members of the committee will be named shortly, and I am sure they will have the earnest co-operation of all the good women of the country, whose devotion to the defenders of our country at sea will cause them to wish to add to their ef

RABBIS SOUND NOTE OF LOYALTY HERE

Holiday Made an Occasion for Great Outpouring of Patriotism in Synagogues and Temples.

The duty confronting every Jew in the United States to be loyal to the Government in the war and to refrain from all agitations tending to embarrass its successful prosecution was the dominant note of sermons and speeches delivered by Jewish leaders here yesterday in commemoration of Rosh ha-Shanah, the declared before the end of the year.

Eight hundred Jews in the Rainbow Division of the army at Camp Mills, Hempstead, L. I., received furloughs to enable them to attend New Year services. The B'nai Israel, which worships in Brooklyn Hall, Freeport, and the synagogue at Rockville Centre, had extended invitations to the men through Major Gen. Mann, and many of those whose homes are in other States accepted. Most of those who live in New York City, however, returned here for divine services. Major Gen. Mann will also grant furloughs to the men for the observance of the Day of Atonement. Leave will start on Sept. 25 at noon and expire on the morning of Sept. 27.

More than 300 soldiers in uniform attended the services at the Institutional Synagogue, 110th Street and Fifth Avenue. They came from cantonments and from military stations in the city.

Abram I. Elkus, ex-Ambassador to Turkey, one of the speakers, prefaced his remarks by expressing the hope that peace would be declared before the end of the year. His address, like the sermons of the Rev. Dr. Samuel Schulman at Temple Beth-El; the Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman at Temple Emanu-El, and the Rev. Dr. M. H. Harris, at Temple Israel, emphasized the great opportunity presented by the war to all classes of citizens for faithful service to the nation.

"I bring to my fellow-countrymen a message from a land steeped in sorrow and desolation," he said. "One year ago today, I attended services in Constantinople, in a synagogue over 400 years old, and the contrast between my surroundings then and now make a deep impression upon me. In Turkey I was surrounded by people on the verge of starvation and suffering untold hardships as the result of the war. Today I am standing in the land of sunshine, where all men are free, enjoying the glory that comes of liberty.

The Duty of the Jew.

"Every citizen of this country is expected to do his duty regardless of how he may feel toward warfare in general and the motives and principles involved. The Jew in America must assume his part in this great burden, gladly and willingly. When the war is brought to an end it will be the task of the nation to see that the sufferers abroad are properly cared for, and at this time every citizen should begin the noble work by leading a helping hand."

Dr. Schulman said in his sermon that the individual's highest duty now was to subordinate his private views to the views of the Government.

"There is only one sane opinion today," he said. "It is that which urges us to give ourselves single-mindedly to our nation until America has made its influence felt and has won a real victory. The American people, in entering the war, have broken with certain old traditions. It has consented to become a world power, and to embrace within its vision the whole world and the interests of humanity. Therefore, the whole nation of a hundred million people is committed to a victory for America—a victory which means nothing selfish, but which means a substantial and independent exertion of power on behalf of what is right, and hastening of the world's peace.

"I have no sympathy with any movement which today would seek to harrass the Government. I do not see any wisdom in mass meetings which would compel our nation, before it is wise and opportune, to give any detailed program of our aims. I do believe we should face facts and not content ourselves with phrases.

Loyalty the First Element.

"I believe, when the nation is at war, patriotism requires not agitation, but the inculcation of loyalty and national solidarity, even while the individual may still think freely and speak freely. At all events, we Jews, in accordance with the teaching of the Prophet Jeremiah, have always prayed for the land in which we live. Loyalty, then, is the first element in the higher law of our life."

Dr. Schulman added that no people can exist without making sacrifices, that he had always believed that the logic of democracy was universal military service and universal military training, and that the best education of the people was an education in duty and service.

"I have no doubt that the sons of Israel will show themselves worthy of their great history and of their unquestioned Americanism," he said. "We must sacrifice not only our lives, if necessary, but we must sacrifice our wealth. Now that we are in the war, we must not whine because of the price we are called upon to pay."

Dr. Schulman asserted that the greatest move for peace made thus far was the President's reply to the Pope.

Dr. Harris's text was "The War as a Judgment," and he predicated it on the contention that defiance of moral law had brought on the war.

"It has remained for this age," he said, "to conduct war by firing on hospitals, sinking merchant ships freighted with human life, to introduce slavery among conquered peoples, and to let them perish by neglect and disease.

"Here are crimes before which even the warrior stands aghast. We must rebuild not only the waste places in the zones of desolation but rear a new spirit of freedom by teaching higher ideals in our schools. Fondly do we hope, fervently do we pray, that this mighty source of war may speedily pass away. Yet if God wills that it continue until all the wealth piled up by the bondman's two hundred and fifty thousand years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn by the lash shall be paid by another drawn with the sword, so still must it be said 'The judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.'"

COLUMBIA IS CLOSED TO PACIFIST JUNIOR

Leon Samson, the Columbia University junior who asked Supreme Court Justice Mullan for a mandamus order compelling the university authorities to rescind their action expelling him because he said "much as we hate the German Kaiser we hate still more the American Kaiser" in a speech delivered last June, failed to get his order. But he drew from the court some sharp comments because of his sentiments and a declaration that he would be a "menace" to the university if permitted to return to that institution.

Justice Mullan incorporated in his opinion the news story which appeared in THE NEW YORK TIMES concerning the public meeting at which Samson expressed the sentiments quoted above, and at which he also predicted a "draft revolution" in this country. The court based his ruling on an implied agreement by Samson when permitted to return to Columbia after a previous suspension to "comport himself in such a manner as not to destroy or interfere with the discipline, good order, and fair name of the university." The court then said:

"By common consent of civilized mankind through the ages, not the least important of the functions of a school or college has been to instill and sink down into the minds of the students love of truth and love of country. Does language of the sort used by the plaintiff at public meetings make him a real or political menace to the morals of the student body and blot on the good name and fame of the honored university whose degree he seeks?"

RUSH STANDS FOR PEACE.

That Is, Surveyor Tells Employes, as Much as Any Irishman Is.

Thomas E. Rush, Surveyor of the Port, and candidate for the nomination for Supreme Court Justice in the Democratic primaries addressed the Summer Night's Festival of the Surveyor's Customs Welfare Association at the Manhattan Casino, Eighth Avenue and 155th Street, last night. The organization was established two years ago by men in the Customs service as a welfare movement. Surveyor Rush said:

"Today we see the world everywhere in revolt in the cause of democracy as against autocracy. Military and even political battles are being waged in the same cause, and the universal battle cry seems to be, 'Make the world safe for democracy,' but you and I naturally prefer peace. In fact, notwithstanding my belligerent activities during the past few weeks, I am a very peaceful citizen myself—that is, as fond of peace as any Irishman ought to be. We, in the Surveyor's Office and in our Welfare League, are doing our share in the formation of this real democracy which has fired the universe with the flame of its enthusiasm. We commend our plan and our organization to all other branches of the public service as a fine example of what can be accomplished by the introduction of the human element into the relations between employers and their subordinates."

AIRCRAFT PROTEST DISAPPEARS IN MAIL

ALL WERE MAILED HERE

Lost Article Sent to Congressmen Complained of So-Called Airplane Trust.

Nearly 900 copies of the Journal of the Aeronautical Society of America, containing the society's protest against Governmental sanction of the Manufacturers' Aircraft Association, which the society considers a trust, have been lost in the mails. They were posted on last Tuesday and about half of them were addressed to members of Congress, before which the society intends to demand a full investigation of the association's formation.

So far officials of the society have been unable to trace the missing documents or to obtain a satisfactory explanation from the Post Office Department as to why, and how, they went astray. In the absence of proof no officer of the society is willing to believe that the Government intentionally interfered with the posting of these documents, but Frederick W. Barker, President of the society, sent this telegram yesterday to Postmaster General Burleson in Washington:

"Sept. 11 Federal Printing Company here mailed 887 copies of protest against formation under Government auspices of aircraft trust, issued by this society. Apparently entire shipment has disappeared. Of this shipment about half addressed to Congressmen. Beg immediate investigation and report. Wish respectfully to point out it is very strange that a protest against a trust promoted by Government offices disappears in the mails, and consider such interference with legitimate correspondence of this society, if intentional, grossly unwarranted and illegal."

Before authorizing the telegram the society had investigated here in New York. The documents were mailed at the main Post Office at the Pennsylvania Station, and officials there, although they professed to know nothing of the missing pamphlets, asserted that all matter received by them on last Tuesday had gone out through the mails in the regular way.

Inquiries were sent to numerous persons to whom the journals had been addressed in different parts of the country, and when replies had been received from many of these asserting that the documents had never been received the telegram to Mr. Burleson was determined upon. Mr. Barker said last night:

"We are entirely in the dark and don't know what to think. I hope we may receive a satisfactory explanation from Mr. Burleson. It is certainly very strange. These protests were addressed to members of the Aeronautical Society all over the country and also to members of the House of Representatives and to the newspapers. Two hundred copies inclosed in letters were sent from the office of the society, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, to United States Senators at Washington and others, and, so far as we know, all of them were delivered.

"In my opinion it is very singular that 887 circulars of printed matter could be done up in a mail bag and disappear entirely without leaving any trace after being left at the General Post Office in the proper way. When Friday came and nothing had been heard of the delivery of the copies of the protest we took the matter up with the Assistant Postmaster here and he said that he would investigate it. As he had not communicated with the society since, I telephoned to him today and he replied that the bag had not been traced so far but he hoped to find it shortly. It is possible that the bag has been mislaid somewhere and may turn up shortly and clear up the mystery."

FINANCIAL MISSION COMING FROM JAPAN

Baron Megata to Head Body of Business Men on Visit to America.

TOKIO, Thursday, Sept. 13.—Japan will send to the United States next month an official commission composed of financiers and business men who will study war time finance and promote business and economic relations between Japan and America. Baron Tanetaro Megata will be Chief Commissioner, and he will be accompanied by experts from the Ministries of Finance and Commerce as well as by four Commissioners representing the commercial life of the empire.

The entrance of America into the war is regarded as creating a new order of things in the world of finance and industry, and Japan wishes to adapt herself to the new conditions. Baron Megata says that the commission will aim at finding means of practical cooperation with America in all ways possible. The commission will visit New York and Washington to consult with Government officials and financiers.

Declares Indiana Suffrage Act Void.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 17.—The Indiana woman suffrage law was declared unconstitutional and void by a Judge of the Marion County Superior Court today. The decision was given in a suit to test the law. Arrangements are being made to appeal immediately to the Indiana Supreme Court to obtain a final decision before the municipal elections in November. The County Court refused to issue a restraining order to prevent women from registering pending a decision of the higher court.

PENNSYLVANIA TELLS OF TAXICAB TROUBLES

Following testimony given yesterday before the Public Service Commission by A. J. County, Vice President of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, concerning the exclusive privilege given to the Westcott Express Company to operate taxicabs in the railroad's terminal in this city, the company sent out a statement embodying Mr. County's testimony and replying to the complaint previously made by the Black and White Cab Company. This company asserted that it had a contract for exclusive service at the terminal in consideration of a payment of $12,000 a year, and that this agreement was rescinded when the cab company refused to withdraw its service from Philadelphia, leaving a clear field to the Quaker City Cab Company.

In its statement the railroad explained that since its terminal in this city was opened, late in 1910, it had unsatisfactory dealings with several taxicab companies.

A "proposed contract" was submitted on May 9, 1917, by the Black and White Company and its execution authorized, the statement said. The question was discussed at several meetings of the railroad officials, and finally the Directors notified Vice President Atterbury, who is now in France, not to let the receipt of a commission stand in the way of good service. Then the statement adds:

"As Mr. Atterbury explained the matter to the Directors, he felt that to be assured beyond question of a reliable and permanent taxicab service, there was at present only one company in the City of New York qualified to give it, and that was the Westcott Express Company. Mr. Atterbury explained that that company firmly declined to pay any commission for the privilege, stating that it was not possible to give the service required by the public and make a profit and pay a commission."

The Public Service Commission questioned only Mr. County yesterday and then announced an adjournment until today.

Because Mrs. Olga Kohler Florman, daughter of the late Charles Kohler, piano manufacturer, and wife of Nils Florman, now a jewelry salesman, has gone into debt while trying to live on $25,000 a year, Surrogate Cohalan signed an order yesterday directing the trustees of the estate to pay Mrs. Florman $120,000 from the accumulated income of the estate. The total surplus income is $1,278,150.

In explaining why $25,000 does not pay her bills, Mrs. Florman said her husband earns only $90 a week and that she is compelled to support her three-year-old son. She paid $2,000 a month for a cottage at Sands Point, L. I., $5,000 for her apartment at 777 Madison Avenue, and employs three servant's, a governess for her son, and a chauffeur.

ENSIGN MARRIES IN HASTE.

The marriage of Francis Townsend Hunter, an Ensign in the United States Navy, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen C. Hunter of Premium Point Park, New Rochelle, and Miss Helen Douglas Berry, the daughter of Mrs. Edward Berry of 4 Neptune Avenue, New Rochelle, took place last evening at the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. E. Irving Hanson, at Beechmont Park.

The bride, in white satin and point applique lace, was attended by Mrs. Sidney W. Goldsmith as matron of honor, and her little niece, Miss Dorothy Houghton Hanson, was the flower girl. Stuart Ketchum and E. Irving Hanson, Jr., were the ushers, and Sidney E. Goldsmith was the best man.

Ensign Hunter has been graduated from Annapolis, married, and is now on his honeymoon within a week. He was graduated from Cornell, where he was Captain of the tennis and hockey teams, last year, and went into business in Wall Street this city.

When war was declared he enlisted in the Naval Reserve and was chosen as one of the honor men to attend the special session at Annapolis. He was graduated on Sept. 14 with the first Officers' Reserve Class and received his commission as Ensign. On his return from the wedding journey Ensign Hunter will report for service on one of the super-dreadnaughts.

Miss Boylan Weds C. A. Fallon.

Miss Margaret Angela Mary Boylan of 40 Willow Drive, Mount Vernon, N. Y., was married there yesterday morning at a nuptial mass in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament to Clarence A. Fallon of New Rochelle. The ceremony was performed by her brother, the Rev. Philip I. Boylan of the Church of St. Charles Borromeo, West 141st Street, New York City, who was assisted by the Rev. B. Eustace and the Rev. Anthony Ruthlauff of New Rochelle.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. William Joseph H. Thompson, and Miss Marie Louise Thompson as flower girl.

Turkenton-Wright.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Helen Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wright of Mayfield, Ky., and William James Turkenton of Washington, D. C., which took place last Saturday in this city, the Rev. John T. Myers of Mayfield officiating. After spending their honeymoon in the Adirondacks, the couple will be at home at 1,316 New Hampshire Avenue, N. W., Washington. The bride attended the Castle School at Tarrytown.

Brown-Stuart Engagement.

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Judson Brown of 1,261 Madison Avenue, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Agnes Mildred Brown, to Harold Coe Stuart, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Marshall Stuart of 40 East Thirty-ninth Street. Miss Brown's father is Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United States. Mr. Stuart is a graduate of Princeton, class of '14. No date has been set for the wedding.

B. R. NEWTON CHOSEN FOR PORT COLLECTOR

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—President Wilson today decided to appoint Byron R. Newton, now Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, to be Collector of Customs of the Port of New York, to succeed Dudley Field Malone, who resigned because of dissatisfaction over the attitude of the Wilson Administration toward the militant suffragist pickets, who were sent to the workhouse for obstructing traffic by displaying banners in front of the White House gates. The nomination of Mr. Newton for the Collectorship was signed by the President this afternoon and will be sent to the Senate this week, probably tomorrow. Mr. Malone's resignation was accepted today.

The choice of Mr. Newton was made on the personal recommendation of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, who saw the President today in Mr. Newton's behalf. His appointment will save the Administration possible embarrassment over showing which side it favors in the Mayoralty campaign in New York this year. Mr. Newton has not been aligned with either faction in the Democratic Party in the city, and while his sympathies have been with the independent element headed by Mayor Mitchel, he has not taken any prominent part in politics.

Assistant Secretary Newton has charge of the Treasury Department administration of public buildings, the Public Health Service, and the Coast Guard. He came to Washington with Mr. McAdoo when the latter was appointed Secretary of the Treasury, and served for a while as private secretary. Afterward he was appointed Assistant Secretary. Prior to his Washington experience he had been associated with Mr. McAdoo in the latter's business connection with the McAdoo tunnels, and in the Democratic preconvention campaign of 1914 and 1912 had worked with Mr. McAdoo to bring about the nomination of Mr. Wilson for President. In the Presidential campaign of 1912 he was an assistant to Joseph P. Tumulty in conducting the personal work of the Wilson campaign.

Mr. Newton is by profession a newspaper man. In his connection with The Associated Press he was a war correspondent in Cuba in 1898. For nine years he was the Albany correspondent of The Buffalo Evening News, and for eight years he was on the staff of The New York Herald.

After receiving a letter yesterday from President Wilson accepting his recent resignation, Collector Malone formally turned his office over to Henry C. Stuart, Special Deputy Collector, who will continue as Acting Collector until the President fills the vacancy. At noon several hundred customs employes gathered in the Custom House to say goodbye. Mr. Malone made a short speech in which he reiterated the views embodied in his letter of resignation.

"We cannot have real democracy in this country while one-half of its population is denied the franchise," he said, "and I hope our Government, by the passage of the Federal suffrage amendment, will enfranchise the women of this country. On this issue I stand, and for this result I shall work with all my heart and energy."

Mr. Malone declined to make public the President's letter or his own reply to it.

TO DISCUSS STANDARD LOAF

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—More than 2,000 master bakers, grain dealers and millers assembled here today to attend the convention of the Master Bakers' Association to attempt to solve the bread problem in conjunction with representatives of Food Administrator Hoover. Beginning tomorrow morning the convention, which will last throughout the week, will take up the problem of the future price of bread, the adulteration of bread, and the means of getting raw material from the farmers.

The question of a standard loaf of sixteen ounces and a standard price for it, is dividing the delegates. Administrator Hoover, who has been in conference with the council of breadmakers in Washington, is said to favor the standard size and price. The council will report to the convention on Wednesday the result of their conference with the food commissioner.

"We intend to cooperate with the Government," President McDonald said today. "We can profit by the experiences of European nations during this war in relation to bread. One problem is adulteration. They adopted adulteration in Europe, but we believe that the quality of the bread should be maintained, at least until we are convinced that a shortage in the supply of wheat will make adulteration necessary."

Speaking on the subject of the standard loaf and the standard price, President McDonald said:

"If we adopt a standard weight and a standard price for the loaf, the fluctuating cost of materials will create confusion. Unless prices of materials can be fixed, it seems impossible to fix a price on a standard weight. Either the price or the weight must fluctuate with the changing cost of materials."

Jay Burns of Omaha, former President of the National Bakers' Association, speaking on the future cost of bread, said:

"The 5-cent loaf is a thing of the past. The overhead expenses of making a 5-cent loaf is as great as in making a larger loaf. Consider the cost of materials other than flour that go into bread—lard, sugar, and other ingredients—at the present market prices. Bakers laid out the 5-cent loaf as long as they could. The profit on it was finally not enough to pay for the paper that wrapped it. How many bakers do you suppose failed last year? About 4,000 out of a total of 30,000 in the country."

The question of the supply of wheat and the supposed shortage in the Chicago and Eastern markets was discussed by early arrivals at the convention. A report that farmers were not shipping wheat because elevator men were classifying No. 1 wheat as No. 3, and offering only $1.80 a bushel, was not confirmed by the local representative of Food Administrator Hoover.

DR. LEWIS A. STIMSON, NOTED SURGEON, DIES

Dr. Lewis Atterbury Stimson, Professor of Surgery in Cornell Medical College, died last night at his Summer home at Shinnecock Hills, L. I., in his seventy-fifth year. He had shown no signs of illness, and his death occurred suddenly. Dr. Stimson was the author of several standard works on surgery. He was the father of Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of War.

Dr. Stimson was born at Paterson, N. J., in August, 1844, the son of Henry C. and Julia M. Atterbury Stimson. He obtained his education at Yale College, from which he was graduated in 1863, and the Bellevue Medical College in this city. During the civil war he served as a member of the staff of General Terry before Petersburg, Va.

Since the outbreak of the European War Dr. Stimson had made two visits to the battle front on missions of relief. He was interested especially in the care of French orphans and was a member of several French societies devoted to this work.

Dr. Stimson was the author of "A Treatise on Dislocations," "A Treatise on Fractures," and "Operative Surgery." He had written extensively on subjects of a general literary character as well, being the translator of Lacombe's "History of France." He was a member of the American Surgical Society, the New York Medical Society, the County Medical Society and the Medical-Surgical Society, the Century Club, the New York Yacht Club, and the Loyal Legion.

Giuseppe Vitale, a noted violinist of a generation ago and a collector of Stradivarius violins, died on Sunday at his home, 61 Kosciusko Street, Brooklyn. Mr. Vitale was a pupil of Ole Bull and in his time was acquainted with some of the world's famous men and musicians, including Sarasate and Wieniawski. He was also a friend of Longfellow and Beecher and had played for McKinley and Roosevelt. He owned the only two Stradivarius violins in Brooklyn, one of them having been handed down in the family for 150 years and being valued at $12,000. He also owned two Amatis and some instruments manufactured by Vuillaume and Bodio.

Commander J. H. Hetherington.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17.—Commander James H. Hetherington, U. S. N., retired, for many years a Governor of the United States Naval Home in this city, died last night at his home, in his sixty-first year. Commander Hetherington was born in Iowa, and was appointed to the Naval Academy at Annapolis in 1874. While a resident of Yokohama, Japan, in 1892, Commander Hetherington, then a Lieutenant in the navy, shot and killed George Gower Robinson, an English banker, who had paid attention to Mrs. Hetherington. He was acquitted on trial.

George M. Wright Dies.

George M. Wright, lawyer and banker, died suddenly yesterday at his apartment in the Hotel Royalton, 44 West Forty-fourth Street, from heart disease. Mr. Wright was formerly Deputy Attorney General of New York State. Later he became attorney for the A. T. Stewart estate and President of the First National Bank of Orwell, Vt., his native town.

Mr. Wright was a Trustee of Middlebury College, Vt., and recently received an honorary degree of LL. D. from this institution.

Obituary Notes.

Dr. CHARLES O. SAHLER, well-known psychopathist and head of a large sanitarium in Kingston, N. Y., that bears his name, died there last night. He was 63 years old.

SISTERS HAD HAD NO FOOD.

Suspected of Having Taken Poison, They Were Really Starving.

Detective William Roddy of the Sixth Branch Detective Bureau, who has been investigating the case of Edna Williams, 26 years old, and her sister Anna, 30 years, who were reported to have attempted suicide on Saturday night, said yesterday that they were suffering from hunger and did not take poison.

The sisters were found unconscious by another sister, Eleanor, on her return from work to their home at 210 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn. They were removed to the Kings County Hospital. According to Roddy, the three women had been living for two months on the earnings of Eleanor. The oldest sister, Anna, remained at home, taking care of Edna, who is an invalid.

"The girls' parents," he said, "died in Newark two months ago and left them without any money. They came to Brooklyn to live, and Eleanor got a job in a department store at $7 a week and paid $2 a week for their room. They have been slowly starving and saying nothing about it. They will get better, and friends are taking care of them now."

The Character of Management

in Real Estate is the vital point. Almost any one can collect rents, but it takes an experienced organization to cope with the bigger problems of ownership to-day.

OLD ROSEBUD RUNS GREAT RACE WITH HEAVY IMPOST AT THE AQUEDUCT TRACK

OLD ROSEBUD PUTS SEAL ON GREATNESS

EQUALS THE TRACK RECORD

Capra Second and Straight Forward Third—Leochares Also Wins Race In Record Time.

Old Rosebud, the handicap king, which came pretty near dying at Saratoga, proved that he was a very live horse yesterday when he won the Bayview Handicap, at a mile and a sixteenth, and equaled the Aqueduct track record of 1:44 3-5. The performance of the son of Uncle added another to the long list of remarkable feats accomplished by thoroughbreds this season. He carried the heavy impost of 133 pounds, and led his field from end to end, to pass the judges two lengths in front of James Butler's Capra, which had been the only one of the seven starters able to keep step with the sizzling early pace set by the winner.

The fact that Old Rosebud was making his first appearance since he was seized with an attack of indigestion that threatened to end his racing career was enough to draw a capacity crowd for the opening day of the joint meeting that will run for three weeks at Aqueduct under the auspices of the Queens County Jockey Club, the Metropolitan Jockey Club, and the Empire City Racing Association. Started as an experiment in response to the calls from owners for more opportunities to race, the inaugural day's sport was so full of vim, and the enthusiasm so great, that there can be no doubt of the success of the venture.

Even without the thrilling performance of the great Western horse, there would have been excitement enough to make amends for the many dull days spent at Belmont Park. Good fields turned out for all except the steeplechase event, and the concluding race was so fiercely fought out that another track record was equaled when W. P. Orr's Leochares was forced to show the speed that made him a Winter wonder in order to beat the crack sprinters opposed to him in the handicap at six and a half furlongs. Leochares ran the distance in 1:18, time that was credited to James R. Keene's Maskette in 1910. The merit of the performance was enhanced by the fact that Leochares was well taken care of by the handicapper in carrying the top weight of 124 pounds.

Classy Field of Racers.

Old Rosebud had been set a tremendous task in the first running of the Bayview and he performed it in a manner that made old turfmen gasp with wonder. Usually a horse burdened with 130 pounds or thereabout, is content to let the others make the pace and save his speed and energy for the finishing spurt. Not so with the speed marvel from the West. The barrier was no sooner lifted than he leaped to the front with all the fiery energy he displayed as a two-year-old. Once in the stride there was no letup and he continued to show the way while the others behind him were made dizzy in their efforts to keep anywhere near him.

There was no lack of class in the field for the big handicap, and all the good racers engaged were in receipt of liberal allowances from the champion. The aged Borrow, looking sprightly and full of vim, was considered a dangerous factor. He carried but 123 pounds, and the form students called attention to the fact that at the Spring meeting he had set a new track record in winning the Brooklyn Handicap. A. K. Macomber's scratched Stargazer and selected Sunbonnet, the Kentucky Oaks winner, as his representative. She had a good following, as did James Butler's Capra, which has fought out the finish in many good races this season. R. T. Wilson, Jr., added Straight Forward, the field being completed by Daddy's Choice and Runes.

Old Rosebud drew a position in the middle of the track, and the Western jockey, Charles Peak, got him away on his toes. There was not one of the starters that had the foot of the top weight, and the speed with which he broke carried him a length in front of the field before he had made a dozen strides. Capra was the only one to take seriously to the stern chase, and the Butler mare hung on as close as she could in the run along the back stretch. The first eighth was reeled off in 12 seconds, and still the flying leader was increasing his speed, so that he reached the quarter mile in 23 seconds.

Capra was being urged to the utmost, and kept within two lengths of the champion as, moving at an even pace, she negotiated the next two furlongs in 24 seconds each and raced past the half-mile post in 47 seconds. Runes was running third at this time, with Sunbonnet and Straight Forward lengths apart and in front of Borrow, which found the pace entirely too hot for his liking.

Capra Catches Leader.

Rounding the turn, Peak gave his mount the least bit of a breathing spell and it was sufficient to allow Capra to draw up so that she was lapped on Old Rosebud. Even with this let-up Old Rosebud passed the mile post in 1:37 2-5, and by that time those behind him were extended to the limit in the vain hope of catching him as the heavy weight made itself felt. Capra still was the nearest contender, but it was only for a moment that she threatened. The slight relaxation in pace had put new vigor into the wonderful Old Rosebud and when Peak gave him his head at the eighth pole he jumped away and left the others as though they were anchored. Peak kept his eyes glancing behind to avoid a possible surprise, but the field was dead behind him and in the last 100 yards he let Old Rosebud gallop to win with two lengths to spare.

Capra held on gamely long enough to take the place from Straight Forward by a neck. Sunbonnet was fourth, a length and a half back, and the others were closely bunched with Borrow and Daddy's Choice bringing up the rear.

The vast improvement over the record previously made for the track is evident by a glance at the weights. Old Rosebud carried thirty-three pounds more than Helen Barbee when she hung up the figures of 1:44 3-5.

The two record-makers were the only favorites to win during the day. The first race for maiden two-year-olds was captured by Captain E. B. Cassatt's Trite, a 4 to 1 chance. Syosset, the odds-on choice in the steeplechase, was soundly beaten by both Archdale and Reddest. John Sanford's Nominee took the third race for two-year-olds from Trophy, with the favorite Andrew Miller's Malvolio in third place. In the fifth race the heavily-played His Nibs had to put up with second place to C. Buxton's Sasin.

A. A. U. ELECTS MATHEWS.

Metropolitan Association Chooses Him as Handicapper.

George P. Mathews was elected handicapper of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. on the fourth ballot night at the annual meeting of the organization, which was held at the Hungarian-American A. C. The contest for this office was one of the bitterest in the history of the local A. A. U. body, and three ballots were taken before Mathews was able to attain a majority, although he had led on each of the ballots.

A resolution offered by Justice Bartow S. Weeks to the effect that during the period of the war enlisted athletes be permitted to compete among themselves for other than money prizes, their amateur status not to be affected although they meet professionals, was adopted for recommendation to the National Committee.

STEVENS BEGINS PRACTICE.

The first call for football candidates for Stevens was answered yesterday morning by fifty men. Among them were Bless, Brett, Johnson, Goodale, Ford, and Deghuee from last year's 'Varsity. College will not open till Friday, when the rest of the football squad will report. Al McGall will coach the team this season, as former Coach Rodgers is in the army. The schedule for the coming season is:

Oct. 6, Haverford, at home; Oct. 13, Wesleyan, at Middletown; Oct. 20, open; Oct. 27, Middlebury, at home; Nov. 3, Worcester, at home; Nov. 10, Delaware, at home; Nov. 17, N. Y. U., at home.

FORDHAM CANDIDATES OUT.

Fordham started football work in earnest yesterday afternoon, when a squad of fifteen candidates reported. Coach McCaffery ordered a two-hour drill. The tackling dummy was brought out for the first time and every player had a chance at tackling and blocking. Catching of punts, breaking through tactics for the backs and linemen, and a dummy signal drill gave the candidates a hard afternoon's workout.

Among the newcomers to report was Frank Frisch, who for the last three years has gained quite a reputation as scholastic star at Fordham Prep. Frisch played quarter and halfback on the prep eleven. Among others who donned uniforms for the first time were Abbott, a Freshman, centre; Brennan, a husky halfback, and Fogarty and McGrath, linemen.

Although the squad was somewhat small for the first day, the material looked promising. Thus far Erwin is the only regular of the 1916 eleven to report, but Andy Dempsey, his running mate, is expected to appear this week.

RUTGERS SQUAD ON FIELD.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 17.—Fourteen candidates reported to Coach Sanford at the first practice of the season of the Rutgers football squad this afternoon. Captain Rendall, Whitehill, Kelly, and Feltner were the veterans present. Gargan, a scholastic star from the Pawling School, showed up well. The work consisted mostly of running down the field under punts, the receiving of forward passes, and fundamentals in line play. Feltner did the kicking and will probably be depended upon to take care of this department during the season. Word was received today of the cancellation of games with Allegheny and Trinity, both scheduled to be held at New Brunswick.

RED SOX PUMMEL YANKEE TWIRLERS

Three Local Boxmen Unable to Prevent Farewell Beating by Champions.

A number of women fans brought their knitting to the ball game at the Polo Grounds yesterday and, just to show you how exciting the game was, not one of the knitters dropped a stitch. The Boston Red Sox defeated the Yankees by a 6 to 1 score, which wasn't such an extraordinary feat, considering the mild objections offered by Donovan's lads.

Dutch Leonard unspun a lot of pitching which was Greek to the Yanks, while the Boston bats beat a merry tune against the pitching of Fisher, Shocker and Mogridge. Between the New York trio of flingers there wasn't much choice. They were all easy for the Boston sluggers.

As it is getting to be the fashion for temperamental ball players to jump over the traces these days, Home Run Baker got fussy yesterday and, like the other Maryland farmer, Charley Herzog, he packed up his grip and went home. Baker and Manager Bill Donovan had a little tilt over discipline. Baker was ordered to report at Bridgeport Sunday to play in an exhibition game with the Yankees there, but he refused to do it. So yesterday when Baker reported for the game at the Polo Grounds Manager Donovan ordered him to take an indefinite vacation on the bench. Fritz Maisel was sent out to play third base.

When Baker learned that he had been delegated among the bench warmers he left the field and started for his farm in Trappe, Md. Donovan told Baker that if he couldn't play when ordered to on Sundays, he couldn't play on week days either. As a result of this little squabble Baker may be suspended for the remainder of the season.

The Yanks lost the game just as easily with Baker absent as they could have lost it with the big slob, it was Boston's last appearance here for the season and their last game on the road. They went back home last night, but entertain only a slight hope of catching the White Sox. Boston will not throw up the sponge, however, until they take their final fling at the White Sox in a three-game series in Boston on next Friday, Saturday and Monday.

A whole car-load of Yankee recruits arrived yesterday and will be placed on public exhibition every afternoon. In this latest consignment are all kinds and shapes, and if you don't happen to see the kind of ball player you like, just ask Bill Donovan and he will fill the order immediately. All the new players are going to get a thorough try-out before the season's end, so that scheme may save the Yankee management from paying the Spring vacation expenses of a number of young players.

Ray Fisher, who started to pitch for the Yankees, didn't have a good curve in his whole kit, and the first ball he pitched at Harry Hooper was walloped into the right field stand for a home run. After Barry went down at first, Hoblitzell doubled left centre and Lewis walked. Shorten was exterminated at first and Scott's single to left pushed Hobby and Lewis over the plate. Fisher intercepted the throw home and Scott was thrown out trying to reach second.

The only bit of damage which the Yanks inflicted on Leonard happened in the second inning, when Wallie Pipp smashed a homer into the grand stand. The Yankee batting order underwent a complete shaking up in an effort to squeeze a little more batting out of the clan, but this was one of the times when the change didn't do any one a bit of good.

Urban Shocker succeeded Fisher and the Red Sox proceeded to get a run before they got out of the habit. Hooper singled to right and Barry sacrificed. Shocker tossed the ball to Peck to force Hooper at second, but Peck muffed the throw and all hands were safe. Hoblitzell sacrificed both runners along a station and Lewis was intentionally walked, filling the bases. While Shorten was grounding out to Pipp, Hooper crossed the plate.

Fritz Maisel shocked Leonard in the ninth when, with one out, he outraced Leonard's toss to first after the Boston pitcher had fielded Maisel's grasser. Pipp poked a grounder at Barry, who tossed to Scott to force Maisel, but Scott was so anxious to make a double play and have the game over with he dropped the ball, and the Yanks found themselves with two runners on the bases. Miller was thrown out by McNally, and there was a man on third and one on second and all that was needed for a couple of runs was a tiny single. Tim Hendryx was taken down off the shelf and sent in to bat for High. Tim got off a couple of long fouls and then hoisted a rocket to Hoblitzell.

SENIORS ON LINKS TODAY.

Lovers of the royal and ancient game of golf whose advancement in years has reduced little, if at all, their skill with driver and putter will gather on the course of the Apawamis Club of Westchester today in the annual tournament for seniors. The field which will compete for chief honors this year totals 320 representative elders from various parts of the country. It was the fond hope of those in charge of the event to procure the entry of President Wilson, but the country's Chief Executive could not separate himself from national business long enough to be a participant in the tournament.

The competition will last four days, beginning today, and concluding on Friday. A field of 175 of the seniors will be started over the course today and this gathering will play tomorrow also. On Thursday the remainder of those entered will begin play, the latter field carrying their play over to the final day, Friday. In the entire field not one is under 55 years of age, while a number are well over this mark.

Easy for Pete Hermann.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17. — Pete Hermann, world's bantamweight champion, had an easy time with K. O. Eggers at the Olympia here tonight. Eggers might as well have been boxing a phantom. Eggers was little more than a punching bag in five rounds.

ALEX A PUZZLE TO REDS.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 17.—Alexander was a puzzle to the Cincinnati Club here today and Philadelphia took the game, 4 to 1. The locals were unable to do anything with men on base except in the sixth, when doubles by Chase and Wingo netted a run.

Mitchell lasted less than an inning in the box for Cincinnati, four successive hits driving in two runs. Reuther pitched good ball the rest of the game, only one run being earned off him.

JOHNSON TO JOIN INDIANS?

Report That Senators' Star Twirler Has Refused Cut in Salary.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 17.—"Johnson's contract of $18,500 expires this season and the speed king has made up his mind not to sign unless Griffith comes through with a like offer, which no doubt explains why our boss is letting his star moundsman go," said a prominent member of the Washington American League club today in discussing the reported sale of Pitcher Walter Johnson to the Cleveland Naps.

From a reliable source of information in Washington it was learned that Griffith had been endeavoring for the last three weeks to have Johnson sign a 1918 contract, but that the speed king refused to accept a cut in salary.

Indianapolis Sure of American Association Pennant.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Indianapolis today became assured of the American Association pennant when its club defeated Milwaukee by 3 to 2. Indianapolis now has a lead of two and a half games over St. Paul and Louisville, which are tied for second place, and there remain but two games on the association's schedule.

The pennant race has been close for the last two weeks, Indninapolis having lost much of its midseason lead by erratic and inconsistent playing.

MANY HORSES TO COMPETE.

Over 500 Animals Entered for the Gedney Farms Show.

Over 500 entries have been received for the twenty-fourth annual Westchester County Horse Show, which this year will be held at the Gedney Farms grounds at White Plains, a spot which was found very suitable for the event a year ago. The entries are scattered through the seventy-three classes so as to insure good competition in each. While the names of some past exhibitors are missing from the list of entries, enough newcomers appear to make it certain that the competitions will be of the same high character as heretofore.

The show will open tomorrow afternoon at 12:30 and continue through the week, with morning sessions on Friday and Saturday at 10:30, to avoid the postponements made necessary by darkness a year ago.

In the harness classes entries have been made by William Ziegler, Jr.; J. Campbell Thompson, F. M. Warburg, C. C. Chapman, Walter H. Hanley, George Watson, and Alexander Gemmell.

Those showing saddle horses include J. A. P. Ramsdell, Charles V. Rich, Joseph M. Lane, Mrs. H. H. Thomas, John McE. Bowman, Jr.; C. Baldwin, Jr., Mrs. A. J. Lindsay, Walker H. Hanley, Miss Alice A. Dodsworth, Miss Virginia Post Brown, George S. Wallen, Charles M. Allaire, Frank J. Cassidy, Miss Becky Lanier, James P. Kineon, Miss M. E. Lowndes, Mrs. Louis W. Mertz, Miss Pauline Luke, and Miss Odette Feder.

Ponies will be shown by Mrs. Lynde Selden, Miss Beatrice Black, Miss Evelyn Hall McManus, Miss Corinne Poth, Miss Marion Healy, Mrs. A. L. Graham, George Gunther Wallen, Dr. C. R. L. Putnam, Miss Dorothy Iselin, Miss Eleanor Iselin, Godfrey Preece, Jay Iselin, and Clifton K. Baumann.

Polo mounts have been entered by Edgar Clausen, John I. Downey, Mrs. James P. Kineon, Hugh J. Chisholm, Dr. J. F. Black, and John J. Farrell.

The classes for hunters and jumpers have entries from Miss Myrtle Whittlesey, L. R. Michler, J. C. Thompson, Frank J. Cassidy, S. Bryce Wing, Mrs. Frank Huyler, and Harry J. Graham.

Hartye Successful at Tennis.

Only one match was decided yesterday in the tennis tournament on the courts of the Marine and Field Club, Bath Beach, and in this William Hartye scored a straight-sets victory over Alvin Filer, by scores of 6—0 and 6—2. This match was held in the second round play. The tournament will be continued today.

GIANTS MAKE GOOD USE OF THEIR HITS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Timely hitting and splendid fielding behind the air-tight pitching of Ferdinand Schupp gave the Giants a victory in the opening game of the series with the Cubs today, 5 to 0. McGraw's men made only six hits, but four of them figured in the scoring, and they also profited by the unsteadiness of their opponents in tight places.

Schupp twirled a magnificent game, bowling along with scarcely an effort and keeping the six hits which he allowed so well scattered that the Cubs never had a real opportunity to upset him. One of the hits with which the Cubs were credited was a short fly that dropped between Robertson and Smith and which either could have caught but for a misunderstanding. Another was a looping drive to right that Robertson lost in the sun and which went for a two-base hit.

Opposed to Schupp at the start of the pastime was Phil Douglas, who lingered for only six innings and who was nicked for three runs before he abandoned the contest. Phil struck out five men in the first four innings, but he could not hold the pace.

Smith singled, with one out, in the fifth, and promptly stole second, after which he went on to third on a passed ball. Holke walked, and was forced by McCarty, but Smith scored on the play. In the following frame Robertson beat out a perfect bunt after Burns had been expunged.

Benny Kauff connected with a fast ball and drove it over the right-field wall and into the areaway of a house across the street from the park. Robertson crossing the plate ahead of him. Douglas stayed in the box long enough to get the side out, and then quit for the day. Pechous batted for him in the sixth, and Walker, a recruit hurler, went to the hill in the seventh.

A damaging error by Shick, also a recruit, and playing in centre field in place of Cy Williams, coupled with Walker's wildness and a hit by Heinie Zimmerman at an opportune moment, gave the Giants a brace of tallies in the eighth. Burns, first up, reached second base when Schick muffed his long fly. With two strikes on him, Robertson missed a swing at a wild pitch, Burns going to third and Robertson reaching first when the ball went over Dilhoefer's head and all the way to the grand stand.

Kauff hit to Kilduff, and Pete threw to Dilhoefer to nip Burns at the plate, but Burns scurried back to third just ahead of Dilhoefer's throw to Deal. Robertson at the same moment slid into third from the other side of the bag, and Deal tagged both runners. Robertson was declared out, but Kauff had gone to second on the play. Zimmerman smashed a single to right centre, and Burns and Kauff registered.

Zimmerman essayed a steal of second, and kept right on to third when Dilhoefer heaved the ball into centre field. Heinie beat Schick's return throw to the far corner, but Kilduff called Umpire Harrison's attention to the fact that the runner had not touched second, and Harrison called Heinie out when Deal tagged him at third.

The Cubs made a bold bid to spoil Schupp's shutout game in the ninth inning, and probably would have succeeded had it not been for George Burns. After Zelder had singled, with one out, Deal drove the ball to deep left field. Burns made a wonderful catch, jumping into the air and catching the ball in both hands while his back was turned to the diamond. On the assumption that the drive was good for three bases, at least, Zelder had rounded second and was chasing for third when Burns made the catch, and he was doubled off first on Smith's relay of Burns's throw to Holke.

Manager McGraw and Secretary Foster, when questioned about the suspension of Charlie Herzog today, would not discuss the matter.

Rug Market Becoming Active.

That the comparative dull and quiet of the Summer months in the rug and carpet market is giving place to a growing demand from varied sources is the consensus of opinion among manufacturers in this city. These merchants who stocked up rather heavily last Spring, and it is said there were many of them, having worked off a good deal of their stock, are reported to be back in the market to replenish their lines.

Burlaps Were Rather Quiet.

There was little demand evident in the local burlap market yesterday, though prices remained firm, more or less nominally, under the marked scarcity of the most wanted goods. Little news of interest was received from the primary markets during the day, both Calcutta and Dundee being higher than New York as to price. These were the day's local quotations on forty-inch standard burlaps: 10½-ounce, 15½ cents; 10-ounce, 14¾ cents; 8-ounce, 11 cents, and 7½-ounce, 10.90 cents.

Vigorous Demand for Corduroy.

Buying activity in the local corduroy market, according to a number of manufacturers' agents, is continuing with unabated vigor. Many of the mills are said to be hard put to in the matter of deliveries. The increasing demand for this fabric is attributed by authorities in the trade to Fall and Winter style tendencies which are said to be favorable to corduroy and other pile fabrics. It is pointed out that corduroy, while comparatively cheap at present price levels, wears like iron and gives a very smart appearance to a well-tailored garment.

Retail Business Was Active.

Little fault could be found with the activities of shoppers in the local retail district yesterday. Stores were well patronized in all departments. In one of them, in which a new house furnishings department had been opened, that department was particularly active. The movement of kitchen utensils of aluminium and similar goods was so brisk, in fact, according to an executive that clerks were lined up behind the long table-like counter merely to take orders. So large was the demand, he said, that it would have been out of the question to make a complete sale in every case, that is, to the point where the merchandise could have been delivered, wrapped and tied, to the customer in person.

French Using Gingham Idea.

Some of the French silks that have reached this city in the last couple of weeks make use of the gingham patterns which have done so well in this country in the last several months. They are varied more or less, and as offered bid fair to be snapped up quickly by discerning buyers. Most of them are seen in fabrics of the chiffon taffeta order. Other woven novelty French silks also are doing well here, one natty effect showing an inch-wide woven floral stripe running through a soft, dark taffeta ground between conventional narrow stripes of white. In the domestic goods the demand for novelties is running almost entirely to plaids and stripes. It is still well divided between satin-faced cloths, taffetas, and crêpes.

Suit Sales Are Improving.

The optimistic reports that have been heard in wholesale circles lately concerning the improved movement in women's suits are reflected in reports made yesterday by executives of certain big local retail stores. In every case, it was said, the ready-to-wear departments were ahead of last year, and in this business the larger sale of suits was a factor. The increase in the movement of this merchandise was attributed to the cool weather of the last week or so, and this was also held largely responsible for the gain shown over the same period of 1916. Last year, it was pointed out, early September was very warm. The question was raised by one executive as to whether the present gain, as compared with last year, would be lost later in the season, when the 1916 sales made a better showing, as a result of the present early buying.

Knit Goods Business Good.

According to manufacturers of knit underwear, salesmen out among the trade with their Spring sample lines are doing a larger volume of business than a year ago. In the women's lines the envelope type is proving the most popular. The one-piece garment for men continues to make large gains at the expense of the older two-piece garment. The labor situation in the Mohawk Valley, the knit goods centre, continues to be a serious one, many of the mills having been forced to curtail their output somewhat. Because of this, and due to the unusual Government requirements, in all probability there will be a still greater shortage of merchandise in the Spring than prevailed in the Fall and Winter wear.

Gray Goods Sales Light.

Trading was none too active in the local gray goods market yesterday, the Jewish holiday taking a number of buyers out of the midst of things for the time being. Business was done on 38½-inch 64-60s from second hands at 9⅜ cents, both for spot and very nearby delivery. The mills were again asking 9¼ cents for spot lots of these goods. On narrow printcloths some business also was done, sales of spot 25-inch 56-44s being reported at 5⅝ cents from first hands, with contracts available at an eighth less. It is said now to be possible to get 39-inch 5-yard sheetings for the later deliveries at 9 cents, which is a quarter below the recent price asked for this construction. Mill printcloth prices, spot, closed as follows:

39-inch, 56-44s	7⅝c	28½-inch, 60-48s	8c

WOOLENS FOR ARMY USE.

A Fifty Per Cent. Wool Substitute Is Allowed in Meltons.

In view of the announcement of the committee on Supplies of the Council of National Defense that the committee was in the market for additional quantities of thirty-ounce O. D. Melton and three-pound O. D. blankets, the Joint Woolens Committee, representing the American Association of Woolen and Worsted Manufacturers and National Association of Wool Manufacturers, yesterday sent out a special notice to manufacturers. It was pointed out that particular preference in award would be given to manufacturers able to make substantial deliveries before Jan. 1, 1918, although offerings of later deliveries would be considered.

The joint committee's statement in part said:

It is of the greatest importance that the Quartermaster's Department of the army should be in possession of ample quantities of these cloths to make possible the adequate equipment of troops during late Fall and early Winter.

The Joint Woolens Committee therefore urges manufacturers who are making these cloths to take additional quantities for the remaining months of the year, and all manufacturers not making them, who are equipped to, to consider it a patriotic duty to do so at once.

The Joint Woolens Committee is authorized to state that the Committee on Supplies will consider a thirty-ounce fabric containing 50 per cent. wool and 50 per cent. of wool substitute, in order to accomplish a further conservation of the wool supply.

"This does not apply to the blanket in which the specification providing for 65 per cent. wool and 35 per cent. wool substitute still governs.

"Particular attention is directed to the fact that in the new thirty-ounce cloth no deviation from the existing specifications on the 53 per cent. wool substitute cloth in fabrication, (picks and ends,) color, or strength will be permitted.

"All offerings should be made promptly to Charles Eisenman, Committee on Supplies, Munsey Building, Washington, D. C."

Those Agreed Upon by Government for Certain Vegetables.

Prices on a variety of canned vegetables for Government use are contained in a bulletin received yesterday from the Council of National Defense at Washington. The bulletin says:

"The Bureau of Cost and Accountancy, now transferred to the Federal Trade Commission, has notified the army and navy that the following prices are considered 'fair and just' for the canned peas preserved for the Government.

Fancy sweet wrinkled	$1.45	$1.30	$1.20
Fancy Alaskas	1.45	1.25	None
Standard sweet wrinkled	1.25	1.20	1.15
Standard Alaskas	1.25	1.15	None

These prices are per dozen, net free on board, factory, in cases of two dozen tins. If cases are strapped, 6 cents per case extra is allowed.

"If shipments have been made and invoiced to the Government prior to receipt of the above advice, credit memorandum should be issued, or remittance sent to, or reduction made from invoices on further shipments to the depot of the army or navy to which shipment has been made."

These are the prices the bulletin sets down as "fair and just" for canned green and wax beans:

Fancy whole or cut green stringless beans	$1.50
Fancy whole or cut round pod wax beans	1.50
Extra standard whole or cut green stringless beans	1.20
Extra standard whole or cut wax beans	1.30
Standard cut green stringless beans	1.10
Extra standard cut green stringless beans in cases of six No. 10 tins	5.90

The prices for beans also are per dozen, net f. o. b. factory in cases of two dozen No. 2 tins of 19 ounces net content, except the last item, which is in cases of six No. 10 tins of six pounds, six ounces, net content. Special charges are allowed for strapping.

As to canned corn, the varieties Evergreen, Country Gentlemen, Crosby, whole grain or shoepeg corn will be acceptable only in the fancy and extra standard grades. No standard corn will be taken. These are the prices, on the terms expressed above, for goods in cases of two dozen No. 2 tins of 20 ounces, net content: Extra standard grade, $1.25; fancy grade, $1.30.

The bulletin also says that pending the statement of final prices on tomatoes, the navy will make advance payments equal to 90 per cent. of the invoice amounts of goods received and accepted. No advances will be made by the army. The bulletin quotes a navy order on the matter of prices in this way:

As it is impracticable to now determine a reasonable and just compensation for the material to be delivered, the fixing of the price will be subject to a later determination. You are assured of a reasonable profit under this order, and as an advance payment you will be paid the unit prices stated hereon, with the understanding that such advance payment will not be considered as having any bearing upon the price to be subsequently fixed. Any difference between the amount of such advance payment and the amount finally determined upon as being just and reasonable will be paid to you or refunded by you, as the case may be. The unit price stated herein will not prejudice the future price determination or be considered as a precedent in determining such increases or decreases as may be later decided upon as proper.

The tentative prices fixed, subject to revision up or down on Oct. 15, are $1.45 per dozen net, f. o. b. factory, for No. 3 tins, 24 to a case, and $4.50 for No. 10 tins, six to a case. These prices apply to tomatoes shipped after Sept. 15.

The need of tentative price-fixing resulted from the unusual weather and price conditions in the tomato market, as well as to the fact that when the prices were determined, the packing season was not very far advanced. The bulletin concludes with a plea for fair play as between the canners and the jobbers, growing out of complaints by the latter that the former were using Government requirements as an excuse for avoiding or curtailing deliveries taken previous to the placing of Federal orders.

Embargo on One-eighth-Inch Plates.

P. K. Condict, Government agent in charge of the New York Exports License Bureau, said yesterday that one-eighth inch, as well as one-half inch, iron and steel plates were included in the recent embargo order. When the local license office opened yesterday many exporters endeavored to obtain licenses for the exportation of plates thinner than one-half inch. They were disappointed when told that the one-eighth-inch plates were included in the embargo.

Y.W.C.A. Nurses on Way to France.

Among the 600 passengers who sailed recently for France from an Atlantic port were sixty-four special nurses from the Y. W. C. A., a hospital contingent of seven surgeons and sixteen nurses, fifty ambulance drivers, and several United States Army officers on their way to make observations at the western front. There were 300 Armenians in the third cabin going to join the French Army to fight against the Turks.

New Low Prices for Many Issues—Banks Make Time Loans at 6%.

With much the same influences at work in the unsettlement of prices, stocks broke easily yesterday, with many issues again touching new low levels. The decline was halted by a significant development in the early afternoon. In recent weeks it has been almost impossible for brokers to obtain time loans. While call money has not commanded more than 6 per cent., there has been a scarcity of money at that rate on more than one occasion and the unwillingness of the banks to put out funds for from thirty days to six months has proved discouraging. An informal discussion among leading bank executives yesterday was followed by liberal offerings of time money at 6 per cent. on industrial collateral. It is understood that about $10,000,000 was quickly loaned on this basis and a partial rally in stocks was the immediate result. Call money was firmer yesterday, most loans being made at 6 per cent.

Even with this helpful influence, closing prices were generally well under last week's final quotations. There was no confirmation of a revised forecast of the price to be fixed for copper, the new rumor making the figure 18 cents, as against the expected 25 cents, but the metal issues were unfavorably affected, nevertheless. Some stocks which have hitherto resisted the downward tendency lost ground easily yesterday. The break came about in an orderly manner and was accepted by traders as a matter of course, for there has been very little support given the market and pressure applied to almost any issue has brought about a sudden recession. Notable among the issues, which led in the declines yesterday were Steel common, which touched 103⅞, closing off 2½; Bethlehem Steel B, which broke from 100¾ to 93⅜, closing practically at the bottom with a net decline of 6¾; Crucible, which lost 2½; Lackawanna, which lost 2¼; Midvale, which sold for the first time under par, closing at 50½ with a decline of 1½; the sugar issues; International Mercantile Marine, common and preferred, the latter closing with a loss of 4¼; Texas Company and St. Paul. Among the mining shares American Smelting and Refining lost 2⅝ and Utah 2½.

At no time in the course of the long decline has the stock market appeared at all panicky. The conservative stages of weakness have followed one another as a natural reflection of the increasing estimates of the war needs brought out in Congress. Traders have acted on the theory that the more the Government has to take in excess profits and income taxes, the less stocks will be worth to holders. This process has probably carried many issues well below their intrinsic value. A measure of readjustment should come when Congress completes its revenue discussions, but the demand for funds to take up or carry with the banks the new Liberty Loan bonds will continue to operate against rising prices. There has been a considerable amount of liquidation all along the decline, some of it due to the necessity for converting securities into cash in expectation of the cash payments, but more of it because of a fear that prices were going much lower. Eventually, the large blocks of stock which have been pressed for sale will be taken up by small investors, but the process of distribution is slow, while the public remains confused over the real extent to which the Government is going in levying new taxes.

LONDON MARKET CHEERFUL.

Money Plentiful and Discount Rates Are Steady.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—The stock market maintained a cheerful undertone today. Dealers construed the Russian situation favorably and marked Russian bonds three points higher. The quotations of mine and oil stocks were also raised and Russian exchange improved to 280@285.

The tendency in the gilt-edged section was sympathetically better though business did not expand. Rubber and oil shares and Mexican National rails were active and firmer, but Argentine rails were flat, owing to labor trouble.

Money was plentiful and discount rates were steady.

Trading Calm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Sept. 17.—Trading on the Bourse today was calm. Three per cent. rentes were quoted at 61 francs 55 centimes for cash. Exchange on London was quoted at 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent. loan was quoted at 88 francs 15 centimes.

EARNINGS INCREASE SIXFOLD

The United Paperboard Company earned a gross income of $1,937,338 in the year ended May 26, a total more than six times greater than the preceding year's earnings. After setting aside $348,286 for repairs and replacements and accounting for expenses and taxes, a net of $1,445,250 remained, a gain of $1,153,400 over the result in 1916.

The balance for dividends, after a reserve of $600,000 for depreciation had been made, was $828,111, against $159,725 the year before. The balance sheet, issued yesterday, showed a surplus of $1,048,209 and total assets aggregating $16,021,875.

LEADING BANKS HERE AID MONEY SITUATION

CONCERTED ACTION DENIED

Because of Scarcity of Railroad Securities Time Loans Are Based on Industrial Collateral.

The so-called Money Committee, appointed last week by the Federal Reserve Bank, in co-operation with the Liberty Loan Committee, held its first meeting yesterday morning at the offices of the Reserve Bank. The session was devoted to a discussion of money market conditions and to a consideration of the data collected from the daily reports sent in by the banks and trust companies in compliance with the request for information indicating the amount of call loans outstanding and the amount of balances of out-of-town institutions.

Although no formal statement was given out, the fact that the committee had "done something" became manifest when several large banks and trust companies put out time money rather freely. It was denied that there had been concerted action, but it was apparent that a number of the leading banks had simultaneously decided to ease the money situation by supplying brokers with time loans. For several weeks time money has been very scarce, but yesterday loans in large volume were made at 6 per cent. This rate prevailed for loans secured by industrial collateral, and it applied to all maturities. At present Stock Exchange brokers have no railroad securities to speak of, and the small supply available is used as collateral for call loans. For this reason all the time loans made were based on securities of industrial companies. The rate for call money was 5 and 6 per cent., the former being also the renewal rate.

The Money Committee is composed of the Presidents of some of the largest banks in the city, including George F. Baker of the First National, Walter E. Frew of the Corn Exchange, Gates W. McGarrah of the Mechanics & Metals, Charles H. Sabin of the Guaranty Trust Company, Frank A. Vanderlip of the National City, and James N. Wallace of the Central Trust Company. The Chairman of the committee is Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and Chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee.

Bankers who attended the meeting said that with the next Liberty Loan campaign opening at an early date, it was imperative that the money market be placed in an easier position, and they thought there was no reason for institutions refusing to put out money on time. They pointed out that the scarcity of funds had greatly embarrassed the brokers, with the result that the stock market had suffered further depression. The action taken yesterday will, it is expected, help the situation considerably.

There was a rumor that the Federal Reserve Board in Washington would soon issue a statement that would have reassuring effects on the money situation, but confirmation of the rumor was unobtainable.

Because of the firmness of money rates, J. P. Morgan & Co. announced yesterday that the British Treasury ninety-day bills to be sold this week will be offered at a discount of 5⅛ per cent. instead of at 5¼ per cent., the rate at which four previous weekly lots, totaling $55,000,000, had been disposed of.

Payments were made yesterday for $300,000,000 of United States Treasury 3½ per cent. certificates of indebtedness. While figures for the New York district were not made public, it was understood that subscriptions here amounted to approximately $150,000,000. Most of the payments were made by credits on the books of the subscribing banks, the institutions transferring the credits to the account of the United States as a Government deposit.

THE COTTON MARKET

The new week found the New York cotton market yesterday somewhat quieter, with less trading and less violent fluctuations, and, despite occasional spasms of nervousness and temporary irregularity, a general disposition apparent to rest content around the 20-cent level and await events.

December contracts, which were fairly representative of the entire price movement, opened at 20.30, but fell away to 19.90. At this point, however, the market rallied sharply, returning almost to the opening figures, actual quotation 20.24, and closed at 20.18. The general list closed steady, net 5 points higher to 1 point lower.

The generally expectant attitude of the market was confirmed by the confusing and contradictory nature of most of the day's news. On the political side, buyers of the week-end found little comfort in forecasts of the German reply to the Pope, which seemed to hold out little hope of definite progress toward peace.

Weather advices, also, were somewhat more favorable than looked for, but these features were offset by more numerous reports of crop deterioration and of smaller Southern spot offerings. The market opened steady at an advance of 5 points to a decline of 1 point, and sold about 12 to 17 points net higher during the early trading on covering. Offerings increased after the publication of the Eastern belt forecast, which made a pretty favorable showing, and the detailed weather reports confirming the impression created by the early map that the rains which accompanied the South Atlantic disturbance of late last week had been chiefly along the coast. Active months broke to a net loss of 20 to 26 points, but it was noticed around the ring that there was comparatively little Southern selling, and rallies followed with late fluctuations irregular.

The day's crop advices included a semi-monthly report from a Dallas authority indicating deterioration of 4 per cent. since the end of August, and making the mid-September condition 64.8. Liverpool cables said the South was offering less freely there, and local spot people said their advices indicated that the demand for September shipment was still proving sufficient to absorb early receipts. According to an Eastern belt spot firm, selling by farmers was quite free up to ten days ago. Since then, owing to the decline in prices, holding has started, and although the prices of October quotations in New York and December quotations are freely offered by buyers for middling in the South, very little can be bought. To buy cotton in the South and deliver on October contracts in New York would entail a loss of over a cent a pound, according to these authorities. No exports were reported.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The wheat trade is still more or less concerned over the movement and distribution. Receipts, however, continue to increase, and yesterday's movement at interior points amounted to 1,423,000 bushels, compared with 1,001,000 a week ago and 2,675,000 last year. The visible supply in the United States showed an increase for the week of 80,000 bushels, bringing the total to 5,760,000, compared with 59,380,000 a year ago. Cash prices were unchanged, as fixed by the Government. RYE.—Market easy; No. 2 Western, $1.93, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

CORN.

The corn market experienced another sharp decline, and prices were down about 7c a bushel from the high point of last Friday. The visible supply showed a decrease of 191,000 bushels, bringing the total to 1,986,000 bushels, compared with 3,742,000 a year ago. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at $2.05; No. 2 mixed, $2.02, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

The market for oats was influenced by the action of corn, and prices at the close were ½c to ⅞c net lower. The visible supply showed an increase during the week of 1,851,000 bushels, which compares with an increase of 2,830,000 a year ago. The export demand was less active and sales for the day were estimated at 150,000 bushels. The local cash market was weak; standard quoted at 56½c; No. 2 white, 67c; No. 3 white, 66c; No. 4 white, 65@65½c; fancy clipped, white, 67@70c; ordinary clipped, white, 66@67c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

Prices in the market for hog products experienced a reaction early, prompted by the weakness in corn, but the selling pressure was not great and the close was steady. The domestic cash demand is not particularly active, and it is said that the discount at which compound lard is selling is hurting the lard trade. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 18,000; estimated for Tuesday, 9,000. Kansas City received 5,000 and Omaha 4,000 hogs.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil again gave evidences of a very nervous undertone. Longs sold heavily early, prompted by the decline in lard, but more particularly on account of the weakness in Wall Street and in commodity markets in general. The cash demand was said to be active, but this failed to inspire much confidence, and, while there was a partial rally toward the close, final prices were 17 to 28 points net lower. Total sales for the day were 23,500 barrels. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

The coffee market was very quiet again yesterday, with prices showing a continued tendency to work lower owing to absence of support and scattered trade selling. The latter was supposed to reflect liberal offerings from Brazil, but it was not active enough to suggest any real weakness, and price changes were comparatively slight. The market opened at a decline of 1 to 3 points and closed 2 to 4 points net lower. Sales were reported of 9,250 bags. The local spot market was quiet and nominally unchanged at 9c for Rio 7s, and 10c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

Business in raw sugar was practically at a standstill and no sales were reported. Cuban holders are not pressing sales, and there were only a small lot or two of prompt sugars possibly available at 5⅞c cost and freight, but refiners were not openly bidding, and there was no indication as to what price they would pay. It is estimated that during the past week sales have totaled about 50,000 bags to New York, New Orleans and to Canadian refiners at 5⅞c cost and freight, but full details are lacking. It is still a waiting market and further developments at Washington regarding details of the food control act are expected. Spot prices follow: Centrifugal, 6.90c; molasses, 6.02c; cost and freight, 5¾c. The market for refined sugar was steady and unchanged with the exception of an advance in the soft sugars to the basis of hards by Arbuckle. Trading was light and of a hand-to-mouth character, with prices ranging from 8.40c to 8.50c for fine granulated.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 5,706 packages. More buying interest was shown than was generally anticipated, and the market gained a little strength on the finer grades of fresh creamery. The Exchange sales included over 1,000 tubs of fine to fancy goods at 44@44½c. Secondary qualities remain quiet. Ladles and packing stock steady. EGGS—Receipts yesterday, 6,524 cases. The egg market was a good deal like Sunday yesterday, owing to the absence of the Jewish trade in observance of the New Year holiday. A little regular order business was done, but the store trade was small. Receipts were lighter, and advices indicated light offerings, but there was a fair accumulation of medium grade stock, which is dragging at the prices asked, and salable only at prices below holders' views. Fresh gathered, extras, per dozen, 45@46c; extra firsts, 43@44c; firsts, 40½@42c; seconds, 38@40c; thirds and poorer, 35@37c; fresh gathered dirties, No. 1, 36@37c; No. 2 and poorer, 32@35½c; fresh gathered checks, good to choice, dry, 33@34c; undergrades, 28@32c; refrigerator, special marks, storage and insurance paid, 40c; firsts, storage and insurance paid, 38½@39½c; seconds, storage and insurance paid, 37@38c; lower grades, storage and insurance paid, 32@36c; refrigerator, State whites, 41@43c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby western hennery whites, fine to fancy, 55@58c; ordinary to good, 44@54c; gathered whites, special to fine, 42@55c; State and Southern, gathered whites, 40@47c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby hennery browns, 47@50c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 40@46c.

U. S. TRADE DOUBLED WITH LATIN AMERICA

Total for 1917 Reaches $1,554,000,000, as Against $810,000,000 in 1915.

ARGENTINE BEEF DROPS

Imports Reached 130,680,021 Pounds in 1915, but Only 2,295,690 Pounds in 1917.

Trade of the United States with Latin America has practically doubled since 1915, showing for the fiscal year 1917 a grand total of $1,554,000,000, against $810,000,000 in 1915. This result was shown in a compilation made public yesterday by the National City Bank. The exports to Latin America more than doubled in the period, while imports increased over 50 per cent. The exports to all Latin-American countries in the fiscal year 1917 were $592,000,000, against $252,000,000 in 1915, and the imports from these countries was $962,000,000 in 1917, against $558,000,000 in 1915.

United States exports to South America alone in the last fiscal year were over two and one-half times as much in value as in 1915, having been $259,559,458, against $99,423,957 in 1915. To Argentina alone shipments from this country in 1917 totaled $82,382,884, compared with $32,549,606 two years before. Imports into the United States from South America in 1917 were more than double those of 1915, totaling $542,212,820 for the last fiscal year, against $261,489,563 in 1915.

Although the bank's compilation showed Argentina at the head of the South American countries exporting to the United States, it was revealed that Argentina is no longer a dominant factor in the matter of meat supply. The total imports of fresh beef from that country, which amounted to 130,680,021 pounds in the fiscal year 1915 and 52,680,436 pounds in 1916, were but 2,295,690 pounds in 1917. It was pointed out that Argentina's advance to the head of the list of South American countries exporting to the United States was due chiefly to the great demand made upon her for wool, in view of the difficulty of obtaining the commodity from the countries and colonies controlled by Great Britain. The value of wool imports from Argentina in 1917 was $78,000,000, against $18,000,000 in 1915.

It was indicated in the bank's statement that the cost of doing business with Argentina may be increased in the not distant future, as the Argentine railways are proposing a heavy advance in freight rates, averaging about 22 per cent., a rate which it is proposed to put into effect in December. This big advance is based upon the increased cost of fuel, labor, construction and repairs. The matter of rate increase is now before the Director General of Railways, who has requested the transportation lines to state their reasons for the advance.

The compilation showed that Chile is supplying to the United States enormous increases in copper, while Bolivia is entering an entirely new field in sending her tin ore. Imports of copper into the United States from Chile in the fiscal year which ended June 30 amounted to 158,000,000 pounds of pig copper against 58,000,000 in 1916 and 34,000,000 in 1915. Imports of tin ore from Bolivia amounted to nearly $3,000,000 in 1917 against practically nothing in preceding years.

HOOVER MEETS SUGAR MEN.

Tells Refiners Voluntary Service Is Only Way to Meet War Emergency.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Beet sugar refiners and brokers opened conferences here today to work out details of a plan for a central distributing agency planned to co-operate with the Food Administration and to agree on standard prices.

About 10 per cent. of the refiners protested against prices proposed, saying they had made contracts with beet growers at unusually high rates. The Food Administration announced, however, that many of the growers affected by those contracts had agreed to accept a lower price as a patriotic duty. A solution will be sought at other conferences tomorrow.

Food Administrator Hoover, in an address to the sugar men, emphasized that voluntary service of all industries is the only democratic means of meeting the war emergency. In a contest between methods of autocracy and democracy, he said, economic problems in the democracy should be regulated from below by business men in co-operation with the Government rather than by arbitrary acts of the Government.

CONCRETE SHIP BUILT FAST.

Norwegian Experiment Called Remarkable by Premier Knudsen.

CHRISTIANIA, Aug. 20, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The first Norwegian ship to be built of reinforced concrete was launched recently in the presence of Premier Knudsen and a distinguished gathering of shipping men, engineering experts, and Government officials. The Premier, himself an old civil engineer, complimented the designer on his "epoch-making enterprise."

The chief importance of the departure lies in the speed with which the vessel was constructed, only three weeks having been required from start to launching. The original frame can be used for each subsequent ship of the same size, and construction in the future is expected to occupy only about half that time.

The first ship is only of 200 tons, but vessels of 500 and 1,000 tons are to be begun shortly. It is expected to take about six weeks to complete a 1,000-ton ship.

For Well-Dressed Women

The Fashion Section of The New York Times, Sunday, October 7th, will publish photographic reproductions by rotogravure of new designs in women's wear for Fall and Winter by the leading French dressmakers and milliners. There is no abatement in richness, beauty and originality in these wonderful creations of new gowns, wraps, hats and furs, which will be de rigueur during the next few months in every line of social activities—the reception, the ball, the theatre, and the promenade. These creations of the masters of the dress art can be utilized by those whose means do not run beyond moderately priced materials, thus giving all women the opportunity of appearing in latest styles. Articles by writers of wide knowledge and authority accompany the designs.

Sunday, October 7th

REAL ESTATE FIELD

An important business change in the old Sixth Avenue shopping section was forecast yesterday in the filing of plans to remodel the old O'Neill-Adams store on the westerly block front of Sixth Avenue, between Twentieth and Twenty-first Streets, to be used for the manufacture of army uniforms. The property includes 321 to 335 Sixth Avenue. It is owned by the United States Realty and Improvement Company, of which Lawrence McGuire is President, and plans have been filed for alterations estimated to cost $30,000 by Starrett & Van Vleck, architects. When completed the structure will be occupied on lease by a clothing manufacturing firm which has a contract for making a large number of army uniforms.

Several of the other old dry goods stores on the avenue have recently been remodeled or are in process of changes for new commercial interests.

Buys Columbus Avenue Corner.

The two four-story buildings on the northeast corner of Columbus Avenue and Sixty-second Street, adjoining the Colonial Theatre, have been purchased by Harold M. Silverman, giving him a plot of 75 feet on the avenue by 40 feet on the street. The immediate corner building, 20 by 75, was acquired from William Buchan, Jr., whose family has owned the property for seventy-five years. It was held at $85,000. The adjoining parcel, similar in size, at 50 West Sixty-second Street, was bought from Mrs. Sadie J. Wallenstein. The holding price was $50,000.

Charles S. Kohler was the broker in the two sales.

West Side Dwelling Sale.

The three-story dwelling at 30 West 114th Street, 18.2 by 100.11, has been sold by the A. Kane Company for the Lawyers Mortgage Company to an investor.

$79,200 for Avenue B Church.

Permission has been granted to the Evangelical Reformed Church by Justice Mitchell of the Supreme Court to sell the plot occupied by the church on the southeast corner of Avenue B and Fifth Street, 53 by 100, to Samuel Grosner for $79,200. The plot was acquired by the church in 1840.

Big Tenement House Purchase.

The five four-story tenement houses at 335 to 343 East Thirty-seventh Street, between First and Second Avenues, have been purchased by J. W. Gennerich from the Nason Realty Company, Max N. Natonson, President. The sellers acquired the property about six weeks ago. Each building covers a plot 25 by 100. Byrne & Baumann were the brokers.

Deal on Cherry Street.

The four-story business building at 367 Cherry Street, adjoining the southwest corner of Gouverneur Street, plot 36.6 by 65, has been purchased by Michael Cohen from Slova L. Saposnnek.

Bronx Borough Sales.

The five-story factory building on plot 100 by 117 at the northwest corner of Jackson Avenue and 140th Street, has been purchased by the Crippen Co., piano manufacturers, from Strich & Zeidler. Nicholson & Co. were the brokers. It was held at $100,000.

The five-story flat at 3061 Bailey Avenue, 45 by 100, has been sold by J. S. Maxwell for Anna M. Maixner, who acquired it last February.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Co. has purchased the plot at 2633 Jerome Avenue, 98 by 118, near Kingsbridge Road, for a transformer station. The consideration was $26,000.

Westchester County.

Dr. Archibald McNeil, the bacteriologist, has purchased from John McKesson, Jr., an old Colonial home and six acres of land on the Pines Bridge Road, Chappaqua. The house is one of the oldest in Westchester County. Dr. McNeil will alter it for occupancy. George Howe was the broker. He has also sold for C. O. Wells to John Limpert the former's residence on Hillcrest Avenue, Park Hill, Yonkers.

Brooklyn.

The recent opening of the new link of the Sea Beach Subway up to Union Square in Manhattan, has had a marked effect upon the realty market along the line of that transit improvement which is especially noticeable in the Kings Highway section where many homes have been erected in anticipation of the coming demand. John F. Churlo, who has completed a row of houses at West Seventh Street and Kings Highway, has sold 1782 West Eleventh St. to Wm. J. Mundell, 1784 West Eleventh St. to R. C. Feris, 1798 West Eleventh St. to Fred A. Heywood, 1788 West Eleventh St. to Wm. J. McCambridge, 1718 West Eleventh St. to John E. Biggins, and 1767 West Eleventh St. to Rowena L. Tholens.

Tutino & Cerny have sold for Thomas P. Hayes, to Richard Orlowsky, the two-story dwelling, on plot 20 by 100, at 616 Fifty-first Street.

Astoria Sales for Improvement.

Minor L. Platt has sold another plot for Justice Francis K. Pendleton in addition to the one reported last week at the northeast corner of Grand and Fourth Avenues, Astoria. The latest sale was a plot on the south side of Grand Avenue, forty-nine feet east of Fourth Avenue. It will be improved as the former parcel, with a five-story apartment house. The plot was held at $9,000. This makes twenty-four lots in the vicinity that Mr. Platt has sold within the last six months to builders for improvement.

Sales in Queens Borough.

A. L. Selig and S. L. Felber have each purchased a one-third interest in the plot 180 by 600 on the southeast corner of Nott Avenue and Van Pelt Street, Long Island City, from Sa. Eiseman. It is two blocks from the Corona elevated line and from the Queens Boulevard, and is valued at $75,000.

M. Allen of East Orange has purchased a tract of nine acres from C. C. Amberman at Jamaica South. The property is bounded on the west by Thurston's Creek and on the east by the property of B. C. Amberman.

The Kissena Park Corporation has sold nineteen lots at Flushing to A. H. Haaren and twenty-two lots to C. W. P. Smith.

The Home and Prospect Realty Company has purchased twenty-nine acres at Aqueduct from G. L. Skinner. It will be developed for single family cottages.

Buys New Jersey Estate.

The Hankinson estate of 250 acres, with a large Colonial residence at Eatontown, N. J., has been sold by Grant Parish of Asbury Park to H. W. Holcombe of New York. The farm is near the Rumson Road and Shrewsbury. The price was about $35,000.

Commercial Leases.

The Colony Construction Company, Robert P. Zobel, President, has leased the store and basement in the Colony Arcade, 63-67 West Thirty-eighth Street, running through to 62-64 West Thirty-ninth Street, about 20,000 square feet, to Morris Goldziher, now at 657 Broadway, importers of flowers and feathers.

E. A. Turner has leased for George Schaefer to a client the five-story building at No. 120 East Thirty-second Street, 22 by 100, for alteration into a garage.

Rice & Hill have leased for Sidney W. Hughes to George B. Warner the five-story building at 128 East Fifty-seventh Street.

J. Arthur Fischer has rented the store at 640 Sixth Avenue to Cruskin & Cohen, furriers.

Manning & Trunk have leased for the First Construction Company of Brooklyn, William H. Reynolds, President, the store at 407 Lexington Avenue, between Forty-second and Forty-third Streets, to Matthew Levin.

Private Dwelling Leases.

Pease & Elliman have leased for Mrs. D. Ernest Walker to Charles Minder the three-story dwelling at 6 West Eighty-third Street, and for the United States Trust Company to Dr. T. E. Waldie the four-story dwelling at 50 East Seventy-fifth Street.

The Houghton Company has leased for William E. D. Stokes the four-story dwelling at 541 West End Avenue, northwest corner of Eighty-sixth Street, to Mattie R. Ward.

James Kyle & Sons have rented for Anderson & Anderson the four-story dwelling at 126 East Sixtieth Street, and for S. Frank the three-story house at 156 East Forty-ninth Street.

F. & G. Pflomm have leased for the Kerr estate the private house at 68 West Twelfth Street to Miss F. Barnum.

Thomas & O'Reilly has rented for Edward J. Moloughney the four-story dwelling at 911 West End Avenue to Marie Justin.

J. Arthur Fischer has leased the four-story dwelling at 241 West Thirty-eighth Street to J. Schnor.

State Realty Officers.

Realty Notes.

The Engineers' Land Corporation, which recently acquired a large tract for golf and other purposes near Roslyn, L. I., has placed upon its property a $500,000 mortgage to secure bonds of an equal amount, designating the Title Guarantee and Trust Company as Trustee.

Justice Mitchell of the Supreme Court has granted permission to the Colony Club to sell its old clubhouse property at 120-124 Madison Avenue, 73.11 by 100, to Henry J. Hemmens for $240,000.

The Sheriff Street Baths have taken title to the five-story building at 66 and 68 Sheriff Street, adjoining the southeast corner of Rivington Street, from Abraham Gersten.

THE BRICK MARKET.

Figures Show Decline in Production and Increase in Total Value.

The supply of common building brick for the enormous consumption of New York City, the largest brick market in the United States, comes principally from the narrow strip of land on either side of the Hudson from New York City to Cohoes, including Bergen County, N. J., according to The Record and Guide.

In 1916 the number of brick marketed in this region, according to a report in preparation by the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, was 893,552,000, a decrease of 66,975,000.

The value of this output, however, was $5,915,254, an increase of $906,189 over 1915. The average price per 1,000 brick was $6.62, an increase of $1.41 over 1915.

The New York part of the region is by far the larger producer, reporting, for 1916, 702,596,000 brick, or 79 per cent. of the total, valued at $4,552,468, or 77 per cent. of the total for the region. This was a decrease of 38,972,000 brick, but an increase of $907,920 compared with 1915.

The average price per thousand in this part of the region increased $1.43, or to $6.48. Ulster was the leading county in this part of the region, reporting 222,651,000 brick, valued at $1,444,275, a decrease of 6,692,000 brick, but an increase of $333,783 in value, compared with 1915.

The New Jersey part of the region reported 190,956,000 brick, valued at $1,362,786, being a decrease of 28,003,000 brick, but an increase of $98,269.

IMPORTANT

This house was built under the supervision of Messrs. Clinton & Russell. It is luxuriously finished, no money having been spared in its construction.

IT IS ABSOLUTELY FIREPROOF, having had a proven test. Fire originated from spontaneous combustion while tenant was absent. Everything combustible in the apartment was consumed by the fire, but the fire did not go beyond that apartment.

NO TAMMANY WHEN HYLAN IS NOTIFIED

SHERIFF SMITH TO ATTEND

But That Is Because as a Candidate He Must Be Present on Thursday Evening.

The Tammany Mayoralty campaign will be formally opened on Thursday evening, when County Judge John F. Hylan, Charles L. Craig and Sheriff Alfred E. Smith, candidates for Mayor, Controller and President of the Aldermen, respectively, on the Tammany-Democratic Fusion ticket will be notified of their nomination and in response will discuss the issues on which they will make their appeal to the voters.

Under a plan agreed upon by Tammany Hall and its organized allies in the present Mayoralty campaign, Tammany will keep in the background as much as possible from the very start. Samuel Untermyer will make the principal notification speech. Aside from the name of Sheriff Alfred E. Smith, who is frankly a Tammany man and who, being a candidate, must be present as a matter of course, there is not a Tammany name that stands out on the whole list of members of the Notification Committee. The organizations to be represented at the ceremonies are the Business Men's League, the Democratic Fusion Committee of One Hundred and Seventy, the League of Independent Voters and the Citizens' Democracy. Tammany Hall, the important and tangible factor behind the candidacy of Judge Hylan and his colleagues, is not mentioned at all on the formal announcement of the notification sent out last night from the headquarters of the Democratic Fusion Committee.

The notification ceremonies will be held at the headquarters of the Democratic Fusion Committee, 50 East Forty-second Street, beginning at 8:30 in the evening. After the candidates have been notified and the speeches of acceptance made, the committee will discuss campaign plans behind closed doors.

The members of the Notification Committee are William P. Burr, Colonel L. D. Conley, and Edwin O. Wood of New York County; Francis L. Carrao, Andrew T. Sullivan, and John J. Curtin of Kings County; Alfred J. Amend, George N. Reinhardt, and William A. Cokeley of Bronx County; Peter J. Brady, George B. Hanavan, and Edward Rocho of Queens County, and Charles D. Durkee, John Croak, and George W. Stake of Richmond County.

Peter J. Brady, President of the Allied Printing Trades Council and member of the Democratic Fusion Committee, replied yesterday to the statement made by H. E. Miles, praising the Gary system. Opposition to the Gary plan which has been introduced in some of the public schools during the Mitchel administration will be a feature of the Tammany campaign. Mr. Brady said in part:

"Mr. Miles defends the Gary system because it will, as he says, 'establish a national efficiency.' The 'national efficiency' which Mr. Miles wants is efficiency from the standpoint of the large employer and exploiter of labor. Mr. Miles speaks as the agent of big business interests of the country, which include the Rockefeller industries and their allies. He is Chairman of the Committee on Industrial Education of the National Association of Manufacturers, an organization that has declared war on union labor. He was formerly Chairman of the Committee on Vocational Education of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

"The desire of the National Association of Manufacturers for 'national efficiency' in the education of the children of our workers is additional confirmation of the charge made in the platform of the Democratic Fusion Committee, on which Judge John F. Hylan, its candidate for Mayor, stands, that 'The Gary system proposes to make our public schools an annex to the mill and factory.'

"In his statement Mr. Miles pleads for the Gary system on the ground that it will make 'better mechanics.' This attitude of Mr. Miles and the other Mitchel defenders is in strict observance of the Rockefeller educational policy for the plain people as announced by Dr. Frederick T. Gates, of the Rockefeller General Educational Board in a statement in the 'Country School of Tomorrow.' Dr. Gates said: 'We shall not try to make these people, or any of their children into philosophers, or men of learning, or men of science. We are not to raise up from them authors, orators, poets or men of letters. We shall not search for embryo great artists, painters and musicians. Nor will we cherish even the humbler ambition to raise up among them lawyers, doctors, preachers, politicians, statesmen of whom we now have an ample supply.'"

KILLS AMERICAN CORPORAL.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Sept. 17.—Telegraphic advices from Guantanamo today report the death of an American Corporal as the result of a fight with a Spaniard.

Companions of the Corporal tried to take the Spaniard to the naval station, but the local police seized the prisoner and confined him in jail. The name of the Corporal is not given in the dispatches.

CORRIGAN ATTACKS SWANN.

Says People Should Oust "Political District Attorney."

Magistrate Joseph E. Corrigan, who is running for District Attorney on an independent ticket, said yesterday that his campaign was being based on the proposition that the "political District Attorney" is fast becoming an unpopular figure in public life. He said:

"New York County has been afflicted in this respect for many years. All remember how the voters took matters into their own hands when they gave Judge William Travers Jerome control of this office. There is no good reason why the people should not re-enact that performance today. We have the testimony of Mayor Mitchel that the District Attorney's department of our county government has been sunk in the mire of politics, and to the mind of the fair men, who looks to that quasi-judicial officer for purity of intention, at least, retention of the present incumbent offers no hope for the betterment of conditions.

"The daily camouflage now being sent out of the District Attorney's office reeks with the very things which I have charged against a political District Attorney. Surely it is evident that, however excellent the personality of the prosecuting officer may be, of necessity he must heed his master's voice and pull the chestnuts out of the fire when bidden."

Can Find No Trace of School Girl.
